DANGER IS EVERYWHERE!

The Pathfinder Playtest Rulebook contains the rules for building characters and playing the game. This document provides the final pieces you need as a GM to run the game: environments, hazards, and, of course, lots of monsters!

And wow, is it a lot of monsters. When we started crafting the first monsters for this playtest, we didn't expect to have nearly as large a selection of creatures as you'll find here. Once we got rolling, though, we just had so many ideas for how our favorite monsters might work that we kept going and going. That's why you'll find everything from the redcap to the jabberwock. Not all these creatures will make it into the first official monster book, but these creatures can give you a good sense of the sort of monsters you will find in the new version of Pathfinder.

We want your input on these monsters. Do you like the new abilities we've added to them? Do you find the stat blocks easy to use? Do you wish monsters had statistics more like PCs, as they used to? Was finding and disarming traps satisfying? Do you think the animated broom is too silly? We want all sorts of information from you! Try out these monsters and hazards in your games and let us know how they fared by providing feedback at pathfinderplaytest.com.

This document contains a broad selection of challenges to use in your Pathfinder Playtest games, including all the adversaries from the playtest adventure, Doomsday Dawn (you can find a list of those and their page numbers on page 29). If you're adapting other adventures to playtest even further or creating your own adventures, you'll find a broad selection of hazards and creatures here, along with guidelines for building encounters with them. Because this document is meant to be used in the playtest and won't appear in a print edition, it contains less art and information than a standard bestiary and has a different layout.

This document is divided into the following sections.

- Environments (see page 5) gives you what you need for adventures in different locations and climates. It also includes the rules for hazards (see page 11)—traps, haunts, and environmental dangers—as well as a large selection of individual hazards that are ready to use.
- Building Encounters (see page 21) describes how to construct balanced encounters for an adventuring party. This includes instructions for adjusting encounters for large or small groups and for your desired degree of challenge.
- How to Use Creatures (see page 22) covers all the special rules for running monsters and other creatures that aren't covered in the Pathfinder Playtest Rulebook. You'll also find a description of how to read creature stat blocks here. They're structured much like the stat blocks for feats, spells, and items, but they have a few special additions. This section also includes the rules for making monsters stronger or weaker by 1 level and for adjudicating special situations that might come up in play.

- Creatures by Name (see page 24) lists the creatures in this book alphabetically by the names that appear in their stat blocks, while Creatures by Level lists them by their levels.
- Catalog of Creatures (see page 30) is the real meat of this document: statistics for hundreds of creatures! Those included here are primarily monsters and other antagonists. The Playtest Bestiary includes less information about each creature than a full book would. If you want to know more about a creature, the entries list a sourcebook where you can look up more information and find an image of the creature! Most of the creatures are monsters, but you'll also find a small number of NPC-style creatures starting on page 119. Many of these NPC-style creatures are used in Doomsday Dawn.
- Ability Glossary (see page 121) contains special creature abilities that are summarized in creature stat blocks instead of being described in full each time (these were called Universal Monster Rules in Pathfinder First Edition). If you encounter an ability in a stat block without the rules needed to use it, check here to learn how it works.
- Creature and Hazard Traits (see page 123) supplements the traits presented in the Pathfinder Playtest Rulebook, adding ones that are specific to the creatures and hazards in this document.

As with the other parts of the Pathfinder Playtest, we'll be soliciting your opinions on the monsters and hazards in this document. Go to pathfinderplaytest.com to find the surveys and forums, where you can weigh in on any problems or preferences you discover!

ENVIRONMENTS

Each of the environments presented uses the terrain rules (see page 340 of the Pathfinder Playtest Rulebook) in different ways, so be sure to familiarize yourself with those rules before reading this section. Some environments refer to the rules for climate and natural disasters on page 9. Many places have the traits of multiple environments; a snow-covered mountain might use both the arctic and mountain environments.

For environmental features with effects based on how tall or deep, those effects vary further based on a creature's size. For instance, a shallow bog for a Medium creature might act as a deep bog for smaller creatures, and a deep bog for a Medium creature might act as a shallow bog for a larger creature (or might even be insignificant enough to not be difficult terrain for a truly massive creature).

If the environment is hazardous, it can deal damage. Because the amount varies based on the specific circumstances, the sections on specific environments and natural disasters use categories rather than exact numbers to describe the damage. Use Table 1: Environmental Damage to set the damage from an environment or natural disaster.

TABLE 1: ENVIRONMENTAL DAMAGE

Category	Damage
Minor	1d6–2d6
Moderate	4d6–6d6
Major	8d6–12d6
Massive	18d6–24d6

AQUATIC

Aquatic environments are among the most challenging for PCs short of unusual planes and other worlds. PCs in an aquatic environment need a way to breathe (typically a water breathing spell) and must usually Swim in order to move, though a PC who sinks to the bottom can walk awkwardly, as if through greater difficult terrain. Use the aquatic combat rules and drowning and suffocation rules on page 315 of the Playtest Rulebook.

CURRENTS AND FLOWING WATER

Ocean currents, flowing rivers, and the like are difficult terrain or greater difficult terrain (depending on the speed of the water) when you're swimming against them. At the end of your turn, the current moves you a certain amount of distance depending on its speed. For instance, a 10-foot current moves you 10 feet in the current's direction at the end of your turn.

VISIBILITY

It's much harder to see things at a distance underwater than it is on land due to light scattering, and it's particularly difficult if the water is murky or full of particles. In pure

DUNGEON

Dungeon environments, which include both ruins and contemporary buildings constructed in the wilderness, are a fairly common venue for adventures. As an environment type, they combine urban features like doors and buildings (see page 7) with features from the dungeon's or ruin's environment. While underground dungeons are particularly common, consider setting your adventure in a ruin reclaimed by the forest, with giant trees spreading their roots through the walls, or a ruin deep in a swamp, with bogs covering access to some of the ruin's hidden secrets.

water, the maximum visual range is roughly 240 feet to see a small object, and in murky water visibility can be reduced to only 10 feet or even less.

ARCTIC

The main challenge in an arctic environment is the cold climate (see Climate on page 9), but arctic environments also contain ice and snow. The most common disasters are avalanches, blizzards, and floods (see pages 9–10).

ICE

Icy ground counts as both uneven ground and difficult terrain, as characters slip and slide due to poor traction.

SNOW

Depending on the depth of snow and its composition, most snowy ground is either difficult terrain or greater difficult terrain. Denser snow might allow characters to attempt to walk along the surface without breaking through, but some patches might be loose enough that they're uneven ground.

DESERT

Desert describes sandy and rocky deserts and badlands. (Though tundra is technically a desert, it's classified as arctic because the climate is the primary challenge there). Sandy deserts often have quicksand hazards (see page 18) and sandstorms (see page 10).

RUBBLE

Rocky deserts are strewn with rubble, which counts as difficult terrain. Piles of rubble dense enough to be walked over rather than navigated through are considered uneven ground.

SAND

Packed sand doesn't usually significantly impede characters' movement, but loose sand can be difficult terrain if it's shallow or uneven ground if it's deep. The wind in a desert often shifts sand into sand dunes, which are inclines on the side facing into the wind.

FOREST

These environments include jungles and other wooded areas. They are often struck by wildfires (see page 11).

CANOPIES

Particularly dense forests, such as rain forests, have a canopy level above the ground. A creature trying to reach the canopy or travel across it must Climb (they can also use this action to swing on vines and branches). A canopy provides cover, and a thicker one can prevent creatures in the canopy from seeing those on the ground, and vice versa.

TREES

While trees are omnipresent in a forest, they typically don't provide cover unless a character uses the Take Cover action. Only particularly massive trees that take up an entire 5-foot square on the map (or more) are big enough to provide cover automatically.

UNDERGROWTH

Light undergrowth is difficult terrain and allows a character to gain cover with the Take Cover action. Heavy undergrowth is greater difficult terrain that provides cover. Some sorts of undergrowth, such as thorns, might also be hazardous terrain, and areas with plenty of twisting roots might be uneven ground.

MOUNTAIN

Mountain environments also include hills, which don't contain the more extreme features of mountains. The most common disasters are avalanches (see page 9).

CHASMS

Chasms are natural pits, typically at least 20 feet long, which are clearly visible barring mundane or magical efforts to conceal them. The main danger posed by a chasm is that characters must typically use a Long Jump to get across. Alternatively, characters can take the safer but slower route, Climbing down the near side and back up the far side.

CLIFFS

Cliffs and rock walls require Climb to ascend or descend. Without extensive safety precautions, a critical failure carries the risk of significant falling damage.

RUBBLE

Mountains often have extremely rocky areas or shifting, gravelly scree that makes for difficult terrain. Especially deep or pervasive rubble is uneven ground.

SLOPES

Slopes vary from gentle rises of normal terrain to difficult terrain and inclines, depending on the angle of elevation. Moving down a slope is typically normal terrain.

UNDERGROWTH

Light undergrowth is common in mountains. It is difficult terrain and allows a character to Take Cover.

PLAINS

The plains environment encompasses grasslands such as savannas and farmland. The most common disasters are wildfires (see page 11).

HEDGES

Hedges are planted rows of bushes, shrubs, and trees. In adventures, they most iconically occur in the form of tall hedges grown into mazes. A typical hedge is up to 5 feet tall, takes up a row of squares, and provides cover. A character trying to push through a hedge treats it as greater difficult terrain, but it might be faster to Climb over.

UNDERGROWTH

Light undergrowth is difficult terrain and allows a character to Take Cover. Heavy undergrowth is greater difficult terrain that provides cover. Undergrowth in plains is usually light with a few scattered areas of heavy undergrowth, but fields of certain crops, like corn, are entirely heavy undergrowth.

SWAMP

Swamps are generally wetlands, but this category also includes drier marshes such as moors. Swamps often have quicksand hazards (see page 18). Despite their soggy nature, swamps are less likely than many areas to experience heavy flood disasters, since they act as natural sponges and absorb a great deal of water before they flood.

BOGS

Also called mires, bogs are watery areas that accumulate peat, are typically covered by shrubs and moss, and sometimes feature floating islands of vegetation covering deeper pools. Shallow bogs are difficult terrain for a Medium creature, and deep bogs are greater difficult terrain. A creature has to Swim if a bog is deep enough that the creature can't reach the bottom. Bogs are typically acidic, so particularly extreme or magical bogs can act as hazardous terrain.

UNDERGROWTH

Light undergrowth is difficult terrain and allows a character to Take Cover, and heavy undergrowth is greater difficult terrain that provides cover. Some sorts of undergrowth, such as thorns, might also be hazardous terrain, and areas with plenty of twisting roots might be uneven ground.

URBAN

Urban environments include open city spaces and buildings; the building information on pages 7–8 also applies to ruins and constructed dungeons. Depending on construction and location, cities may be vulnerable to many sorts of disasters, especially fire and floods (see pages 10–11).

DOORS, GATES, AND WALLS

Some of the most common obstacles characters face in urban areas and dungeons are doors, gates, and walls.

CLIMBING STRUCTURES

The table below gives the typical level for Athletics checks to Climb a structure and the DC of high-difficulty checks of that level. As with other ordinary tasks (see page 336 of the Playtest Rulebook), these tasks typically use the high-difficulty DC for their level, but you might adjust the degree of challenge based on the specifics of the structure and environment. In most cases, structures of above-average quality are harder to climb; increase the task's level by 2 for each degree of quality above standard (so an expert-quality masonry wall would be level 6 to climb and a master-quality one would be level 8).

BREAKING OPEN STRUCTURES

Structures that can open, like doors, gates, and windows, can be forced open with the Break Open action of Athletics. This is usually necessary only if they're locked or stuck.

The Break Open DC for a structure is typically 5 higher than the Thievery DC of its lock. Breaking Open a door or window that's just stuck (or that is unnecessarily being Broken Open when it could have been opened normally) is usually a level 2 task, or higher level for something that's exceptionally stuck, like a metal door wedged in a strange position. Break Open can also be used to lift portcullises. This is usually a level 4 task for a wooden portcullis, level 6 for an iron one, or 5 higher than the Thievery DC of the locking mechanism, whichever is higher. Bending bars wide enough for a character to squeeze through them is typically a level 8 task.

DEMOLISHING STRUCTURES

A character might want to smash their way through a door, a window, or certain walls. The hardness values provided on the table below are based on the material the structure is made out of, so a portcullis made of adamantine, for example, would have an appropriately high hardness. If the material can take more than 1 Dent without becoming broken, the table also lists (in parentheses) the number of Dents it can take. A reinforced door, such as a wooden door reinforced with iron bands, can usually take 1 additional Dent before becoming broken. (For more on Dents and the broken condition, see page 175 of the Playtest Rulebook.)

Strong walls, such as well-maintained masonry or hewn stone, can't be broken without dedicated work and proper tools. Getting through such walls requires downtime.

Crumbling masonry	14 (6)
Lath and plaster	12 (3)
Wood slat	10

Portcullis	Hardness (Dents)
Iron	18 (2)
Wood	10

CROWDS

Crowded thoroughfares and similar areas are difficult terrain, or greater difficult terrain if the area is truly packed. You might allow a character to get a crowd to part using Diplomacy, Intimidation, or Performance.

A crowd exposed to an obvious danger, like a fire or a rampaging monster, attempts to move away from the danger as quickly as possible, but is often slowed by its own mass. A fleeing crowd typically moves at the Speed of an average member (usually 25 feet for a crowd mostly made up of humans), potentially trampling or leaving behind slower-moving members of the crowd.

DOORS

Opening an unlocked door requires an Interact action (or several for a particularly complicated or large door). Locked or stuck doors require Break Open or Pick a Lock.

FLOORS

Wooden floors are relatively easy to walk along, as are flagstone floors made of fitted stones. However, floors of worn flagstone often contain areas of uneven ground. A floor of smooth and polished stone is rare and usually involves expensive techniques or magic.

GATES

Walled settlements often have gates, which the city can open for defense or travel. A typical gate consists of one portcullis on each end of a gatehouse, with murder holes or protected spots from which guards can attack foes in the open space between.

GUARDS

Most settlements of significant size have guards. The size of this force varies from one guard for every 1,000 residents to a force 10 times this number, working in shifts to protect the settlement at all hours, patrolling the streets, and guarding various posts.

PORTCULLISES

A portcullis is a wooden or iron grate that descends to seal off a gate or corridor. Most are raised on ropes or chains operated by a winch and have locking mechanisms to keep them from being lifted easily. If a portcullis falls on a creature, use a slamming door trap (see page 14).

ROOFTOPS

Rooftops make for a memorable battle, chase, or infiltration. Flat roofs are easy to move across, but they're rare in any settlement that receives significant snowfall, since snow builds up and can collapse the roof. Angled roofs are uneven ground, and the peak of a pitched roof is a narrow surface.

Hurdling from roof to roof often requires a Long Jump, though some buildings are close enough to Leap. A High Jump might be necessary to reach a higher roof, or a Leap followed by Grabbing an Edge and Climbing to the top.

SEWERS

Opening a sewer grate usually requires 2 or more Interact actions. Sewers are generally 10 or more feet lower than street level and often have ladders or other means to ascend or descend. Raised paths along the walls allow sewer workers access, while channels in the center carry the actual waste. Less sophisticated sewers, or sections removed from those the workers usually access, might require wading through disease-ridden waste in order to progress.

Since sewer gas often contains pockets of methane and hydrogen sulfide, it can be highly flammable. Any pocket of sewer gas exposed to a source of flame explodes, dealing fire damage (typically 6d6) to creatures in the area.

STAIRS

Moving up stairs is typically difficult terrain, though shoddy stairs might also be uneven ground. Some temples and giant-built structures have enormous stairs that are greater difficult terrain or even require Climbing each step.

STREETS

Most settlements have narrow and twisting streets from organic growth. These are rarely more than 20 feet wide, with alleys as narrow as 5 feet. The streets are generally paved with cobblestones that, if in poor repair, might be difficult terrain or uneven ground.

Particularly lawful or planned cities might have major thoroughfares to allow wagons and merchants to move through town to a marketplace or other important area. These need to be at least 25 feet wide to allow wagons moving in both directions, and they often have small sidewalks to allow pedestrians to avoid wagon traffic.

WALLS

Well-built structures have exterior walls of brick or stone masonry. Smaller, lower-quality, or temporary structures might have entirely wooden walls. Interior walls tend to be less sturdy, made of only wood, plaster, and lath, or even of thick, opaque paper in a wooden frame. An underground structure might have thick walls carved out of solid rock to prevent the weight of the ground above from collapsing the structure.

UNDERGROUND

Underground environments consist of caves and natural underground areas. Artificial dungeons and ruins combine underground features with urban features like stairs and walls. Deep underground vaults have some of the same terrain features as mountains, such as chasms and cliffs. The most common disasters are collapses (see page 10).

FLOORS

Natural underground environments rarely have flat floors, instead featuring abrupt changes in elevation that result in difficult terrain, uneven ground, and inclines.

LEDGES

Ledges are narrow surfaces that overlook a lower area or provide the only means to move along the edge of a chasm.

RUBBLE

Caverns can be covered in rubble, which is difficult terrain. Deep or pervasive rubble is also uneven ground.

STALAGMITES AND STALACTITES

Stalagmites are tapering columns that rise from the floor of a cave. Areas filled with stalagmites are greater difficult terrain, and especially large stalagmites have to be sidestepped or Climbed. Stalagmites can be sharp enough they can be used as hazardous terrain in some circumstances, as can stalactites (icicle-shaped formations that hang from the roof of a cave) if they're knocked loose from a ceiling or overhang.

WALLS

Natural cave walls are uneven, with nooks, crannies, and ledges. Since most caves are formed by water, cave walls are often damp, making them even more difficult to climb.

CLIMATE

Weather is more than just set dressing to establish mood; it has mechanical effects you can combine with encounters for a memorable experience. Weather can impose circumstance penalties on certain checks, from -1 to -4 based on severity.

FOG

Fog imposes a circumstance penalty on visual Perception checks, depending on the thickness; it causes creatures viewed through significant amounts of fog to be concealed; and it cuts off all visibility at half a mile or less—or much less. Conditions limiting visibility to about a mile are called mist, and those that do so to about 3 miles are called haze.

PRECIPITATION

Precipitation includes rain as well as colder snow, sleet, and hail. Most of these impose penalties on visual Perception checks (hail is sparser but loud, instead penalizing auditory Perception checks). Wet precipitation douses flames, and frozen precipitation can create areas of snow or ice on the ground.

Precipitation causes discomfort and fatigue. Anything heavier than drizzle or light snowfall reduces the time it takes for characters to become fatigued by exertion to 4 hours for normal exploration tactics or simple overland travel, or 5 minutes for a fatiguing tactic. Heavy precipitation can be dangerous in cold environments when characters go without protection. Soaked characters treat the temperature as one step colder (mild to severe, severe to extreme; see Temperature below).

There's a negligible chance that a character is struck by lightning during a storm. If necessary, use damage from lightning bolt, heightened for a severe thunderstorm.

TEMPERATURE

Usually temperature isn't important enough to worry about beyond describing clothing. Temperatures below freezing (32° F) are mild cold, and temperatures above around 95° F (ranging from 80° in high humidity to 120° in low humidity) are mild heat. They don't damage characters dressed appropriately, but they reduce the time it takes for characters to become fatigued by exertion to 4 hours for most simple exploration tactics or simple overland travel, or 5 minutes for a fatiguing tactic.

Temperatures 12° F and lower are severe cold, which deals 1d4 to 1d8 cold damage per hour unless the character is wearing gear designed for low temperatures. Temperatures above around 105° F (from 90° to 130° based on humidity) are severe heat, dealing 1d4 to 1d8 fire damage, regardless of gear.

Temperatures much above 115° F (from 100° to 140° based on humidity) are extreme heat and dangerous without magic. Temperatures -20° F or colder are extreme cold and occur in cold regions; an arctic region at its coldest might be over 100° colder! Gear can reduce the severity of such cold but can't overcome it entirely. Extreme cold or heat deals 1d12 damage of the appropriate type every 10 minutes. At -80° F or less or 140° F or more, the damage occurs every minute.

WIND

Wind imposes a circumstance penalty on auditory Perception checks depending on its strength. It also interferes with physical ranged attacks like arrows, imposing a penalty on attack rolls involving such weapons and potentially making attacks with them impossible in powerful windstorms. Wind snuffs out handheld flames; lanterns protect their flame from the wind, but particularly powerful winds extinguish them.

Wind counts as difficult or greater difficult terrain when Flying. Moving in wind of sufficient strength requires a Maneuver in Flight action, and fliers are blown away on a critical failure or if they don't succeed at at least one such check each round. Even on the ground, particularly strong winds might require an Athletics check to move, knocking creatures back and prone on a critical failure. On such checks, Small creatures typically take a -1 penalty and Tiny creatures typically take a -2 penalty.

NATURAL DISASTERS

Bad weather can be a hindrance or long-term threat, but natural disasters represent imminent danger, especially to those exposed to their direct fury. The damage in the following sections uses the categories in Table 1: Environmental Damage on page 5.

AVALANCHES

Though the term avalanche specifically refers to a cascading flow of ice and snow down a mountain's slope, the same rules work for landslides, mudslides, and other

ENVIRONMENTS

BUILDING ENCOUNTERS

NPCS

ABILITY GLOSSARY

CREATURE AND HAZARD TRAITS

similar disasters. Avalanches made of particularly powdery snow can travel as fast as 2,000 feet per round, though wet snow avalanches rarely travel faster than 200 feet per round and rockslides and mudslides are slower still. Avalanches are usually no more than a few hundred feet long (though other slides can extend much farther).

Avalanches deal major bludgeoning damage to creatures and objects in their path. Victims are also buried under a significant mass. At the GM's discretion, creatures could also risk suffocation if they have an insufficient air pocket (see page 315 of the Playtest Rulebook). Affected creatures can attempt a Reflex save; if they succeed, the bludgeoning damage is halved, and if they critically succeed, they also avoid being buried.

Buried creatures take minor bludgeoning damage each minute, and potentially take cold damage. A buried creature is restrained and usually can't dig itself out, though allies or bystanders can attempt to do so. Each person digging clears roughly a 5-foot-by-5-foot square every 4 minutes with a successful Athletics check (or every 2 minutes with a critical success). Using shovels or other proper tools halves the time.

BLIZZARDS

Blizzards combine cold weather, heavy snow, and strong winds. They don't pose one direct threat as other disasters do; instead, the combination of all three factors makes them an incredible impediment to characters.

COLLAPSES

Collapses and cave-ins occur when caverns or buildings fall, dumping tons of rock or other material on those caught below. Creatures under the collapse take major bludgeoning damage and become buried, just as with an avalanche (see above). Fortunately, collapses don't spread unless they weakened the overall integrity of the area and lead to further collapses.

EARTHQUAKES

Earthquakes often cause other natural disasters in the form of avalanches, collapses, floods, and tsunamis (all detailed elsewhere in this section), but their unique threats include tremors, fissures, and soil liquefaction. Tremors knock creatures prone, causing them to fall or careen into other objects, which can cause bludgeoning damage appropriate to the severity of the quake. Fissures and other ground ruptures can destabilize structures, but more directly they lead to creatures falling into a fissure and taking falling damage. Finally, liquefaction occurs when granular particles shake to the point where they temporarily lose their solid form and become liquids, which can cause creatures and even buildings to sink into the ground. You can use the earthquake spell for more specific rules, though that represents only a particular kind of localized quake.

FLOODS

creatures, flash floods are similar to avalanches (see above), except with a liquid mass instead of a solid one. Instead of burying creatures, a flash flood carries creatures and even massive objects away, buffeting and potentially drowning them.

SANDSTORMS

Mild sandstorms or dust storms don't present much more danger than a windy rainstorm, but they can cause damage to a creature's lungs and spread diseases across long distances. Heavy sandstorms deal minor slashing damage each round to those exposed to the sand, force creatures to hold their breath to avoid suffocation, or both.

TORNADOES

In a tornado's path, wind conditions impose severe penalties, except creatures that would be blown away are instead picked up in the tornado's funnel, where they take massive bludgeoning damage from flying debris as they rise through the cone until they are eventually expelled (taking falling damage).

Tornadoes usually travel around 300 feet per round (roughly 30 miles per hour) and travel a few miles before dissipating. Some are stationary or travel much faster.

TsunamiS

Tsunamis present many of the same dangers as flash floods but are much larger and more destructive. Tsunami waves can reach 100 feet or more in height, wrecking buildings and creatures alike with massive bludgeoning damage from both the wave itself and debris created by its path of destruction.

VOLCANIC ERUPTIONS

Volcanic eruptions may contain any combination of ash, steam, lava bombs, lava flows, and pyroclastic flows.

Ash from volcanic eruptions is hot enough to cause minor fire damage each minute. It limits visibility like a thick fog (see page 9) and can make air unbreathable, requiring characters to hold their breath or suffocate. Ash clouds generate ash lightning strikes, which use the same rules as lightning bolt. Ash buildup on the ground creates areas of uneven ground or difficult or greater difficult terrain, and ash in the atmosphere can block the sun for weeks or even months, leading to colder temperatures and longer winters.

Steam vents shoot from the ground, dealing moderate fire damage in a wide column. Pressure can launch lava into the air that falls as lava bombs: masses of lava that solidify as they fly and shatter on impact, dealing moderate bludgeoning damage and moderate fire damage. Volcanic eruptions can also release acidic and poisonous gases from beneath the surface, creating hazardous terrain that deals minor acid damage or minor poison damage.

Lava flows are an iconic volcanic threat; they usually move between 5 and 60 feet per round over normal ground, so characters can often outrun them. However, flows can move up to 300 feet per round in a steep volcanic tube or channel. Lava emanates heat that deals minor fire damage even before it comes into contact with creatures, and immersion deals massive fire damage each round.

Pyroclastic flows—a mix of hot gases and rock debris—spread much faster than lava, sometimes more than 4,000 feet per round. While cooler than the hottest lava, pyroclastic flows deal major fire damage and are capable of overwhelming entire settlements. They work like avalanches (see page 9) but deal half of their damage as fire damage.

WILDFIRES

Wildfires travel mainly along a front moving in a single direction. In a forest, the front can advance up to 70 feet per round (7 miles per hour overland). They can move up to twice as fast in plains due to lack of shade and the lower humidity. Depending on conditions and fuel, wildfires can advance sideways or even backward. Embers from the fire, carried by winds and rising hot air, can scatter, forming spot fires as far as 10 miles away from the main wildfire.

Wildfires present three main threats. First, they increase the heat to nearly 1,500° F in advance of the front and the fire's arrival, as hot as some lava. This begins as minor fire damage per round at a reasonable distance from the front and increases to massive fire damage. Second, the smoke and heated air provide concealment like heavy fog and force characters to hold their breath or suffocate. Finally, the flames act as hazardous terrain and can potentially set a character on fire, dealing moderate persistent fire damage. The flames from a small fire are often less dangerous than the advancing heat from the front of a large fire.

HAZARDS

Dungeons are rife with ancient traps meant to protect the treasures within. These range from simple mechanical devices that shoot darts or drop heavy blocks to magic runes that explode into bursts of flame. In addition to traps, adventurers occasionally stumble into other types of hazards, including naturally occurring environmental hazards, mysterious hauntings, and more.

DETECTING A HAZARD

When characters approach a hazard, they have a chance to find the trigger area or mechanism before they trigger the hazard. Some hazards are impossible to detect unless a character has a minimum proficiency rank in Perception, as indicated in the hazard's Stealth entry (see Hazard Format on page 12), and such hazards can't be discovered unless a character is actively searching. When a character actively searches for hazards, roll a secret Perception check against the hazard's Stealth DC. Actively looking for hazards during combat or another type of encounter requires a Seek action.

Magic hazards with no Stealth proficiency requirement or a Stealth proficiency requirement of trained can be detected with detect magic. Determining the properties of such a magic hazard thoroughly enough to disable it requires a successful skill check to detect the hazard or the use of more powerful magic—detect magic alone is insufficient and, if it works at all, reveals only the presence of the hazard. Magic hazards that require expert or better proficiency are always masked to protect them from detection with detect magic.

TRIGGERING A HAZARD

When the PCs come across a hazard in exploration mode while searching their surroundings, determine whether they detect the hazard when they first enter the general area in which it appears. If they succeed, they become aware of the hazard, and you might want to map out or describe the area as they look closer. If they fail to detect the hazard, the circumstance that triggers the hazard occurs so long as it's a standard part of traveling, such as stepping on a floor plate trigger or moving through a magical sensor. Hazards that would trigger only when someone directly manipulates the environment—by opening a door or pulling a chain, for example—should trigger their reactions only if a PC explicitly uses that action.

Hazards that appear in encounters require you to pay attention to the specific manner in which they are triggered. If the PCs get to the end of an encounter without triggering a hazard that's present, they should get full XP for the hazard. However, if they haven't fully explored the area before or during the fight, they might still trigger the hazard if they sweep the area afterward (this does not result in additional XP awards).

When the PCs trigger a complex hazard, the hazard first performs its initial reaction; then have the PCs roll initiative. If the hazard has a routine—a set of preprogrammed actions it performs on its turn—add the hazard's Stealth modifier to its initiative roll.

DISABLING A HAZARD

The most versatile method to deactivate traps is the Disable a Device use of the Thievery skill, though most mechanical traps can also be smashed (see Destroying a Hazard on page 12) and magical traps can usually be dispelled (see Dispelling a Magic Hazard on page 12). Environmental hazards are often overcome with Nature or Survival, and haunt hazards are often deactivated with Occultism or Religion. The specific skill and DC required to disable a hazard is listed in the Disable entry of the hazard's stat block (see Hazard Format on page 12). As with detecting a hazard, disabling a hazard might require a certain proficiency rank in the listed skill, which appears after that skill and DC in the Disable entry.

A character must first detect a hazard in order to attempt to deactivate it, since details of the hazard dictate the proper countermeasures. A character can attempt to deactivate a hazard whether or not it's already been triggered, though some hazards no longer pose a danger once they've been triggered.

* The number in parentheses is the number of Dents a hazard can take before becoming broken.

† The attack bonus for a complex hazard is typically 2 lower since it makes more than one attack.

A success with the listed skill against the DC in the stat block disables the hazard without triggering it. Any other means of deactivating the hazard, such as counteracting a magic trap, are included in the hazard's stat block, as are any additional steps required to properly deactivate it. A critical failure on any roll to disable a hazard triggers it, including a critical failure on a spell roll to disable it.

Some hazards require multiple checks to deactivate, either for a particularly complicated component or for different portions of a larger hazard. For such hazards, a critical success counts as two successes on a single component.

DESTROYING A HAZARD

Rather than trying to carefully disable a hazard, a character might just smash it. Damaging a mechanical trap or another physical hazard works like damaging objects. An attack that deals at least as much damage as the hazard's Hardness dents it, and an attack that deals twice as much damage as the Hardness dents it twice (usually breaking it). In most cases, breaking or destroying the hazard also triggers it.

Hazards' AC, TAC, Hardness, Fortitude saves, and Reflex saves are listed in their stat blocks. Hazards are immune to anything an object is immune to unless noted otherwise, and can't be targeted by anything that doesn't target objects.

DISPELLING A MAGIC HAZARD

Some magic hazards can be dispelled using dispel magic. Such a hazard lists its spell DC in the Disable entry of the stat block, followed by its spell level in parentheses. Dispellng a hazard otherwise works like using a skill check to disable the hazard.

HAZARD FORMAT

Hazard stat blocks are formatted like those of monsters.

Name, Rarity, and Level

The first line of a hazard gives the hazard's name, its rarity, and the level of party it challenges. Common hazards are black, uncommon ones are red, rare ones are orange, and unique ones are blue. If the hazard has a component toxin, curse, or other non-spell feature, that feature's level is the hazard's level.

Traits

Many hazards fall into a specific category that's important for how other abilities and skills interact with them, the most notable categories being trap (for hazards specifically constructed to harm intruders), environmental (for natural hazards), and haunt (for spectral phenomena). Traps have a trait to indicate whether they're magical or mechanical. Hazards that have initiative and a routine have the complex trait to indicate this.

Stealth DC

This is the hazard's Stealth DC, which it uses to avoid being detected. A complex hazard instead lists its Stealth modifier for rolling initiative, followed by a DC if there's a chance someone might detect it. If the hazard requires a minimum proficiency rank in Perception to find it, that rank appears in parentheses. Hazards that can be detected using detect magic (see Detecting a Hazard on page 11) indicate that quality in this entry.

Description

This entry details the parts of the hazard and how they work together.

Disable

The skills and DCs required to deactivate or bypass the hazard are described here. A hazard that requires the disabler to have a minimum proficiency rank in a skill lists that information in parentheses. For magic traps that can be dispelled, this entry includes the spell DC and the minimum level of dispel magic required (listed in parentheses).

AC

Attacks against a mechanical trap or other physical hazard target this AC. When designing a mechanical trap, it's usually appropriate to set the TAC equal to or less than its AC - 4. An attack roll that critically fails triggers the hazard, as does breaking or destroying the hazard.

Saves

A mechanical trap or other physical hazard's modifiers to Fortitude and Reflex saves are listed here. On rare occasions (usually for haunts), hazards have Will saves.

Hardness

A physical hazard's Hardness indicates how difficult it is to break. If a hazard can take more than 1 Dent without becoming broken, this entry lists in parentheses the total number of Dents it can take before becoming broken. For example, "Hardness 11 (2 Dents)" means the hazard could take damage equal to or exceeding its Hardness twice (either taking damage twice or taking double its Hardness in damage at once) and still function. The next time it took that much damage, it would be broken. If the hazard has multiple components, the part of the trap with the listed Hardness is set in parentheses.

Immunities and Resistances

Physical hazards are immune to critical hits and precision damage, and have the immunities common to objects (see page 175 of the Playtest Rulebook). Other immunities a specific hazard has are listed in this entry, followed by any resistances or weaknesses it has.

TABLE 3: HAZARD EXPERIENCE

Level	Simple Hazard XP	Complex Hazard XP
Party level - 4	2	10
Party level - 3	3	15
Party level - 2	4	20
Party level - 1	6	30
Party level	8	40
Party level + 1	12	60
Party level + 2	16	80
Party level + 3	24	120
Party level + 4	30	150

Reaction

Most hazards have reactions that occur when they're triggered. For most hazards, the reaction is the entirety of the hazard's effect. For complex hazards, the reaction also causes the hazard to roll initiative, either starting a combat encounter or joining one already in progress.

Routine

This entry describes what a complex hazard does on its initiative. Unlike creatures, a hazard usually has a rote program it follows. The hazard's number of actions per turn is noted in parentheses; if partially disabling the hazard reduces the number of actions it can take each round, this is noted in the Routine entry.

Speed

If a complex hazard can move during its routine, it has a Speed entry. A hazard without a routine describes any movement it can make in the Reaction entry instead.

Attacks

If a hazard makes attacks, it has the appropriate melee or ranged attack entries.

Reset

If a hazard can activate multiple times, the reset entry explains how it is reset and how long it takes to do so.

Upgrades

Some hazards presented on the following can be made more powerful, as described in this entry.

DESIGNING A HAZARD

When designing your own hazards, use the numbers in Table 2: Hazard Statistics on page 12 for many of the hazard's statistics. These values are meant to be used as baselines; a particular hazard's statistics might be drastically different, typically so unusual strengths are balanced by weaknesses. For instance, a hidden pit deals more damage than most hazards of its level, but to compensate, it has lower defenses and is a little easier to find than normal.

ABILITY GLOSSARY

CREATURE AND HAZARD TRAITS

Table 2, hazards draw their DCs from the table of DCs on page 337 of the Playtest Rulebook. Choose the strongest aspect of the hazard to have an extreme-difficulty DC for its level, or one slightly lower. For example, a trap that should be hard to detect would use this DC for its Stealth. You might also use an extreme-difficulty DC if the characters will have multiple chances to succeed, such as for a hazard that doesn't require training to detect, therefore granting more players rolls to detect it (and sometimes multiple rolls). No other DC should be extremely difficult; other DCs generally use the high-difficulty DC value, or occasionally the severe-difficulty DC value.

If some aspect of a hazard makes it abnormally dangerous for its level, you might use the low-difficulty DC for its level for some aspect of the hazard. For example, you might do so if the hazard deals damage without requiring an attack roll or allowing a saving throw (such as a magic trap that uses magic missile). Similarly, when you're building a hazard that requires multiple checks to deactivate, you typically use a lower-difficulty DC, such as the low-difficulty DC for its level or the high-difficulty DC of a hazard 2 levels lower. The low-difficulty DC could also be used if disabling it requires a higher proficiency rank than normal. For instance, a level 3 sound-based hazard that can be disarmed only by an expert in Performance could require a DC 14 Performance check, and other means of disabling it that require less proficiency would probably have higher DCs.

Proficiency Requirements

When setting proficiency requirements, the trained restriction starts to appear as early as level 1, expert at level 4 or 5, master at level 8 or 9, and legendary at level 16 or 17. Hazards that don't require special measures to detect don't have a proficiency requirement, but they usually use extreme-difficulty Stealth DCs since each character gains a secret Perception check to detect them.

HAZARD EXPERIENCE

Characters gain Experience Points for overcoming a hazard, whether they disable it, avoid it, or simply endure its attacks. The XP for a complex hazard is equal to the XP for a monster of the same level. The XP for a simple hazard is equal to one-fifth of that. These numbers appear in Table 3: Hazard Experience on page 13. Hazards of a lower level than those shown on the table are trivial and award no XP.

SIMPLE HAZARDS

The following are example hazards of various levels.

HIDDEN PIT

HAZARD 0

Mechanical
Trap

Stealth DC 16

Description A trapdoor covers a 10-foot-square pit that is 20 feet deep.

Disable Thievery DC 12 to remove the trapdoor, making the trap no longer hidden (Perception DC 0 to notice)

AC 10, TAC 7; Fort +1, Ref +1

Hardness 4 (trapdoor); Immunities critical hits, object immunities, precision damage

◆ Pitfall

Trigger A creature walks onto the trapdoor.

Effect The triggering creature falls in and takes falling damage (typically 10 bludgeoning damage). That creature can use the Grab Edge reaction to avoid falling.

Reset The trap still causes falling damage if anyone falls in, but the trapdoor must be reset manually for the trap to become hidden again.

POISONED LOCK

HAZARD 1

Mechanical
Trap

Stealth DC 15 (trained)

Description A spring-loaded poisoned spine is hidden near the keyhole of a lock.

Disable Thievery DC 18 (trained) on the spring mechanism

AC 15, TAC 12; Fort +4, Ref +3

Hardness 6; Immunities critical hits, object immunities, precision damage

◆ Spring (attack)

Trigger A creature attempts to unlock or Pick the Lock.

Effect A spine springs out and attacks the triggering creature.

Melee spine +10, Damage 1 piercing plus cladis poison

Cladis Poison (poison) Fortitude DC 15; Maximum Duration 4 hours; Stage 1 1d6 poison damage and drained 1 (1 hour); Stage

2 2d6 poison damage and drained 2 (1 hour); Stage 3 3d6 poison damage and drained 2 (1 hour)

SLAMMING DOOR

HAZARD 1

Mechanical
Trap

Stealth DC 16 (trained)

Description Pressure-sensitive panels in the floor connect to a stone slab hidden in a hallway's ceiling.

Disable Thievery DC 15 (trained) on the floor panels before the slab falls

AC 15, TAC 10; Fort +5, Ref +1

Hardness 5; Immunities critical hits, object immunities, precision damage

◆ Slam Shut

Trigger Pressure is placed on any floor tile.

Effect The door falls, closing off the hallway. The stone slab deals 4d8 bludgeoning damage to anyone beneath or adjacent to the stone slab when it drops and pushes them out in a random direction. A creature that succeeds at a DC 15 Reflex save takes no damage and rolls out of the way in a random direction. On a critical success, they can choose the direction.

Lifting the fallen slab requires a successful DC 26 Athletics check. Destroying the floor panels triggers the trap. The slab itself uses the same AC and saves as the trap, but it has Hardness 12 and can take 4 Dents before breaking.

SPEAR LAUNCHER

HAZARD 2

Mechanical
Trap

Stealth DC 19 (trained)

Description A wall socket loaded with a spear connects to a floor tile in one 5-foot square.

Disable Thievery DC 15 (trained) on the floor tile or wall socket
AC 16, TAC 11; Fort +7, Ref +4
Hardness 8; Immunities critical hits, object immunities, precision damage
 ◆ Spear (attack)
Trigger Pressure is applied to the floor tile.
Effect The trap makes an attack against the creature or object on that tile.
Ranged spear +11, Damage 2d6+6 piercing

ELECTRIC LATCH RUNE HAZARD 3

Magical Trap Stealth DC 19 (trained) or detect magic
Description An invisible rune imprinted on a door latch releases a powerful electric discharge.
Disable Thievery DC 19 (expert) to scratch out the rune without allowing electricity to flow, or spell DC 17 (2nd level) to dispel the rune
 ◆ Electrocution (arcane, electricity, evocation)
Trigger A creature grasps the door latch directly or with a tool.
Effect The trap deals 3d12 electricity damage to the triggering creature (Reflex DC 16 half, or no damage on a critical success).

SCYTHE BLADES HAZARD 4

Mechanical Trap Stealth DC 23 (trained)
Description Two blades, each hidden in a 15-foot-long ceiling groove, are both connected to a trip wire.
Disable Thievery DC 19 (trained) to disable each groove
AC 19, TAC 15; Fort +10, Ref +6
Hardness 11 (2 Dents); Immunities critical hits, object immunities, precision damage
 ◆ Falling Scythes (attack)
Trigger The trip wire is pulled or severed.
Effect Both blades swing down, attacking all creatures under the ceiling grooves.
Melee scythe +14 (deadly, trip), Damage 3d12 slashing plus an extra 1d12 slashing on a critical hit; no multiple attack penalty
Reset The trap resets after 15 minutes.

FIREBALL RUNE HAZARD 5

Magical Trap Stealth DC 25 (expert)
Description An invisible rune creates an invisible, spherical magical sensor with a 20-foot radius.
Disable Thievery DC 22 (expert) to erase the rune without triggering the sensor, or spell DC 21 (3rd level) to dispel the rune
 ◆ Fireball (arcane, evocation, fire)
Trigger A living creature enters the sensor area.
Effect The rune shoots a fireball that explodes, centered on the triggering creature's square. This has the effects of a 3rd-level fireball spell with a save DC of 19.

HALLUCINATION POWDER TRAP HAZARD 6

Mechanical Trap Stealth DC 23 (expert)
Description A tube of hallucinogenic powder armed with a miniature explosive has been connected to a doorknob or similar latch.

Disable Thievery DC 26 (expert) to disable the hammer that strikes the percussion cap
AC 21, TAC 20; Fort +0, Ref +0
Hardness 1; Immunities critical hits, object immunities, precision damage
 ◆ Powder Burst (mental, poison)
Trigger The latch is opened or the tube is broken.
Effect The tube explodes, spraying hallucinogenic powder in a 30-foot cone. Any creature in the cone must succeed at a DC 22 Will save or be confused for 1 round and take a -3 conditional penalty on Perception checks and saves against mental effects for 1d4 hours. On a critical failure, the penalty is instead -4.

PHARAOH'S WARD HAZARD 7

Magical Trap Stealth DC 24 (expert)
Description A magical curse is imbued in a lintel above an entryway.
Disable Thievery DC 23 (master) to painstakingly remove the lintel without triggering the magic, or spell DC 22 (4th level) to dispel the rune
 ◆ Curse the Intruders (curse, divine, necromancy)
Trigger The seal on the tomb is broken from the outside.
Effect Each living creature within 60 feet must succeed at a DC 21 Will save or be subjected to the pharaoh's curse. A cursed creature takes a -2 conditional penalty to Fortitude saves, and any natural or magical healing it receives is halved. The curse remains until removed by remove curse or similar magic.
Reset The trap resets when the door is shut.

YELLOW MOLD HAZARD 8

Environmental Stealth DC 29 (trained)
Description Poisonous mold assaults nearby creatures with spores.
Disable Survival DC 24 (expert) to remove the mold without triggering the spores
AC 22, TAC 17; Fort +15, Ref +11
Hardness 11; Immunities critical hits, object immunities, precision damage
 ◆ Spore Explosion
Trigger A creature moves into the mold's space or damages the mold. The mold doesn't use this reaction if it's in direct sunlight or if it takes fire damage.
Effect The triggering creature and all creatures within 10 feet are automatically exposed to yellow mold spores.
Yellow Mold Spores (poison) Fortitude DC 22; Maximum Duration 6 rounds; Stage 1 1d8 poison damage and drained 1 (1 round); Stage 2 2d8 poison damage and drained 2 (1 round); Stage 3 3d8 poison damage and drained 3 (1 round)

BOTTOMLESS PIT HAZARD 9

Magical Mechanical Trap Stealth DC 30 or detect magic
Description A trapdoor covers an infinitely deep 10-foot-square pit.
Disable Thievery DC 23 (trained) to remove the trapdoor, making the trap no longer hidden (Perception DC 0 to notice)
AC 26, TAC 22; Fort +13, Ref +13

ABILITY GLOSSARY

CREATURE AND HAZARD TRAITS

PATHFINDER

PLAYTEST

Hardness 17 (4 Dents) for the trapdoor; Immunities critical hits, object immunities, precision damage

◆ Infinite Pitfall

Trigger A creature walks onto the trapdoor.

Effect The triggering creature falls in and continues to fall, potentially forever. That creature can try to Grab an Edge to avoid falling (see page 144 of the Playtest Rulebook) and can subsequently attempt to Climb out if it succeeds. The DC to Climb the walls or Grab an Edge is 24. The pit contains many handholds, so the falling creature can try to Grab an Edge again every 6 seconds, and if successful, can start to Climb out from that point (though it might be a very long climb, depending on how far the creature fell). Since the creature falls endlessly, it can rest and even prepare spells while falling, though dropped items fall at a different speed and are generally lost forever.

Reset The trap still causes creatures to fall forever if they fall in, but the trapdoor must be reset manually for the trap to become hidden again.

BLOODTHIRSTY URGE

HAZARD 10

Haunt Stealth DC 29 (trained)

Description An object imbued with echoes of a vicious mind tries to kill someone who comes near.

Disable Religion DC 27 (master) to exorcise the spirit or Diplomacy DC 29 (expert) to talk it down

◆ Quietus (emotion, fear, illusion, mental, occult)

Trigger A creature moves within 10 feet of the haunted object.

Effect The haunt takes control of the triggering creature, forcing it to attack itself. The creature is affected by phantasmal killer (DC 25), except that instead of mental damage, the damage type is based on a weapon the creature has drawn, an object it holds, or its unarmed attack damage if it's holding nothing.

HAMMER OF FORBIDDANCE

HAZARD 11

Magical Mechanical Trap Stealth DC 30 (expert)

Description An enormous hammer at an edifice's entrance swings down to damage creatures, push them back, and prevent them from entering the area.

Disable Thievery DC 27 (expert) twice on the hammer itself and once on its joint to prevent the hammer from swinging

AC 29, TAC 23; Fort +20, Ref +15

Hardness 22 (4 Dents) for the hammer, 16 (2 Dents) for the joint;

Immunities critical hits, object immunities, precision damage

◆ Forbid Entry (abjuration, attack, divine)

Trigger A creature attempts to enter the edifice through the entrance.

Effect The hammer swings down, slamming into the creature and knocking it back. On a hit, the target is knocked back 10 feet and must succeed at a Will save (DC 30) or be unable to enter the edifice through any entrance for 24 hours. On a critical hit, the target automatically fails its Will save.

Melee hammer +25, Damage 6d8+15; no multiple attack penalty

Reset The trap resets over the course of the round, ready to swing again 1 round later.

POLYMORPH TRAP

HAZARD 12

Magical Trap Stealth DC 32 (trained) or detect magic

Description A Druidic glyph transforms a trespasser into an animal.

Disable Thievery DC 30 (master) to drain out the glyph's power harmlessly, or spell DC 27 (6th level) to dispel the glyph before it triggers

◆ Baleful Polymorph (primal, transmutation)

Trigger A creature moves within 30 feet of the glyph without speaking the pass phrase in Druidic.

Effect The creature is affected by baleful polymorph (DC 28).

PLANAR RIFT

HAZARD 13

Magical Trap Stealth DC 35 (trained) or detect magic

Description A rift sucks creatures into another plane (the GM chooses the specific plane).

Disable Thievery DC 33 (master) to assemble a rift seal using objects strongly grounded to your plane, or spell DC 30 (7th level) to dispel the rift before it triggers

◆ Into the Great Beyond (conjunction, occult, teleportation)

Trigger A creature moves within 10 feet of the rift.

Effect The triggering creature and all creatures within 30 feet of the rift are sucked into another plane (Reflex DC 30 negates).

ANTIMAGIC PRISON

RARE HAZARD 15

Magical Mechanical Trap Stealth DC 37 (master)

Description A 30-foot-radius dome made of a noqual alloy falls, trapping spellcasters without their magic.

Disable Thievery DC 35 (master) to carefully jam the dome in place before it falls without bringing any magic into the area

AC 36, TAC 32; Fort +26, Ref +21

Hardness 26 (5 Dents); Immunities critical hits, magic, object immunities, precision damage

◆ Antimagic Imprisonment (abjuration, arcane)

Trigger A creature walks underneath the dome or any magic enters the area underneath the dome.

Effect The dome drops, trapping creatures inside while negating and preventing spells, magic items, and magical effects from originating inside the dome. This also prevents magic outside the dome from affecting the area inside or the dome itself. Creatures on the outside who attack the dome don't apply their magic weapons' item bonuses to attack rolls or extra damage, and creatures using Athletics to lift the dome don't get conditional bonuses or item bonuses from magic items. A creature that succeeds at a DC 34 Reflex save when the dome falls rolls out of the way in a random direction. On a critical success, they can choose the direction.

Lifting the dome requires a successful DC 40 Athletics check. Destroying the mechanism triggers the trap. The dome itself uses the same AC and saves as the trap, but it is incredibly difficult for most captives to Dent due to their inability to gain bonuses from magic weapons.

Reset The trap can be reset manually from the outside, lifting the dome back to its original position.

FROZEN MOMENT

HAZARD 17

Magical
TrapStealth DC 40 (master)Description Warding magic traps intruders in a disrupted time flow.Disable Thievery DC 38 (legendary) to rapidly disassemble the spell's myriad components in a single blink of an eye, or spell DC 35 (9th level) to dispel the trap before it triggers or dispel the effect on one victim◆ Adrift in Time (occult, transmutation)Trigger A creature touches the warded object or area.Effect The triggering creature and all creatures within 30 feet are trapped in a disrupted time flow (Fortitude DC 35 negates). The creatures' minds move so quickly that each round seems to last a century, but their bodies and magical energies move so slowly that they can't act except to Recall Knowledge. An affected creature must attempt a DC 33 saving throw against a warp mind spell immediately and again for every minute of normal time flow that passes while it is trapped in the frozen moment.

VORPAL EXECUTIONER

HAZARD 19

Mechanical
TrapStealth DC 44 (expert)Description A wickedly sharp saw blade descends and travels along grooves in a complex path throughout the room, decapitating everyone within.Disable Thievery DC 39 (expert) at four different junctions to jam all the saw blade's possible paths, preventing it from traveling through the room.AC 42, TAC 36; Fort +29, Ref +30Hardness 32 (2 Dents) at each of the four junctions; Immunities critical hits, object immunities, precision damage◆ Total Decapitation (attack)Trigger A creature attempts to exit the room.Effect The saw blade travels along its path, attacking all creatures in the room, twisting and varying its height for a maximum chance of beheading its targets.Melee saw blade +37 (deadly 1d12), Damage 6d12+25 slashing plus decapitation; no multiple attack penaltyDecapitation On a critical hit, a target must succeed at a DC 38 Fortitude save or be decapitated, dying instantly unless they can survive without a head.Reset The trap resets over the course of the round, and is ready to strike again 1 round later.

SECOND CHANCE

HAZARD 21

Magical
TrapStealth DC 47 (legendary)Description Powerful warding magic tied to a particular object or location regresses a creature's age.Disable Thievery DC 47 (legendary) to take apart the spell one tiny piece at a time with eyes closed while recalling every vivid life memory in order, starting from the earliest memory◆ In the Beginning (divine, transmutation)Trigger A creature tries to steal the object or intrude upon the location; if someone uses a proxy or dupe for the theft or intrusion, the trap unerringly targets the true perpetrator or perpetrators at any distance and across planes.Effect The triggering creature and up to five conspirators instantly revert to infants, losing all memories, class abilities, and other skills acquired during their lives (Fortitude DC 42 negates). Reversing this effect is nearly impossible, requiring powerful magic such as miracle or wish.

ARMAGEDDON ORB

RARE HAZARD 23

Magical
TrapStealth DC 10 or *detect magicDescription A roiling red orb, forged from a drop of Rovagug's blood, rains fire from the sky when a specified condition is met.Disable Thievery DC 51 (legendary) to imbue thieves' tools with aspects representing Asmodeus and Sarenrae and use them to drain away the orb's power over 10 minutes, taking 5 fire damage each round during that time◆ Burn It All (divine, evocation, fire)Trigger A special condition set by the trap's creator, typically on the event of her death.Effect Fire rains from the sky in a 100-mile radius, dealing 10d6 fire damage to creatures and objects in the area (Reflex DC 46 for half damage, or no damage on a critical success). Any creature reduced to 0 Hit Points in this way dies instantly. This is not enough damage to completely burn away a forest or level a mountain or city, but it typically kills most creatures in the area.

COMPLEX HAZARDS

Complex hazards are involved enough to be their own encounters, or to take the place of monsters in multiple-monster encounters. They roll initiative and have actions of their own, though these are usually automated through specific routines. Here are a number of complex hazards of various levels.

SUMMONING RUNE

HAZARD 1

Complex
Magical
TrapStealth +5 (trained) or *detect magicDescription An invisible cloud of magical sensors in a 10-foot radius surrounds an invisible wall or floor rune the size of the creature to be summoned.Disable Acrobatics DC 15 to approach without triggering the trap followed by Thievery DC 15 (trained) to carefully erase the rune, or spell DC 15 (1st level) to dispel the rune◆ Summon Monster (arcane, conjuration, summon)Trigger A creature enters the cloud of magical sensors.Effect This trap summons a specific type of level 1 creature. The creature uses the trap's initiative and remains for 2d6 rounds, after which the spell ends and the creature disappears. The creature also disappears if someone disables the trap before the duration expires. The summoned creature can use 3 actions each round and can use reactions, unlike most summoned creatures.Reset The trap resets each day at dawn.Upgrades Stronger summoning traps can summon creatures of a level equal to the trap's level. Higher-level summoning traps have a spell DC equal to the save DC of a trap of the same level (see Table 2 on page 12), and their Stealth modifiers and other disable DCs are equal to a severe-difficulty skill DC of that level. Stronger summoning traps usually require an expert or higher proficiency rank in Perception to find and might require a higher proficiency rank in Thievery to disable.

DROWNING PIT

HAZARD 3
Complex Mechanical

Stealth +8 (trained) or DC 21 (expert) to notice the water spouts once the pit opens

Description A trapdoor covers a 10-foot-square pit that's 30 feet deep and has 5 feet of water at the bottom. Four water spouts in the walls connect to hidden water tanks.

Disable Thievery DC 16 (trained) to seal each water spout, Thievery DC 21 (untrained) to open the trapdoor, or Athletics DC 21 (untrained) to force open the trapdoor

AC 18, TAC 14; Fort +8, Ref +5

Hardness 15 for the trapdoor, 8 for each spout; Immunities critical hits, object immunities, precision damage

◆ Pitfall

Trigger A creature walks onto the trapdoor.

Effect The triggering creature falls in and takes damage from the fall, reduced by 5 feet for falling into the water (typically 12 bludgeoning damage). A creature can use the Grab an Edge reaction to avoid falling (see page 144 of the Playtest Rulebook). The trapdoor then slams shut.

Routine (4 actions) The trap loses 1 action each turn for each disabled water spout. On each of the trap's actions, a spout pours water, increasing the depth of the water by 5 feet. Once the pit is full of water, the pit stops taking actions, but creatures in the pit begin drowning (see page 315 of the Playtest Rulebook).

Reset The trap can be reset if the door is manually reengaged and the water tanks refilled; it can be reset without draining the pit, but doing so renders it less effective.

QUICKSAND

HAZARD 3
Complex Environmental

Stealth +11 (trained)

Description A patch of water and sand 15 feet across submerges creatures who step onto it.

Disable Survival DC 17 (trained) to disturb the surface and make the trap no longer hidden (Perception DC 0)

◆ Submerge

Trigger A Huge or smaller creature walks onto the quicksand.

Effect The triggering creature is pulled down into the quicksand up to its waist. The quicksand rolls initiative if it hasn't already.

Routine (1 action) On its initiative, the quicksand pulls down each creature within it. A creature that was submerged up to its waist becomes submerged up to its neck, and a creature that was submerged up to its neck is pulled under and has to hold its breath to avoid suffocation. On its turn, a creature in the quicksand can attempt a DC 18 Athletics check to Swim to raise itself by one step, or to move 5 feet if it's submerged only up to its waist. On a critical failure, the creature is pulled down one step. A creature that swims out of the quicksand patch escapes the hazard and is prone in a space adjacent to the quicksand.

Reset The hazard still submerges anyone who walks in, but the surface doesn't become hidden again until it settles over the course of 24 hours.

SPINNING BLADE PILLAR

HAZARD 4
Complex Mechanical Trap

Stealth +10 (trained) or DC 24 (expert) to notice the control panel

Description A metal pole with three razor-sharp spinning blades is hidden in the floor, connected to trigger plates in up to eight floor tiles and a hidden control panel within 30 feet.

Disable Thievery DC 18 (trained) twice on the pillar, or Thievery DC 16 (expert) once on the control panel deactivates the whole trap

AC 19, TAC 15; Fort +6, Ref +10

Hardness 11 (2 Dents) on the pillar, denting the panel causes the trap to stay constantly active and prevents disabling the panel;

Immunities critical hits, object immunities, precision damage

◆ Rising Pillar (attack)

Trigger A creature steps on one of the trapped floor tiles.

Effect The trap pops up in a grid intersection and makes a spinning blade attack against one adjacent creature (if any), then rolls initiative.

Routine (3 actions) On its initiative, the trap spends its first action making a spinning blade attack against each adjacent creature, its second action moving straight in a random direction (roll 1d4 to determine the direction), and its third action attacking each adjacent creature. This trap doesn't take a multiple attack penalty.

Speed 10 ft.

◆ Melee spinning blade +12, Damage 2d10+5 slashing

Reset The trap deactivates and resets after 1 minute.

IRON MAIDEN TRAP

HAZARD 5
Complex Mechanical Trap

Stealth +12 (expert)

Description A mechanized iron maiden on clockwork wheels and fitted with vibration-sensing mechanisms is hidden behind a false wall.

Disable Thievery DC 21 (expert) to jam the false wall closed or to unlock the iron maiden once a creature is within, or Thievery DC 25 (expert) to disable the trap's wheels or vibration sensors

AC 20, TAC 16; Fort +12, Ref +10

Hardness 13 (3 Dents); Immunities critical hits, object immunities, precision damage

◆ Maiden's Arrival (attack)

Trigger A creature moves into a square within a straight line of the false wall. A creature that wouldn't be detected by tremorsense can't be detected by the iron maiden.

Effect The false wall opens and the iron maiden rushes forward, targeting the first Medium or smaller creature in its path. Unless the creature succeeds at a DC 19 Reflex save, it's restrained in the iron maiden, which immediately locks. The trap then rolls initiative.

Routine (3 actions) On its initiative, if the iron maiden has a creature inside, it spends 1 action to make a stab attack against the trapped creature, 1 action to rotate until there's no obstacle directly in front of it, and 1 action to move as far as it can in a straight line.

If there's no creature inside, it instead spends 1 action to rotate to face the nearest creature it can detect (if necessary) and spends 1 action to move directly toward the nearest creature (if necessary). It then spends its remaining actions attempting to capture an adjacent creature (Reflex DC 19 avoids).

The iron maiden doesn't stop acting until it's broken or its wheels are disabled.

Speed 30 ft.

◆ Melee stab +16, Damage 2d8+5 plus 1d6 persistent bleed

Reset When the iron maiden's sensors detect no vibrations within 60 feet for 1 minute, it returns to its hiding place and resets over the course of 30 minutes. This includes replacing the false wall and dumping out any remains.

WHEEL OF MISERY

HAZARD 6

Complex
Magical
Mechanical
Trap

Stealth +13 (expert)

Description An ornate wheel set into a wall, divided into six segments with colored runes on each, is controlled by a magical sensor that detects any creature within 100 feet in front of it.

Disable Thievery DC 26 (expert) on the wheel to stop it from spinning, Thievery DC 19 (master) to erase each rune, or spell DC 20 (4th level) to dispel each rune

AC 21, TAC 17; Fort +12, Ref +11

Hardness 13 (3 Dents); Immunities critical hits, object immunities, precision damage

◆ Wheel Spin

Trigger A creature enters the sensor's detection area.

Effect The wheel begins to spin and rolls initiative.

Routine (2 actions) On its initiative, the trap spends its first action spinning. Roll 1d6 to determine which segment is topmost when it stops spinning. It spends its second action replicating the spell listed for that segment (3rd level, DC 20, attack bonus +16), targeting, centered on, or otherwise including the nearest creature in the area. This increases the spell's range to 100 feet if necessary. Any spell cast by this trap is arcane.

1: sleep

2: paralyze

3: lightning bolt (100-foot line)

4: blindness

5: acid arrow

6: ray of enfeeblement

Reset The trap deactivates and resets if 1 minute passes without any creatures in range of its sensor.

POISONED DART GALLERY

HAZARD 8

Complex
Mechanical
Trap

Stealth +16 (expert) or DC 29 (master) to notice the control panel

Description Countless holes to launch poison darts line a long hallway with a hidden control panel on the far end.

Disable Thievery DC 21 (expert) on the control panel deactivates it.

AC 25, TAC 22; Fort +11, Ref +15

Hardness 17 (2 Dents) to destroy the control panel and disable the trap; Immunities critical hits, object immunities, precision damage

◆ Dart Volley (attack)

Trigger A creature enters the hallway.

Effect The trap attacks the triggering creature and then rolls initiative.

Routine (1 action) The trap launches one dart against every creature in the gallery as 1 action. Because it launches darts continuously, the trap also has a free action to launch a dart at each creature during that creature's turns.

Ranged poisoned dart +18, Damage 3d4 piercing plus flesset poison; no multiple attack penalty

◆ Continuous Barrage

Trigger A creature within the active gallery finishes an action.

Effect The trap makes a poisoned dart Strike against the triggering creature.

Flesset Poison (poison) Fortitude DC 20; Maximum Duration 6 rounds; Stage 1 1d6 poison damage and sluggish 1 (1 round); Stage 2 2d6 poison damage and sluggish 2 (1 round); Stage 3 3d6 poison damage and sluggish 3 (1 round)

Reset The trap deactivates and resets after 1 minute.

LAVA FLUME TUBE

HAZARD 10

Complex
Mechanical
Trap

Stealth +18 (trained)

Description Four gated channels carved into the stone allow lava to flow into the 20-foot-tall room; the floor can withdraw to allow the hardened lava to fall into a dump beneath.

Disable Thievery DC 27 (expert) twice to block a channel, or Thievery DC 30 (master) to force the floor open and escape to the dump

AC 27, TAC 22; Fort +18, Ref +14

Hardness 18 to destroy a channel gate, causing it to release lava at all times (this prevents that channel from being disabled and stops the trap from resetting), or 18 (4 Dents) to destroy the floor; Immunities critical hits, object immunities, precision damage

◆ Flume Activation

Trigger A creature attempts to leave the room.

Effect The exits seal off instantly and the trap rolls initiative.

Routine (4 actions) The trap loses 1 action per disabled channel each turn. On each of its actions, a different channel spews lava, dealing 4d6 fire damage to each creature within 10 feet of the channel (Reflex DC 25 half) and increasing the depth of the lava in the room by 5 feet.

A creature that starts its turn in lava takes 8d6 fire damage and is immobile until it succeeds at a DC 25 Athletics check as an Interact action to break free of the hardening lava. Creatures less than 5 feet tall also risk suffocation. Lava from the previous round hardens fully at the start of the trap's turn, effectively raising the floor of the room by 5 feet. Once the room is full of lava, the trap stops taking actions, but creatures in the room remain stuck until the floor opens and the trap resets.

Reset The trap deactivates and resets after 1 hour by withdrawing the floor, cracking and dumping the hardened lava (and any creatures still trapped inside) into the dump area.

CREATURE AND HAZARD TRAITS

TELEKINETIC SWARM TRAP

HAZARD 12

Complex
Magical
Mechanical
Trap

Stealth +22 (expert)

Description Three nondescript decorations instilled with telekinetic magic pull objects and pieces of the room itself into spinning clouds of objects that attack all creatures within the room.

Disable Thievery DC 27 (expert) to take apart each telekinetic cloud, Thievery DC 30 (master) to disable each telekinetic decoration, or spell DC 28 (6th level) to dispel each telekinetic decoration

AC 31, TAC 28; Fort +22, Ref +17

Hardness 22 to destroy one telekinetic cloud

◆ Agitate (arcane, evocation)

Trigger A creature stays in the room for at least 6 seconds.

Effect Each telekinetic decoration constructs a cloud of objects in the room (three clouds total) and rolls initiative. The creatures in the room become the trap's targets, regardless of whether they leave the room or other creatures later enter the room. A target creature that moves at least 1 mile from the trap ceases being a target.

Routine (9 actions) Each decoration uses three of the trap's actions each turn, and the trap loses 3 actions each turn for every decoration that is disabled. A decoration spends its first action to move its cloud of objects up to 200 feet, its second action to have that cloud attack, and then its third action to add more objects to the cloud, increasing its damage by 2d6 (to a maximum of 10d6). If a decoration's cloud has been destroyed, the decoration instead spends its first action to create a new cloud of objects inside the room (using the starting damage value) and then its second and third actions to have the cloud move and attack.

Melee cloud slam +21, Damage 6d6 bludgeoning

Reset The trap deactivates and resets 10 minutes after it has no target creatures (because they moved too far away or died).

DARKSIDE MIRROR

HAZARD 14

Complex
Magical
Mechanical
Trap

Stealth +26 (master) to notice it isn't a regular mirror

Description A magic mirror replaces characters with evil mirror duplicates from another dimension.

Disable Thievery DC 36 (legendary) to retrieve a creature from the other dimension within 10 minutes of the switch (possible only if the corresponding mirror duplicate is dead), Thievery DC 39 (master) to permanently disable the mirror once all mirror duplicates are dead, or spell DC 31 (7th level) to dispel the mirror for 1 minute and prevent additional replacements during that time

AC 32, TAC 30; Fort +25, Ref +20

Hardness 1, but can't be harmed while any mirror duplicate is alive

◆ Reflection of Evil (arcane, conjuration, teleportation)

Trigger A non-evil creature is reflected in the mirror.

Effect The mirror absorbs the creature into the mirror, replaces it with an evil mirror duplicate (Reflex DC 31 to avoid being absorbed into the mirror), and rolls initiative.

Routine (1 action) The mirror absorbs another reflected creature into the mirror and replaces it with a mirror duplicate. Mirror duplicates attack on their own initiative, using the same statistics as the original creature, but with an evil alignment (changing only abilities that shift with the alignment change). A mirror duplicate can spend 10 minutes in contact with the mirror to return to its original dimension and release the creature it duplicated, but most mirror duplicates prefer not to.

Reset The mirror is always ready to absorb creatures into the other dimension. Ten minutes after a creature is sucked into the mirror, if an ally doesn't rescue it with Thievery, it reaches the other dimension, where it might be captured or killed. In the mirror dimension, it counts as a mirror duplicate, so the denizens of the other dimension can't destroy the mirror on their side while the absorbed creature is there. These dimensions are alternate realities, not planes, so even rituals like plane shift can't reach them.

BANSHEE'S SYMPHONY

HAZARD 18

Complex
Magical
Trap

Stealth +31 (legendary)

Description A magically contagious wail of the banshee spell is trapped in the larynx of an invisible mummified elf.

Disable Thievery DC 39 (master) to pierce the invisible larynx so precisely that the magic releases in a trickle before the trap activates, Thievery DC 44 (legendary) three times to deconstruct the larynx while the trap is active in such a way that it tears apart the spell, or spell DC 36 (9th level) to dispel the wail of the banshee before the trap activates

◆ Scream

Trigger At least three living creatures spend at least 6 seconds within 100 feet of the trap together.

Effect The trap releases an arcane wail of the banshee (DC 36) with a 100-foot-radius area instead of 40 feet (counting all living creatures as enemies) and rolls initiative.

Routine (1 action) On the trap's initiative, it uses its action to force one random creature that failed its save against wail of the banshee last turn to emit a 100-foot-radius wail of the banshee. The creature wails even if it is dead or unable to speak, no matter how far away from the trap it is. Unlike normal, the drain from these multiple wail of the banshee effects increases the targets' drained values. A creature that critically succeeds at its save can still be affected by the trap on future rounds but can't be forced to wail again.

Reset The trap ends when the trap is unable to make a creature scream (usually because no creature failed its save on the previous turn or because all creatures have critically succeeded in the past). It then resets over 24 hours, as a new scream builds up in the mummified larynx.

BUILDING ENCOUNTERS

Creatures appear in your game during encounters, typically combat encounters. These guidelines will help you build encounters that pose appropriate challenges to your group.

To build an encounter, first decide how the encounter fits in the adventure as a whole. Assign a rough difficulty to the encounter using one of five possible degrees below.

Trivial encounters are so easy that the characters have essentially no chance of losing; they shouldn't even need to spend significant resources unless they are particularly wasteful. These encounters work best as warm-ups, palate cleansers, or reminders of how awesome the characters are.

Low-threat encounters present a veneer of difficulty and typically use some of the party's resources; in a low-threat encounter with characters who are particularly frugal, a character might even be reduced to 0 Hit Points, but it would be a fluke or the result of very poor tactics for the entire party to be seriously threatened.

High-threat encounters are a true threat to the characters, though unlikely to overpower them completely. Characters usually need to use sound tactics and manage their resources wisely to come out of a high-threat encounter ready to continue on to face a harder challenge without resting.

Severe-threat encounters are the hardest encounters most groups of characters can consistently defeat, and as such they are most appropriate for major encounters, such as with a final boss. Bad luck, tactics, or a lack of resources due to prior encounters can easily turn a severe-threat encounter against the characters, and a wise group keeps the option to disengage open.

Extreme-threat encounters are so dangerous that they are likely to be an even match for the characters, particularly if the characters are low on resources due to prior encounters. This makes them too challenging for most uses. An extreme-threat encounter might be appropriate for a fully rested group of characters that can go all out, for an end-of-campaign encounter, or for a group of veteran players with powerful character teamwork.

BUILDING AN ENCOUNTER

Once you've selected an encounter difficulty, it's time to build your encounter. You have an XP budget based on the difficulty you chose (see Table 5), and each creature costs some of that budget. Many encounters won't match the XP budget exactly, but they should come fairly close. The XP budget assumes you have four characters in the adventuring group. If your group is larger or smaller, use the guidelines presented in Different Party Sizes below.

When the group overcomes an encounter, as long as the encounter was not a trivial encounter, each character gains XP equal to the total XP of the creatures in the encounter. Trivial encounters don't normally grant any XP, but you

TABLE 4: CREATURE XP AND ROLE

Creature's Level	XP	Suggested Role
Party's level - 4	10	Low-threat minion
Party's level - 3	15	Low- or high-threat minion
Party's level - 2	20	Any minion or standard
Party's level - 1	30	Any standard
Party level	40	Any standard or low-threat boss
Party's level + 1	60	Low- or high-threat boss
Party's level + 2	80	High- or severe-threat boss
Party's level + 3	120	Severe- or extreme-threat boss
Party's level + 4	160	Extreme-threat solo boss

TABLE 5: ENCOUNTER BUDGET

Difficulty	XP Budget	Character Adjustment
Trivial	40 or less	10 or less
Low	60	15
High	80	20
Severe	120	30
Extreme	160	40

might decide to award the same XP as a minor or moderate accomplishment (Pathfinder Playtest Rulebook 339) for a trivial encounter that was important to the story.

CHOOSING CREATURES

In all but the most unusual circumstances, you'll select creatures for your encounter that range only from 4 levels lower than the PCs to 4 levels higher. Each creature has a role to play in your encounter, based on its level, from lowly minions to a boss so mighty that it poses an extreme threat to your player group even though it fights alone.

A creature costs some of the XP from your XP budget for the encounter, based on its level compared to the level of the party (see Table 4). For instance, if the party is 5th level, a 2nd-level creature is a "party level - 3" creature. Level 0 creatures are weaker than normal, counting as a "party level - 2" creature for a 1st-level party, a "party level - 3" creature for a 2nd-level party, and a "party level - 4" creature for a 3rd-level party.

DIFFERENT PARTY SIZES

For each character in the party beyond the fourth, include additional creatures worth an amount of XP equal to the Character Adjustment value for your encounter on Table 5. Don't adjust the actual XP the characters each gain for defeating the encounter.

If you have fewer than four characters, use the same process in reverse: for each missing character, remove creatures worth an amount of XP equal to the Character Adjustment on Table 5 from the encounter, but keep the XP that the characters each earn the same.

It's best to use the XP increase from more characters to add more enemies and the XP decrease from fewer characters to subtract enemies, rather than making one enemy tougher or weaker. Encounters are typically more satisfying if the number of creatures is fairly close to the number of player characters.

HOW TO USE CREATURES

This section provides the information you need to use creatures in your game and to understand the statistics presented here and in Doomsday Dawn. You'll learn how to adjust statistics to make creatures more useful, and how to deal with some unusual circumstances.

READING CREATURE STATISTICS

Each creature's rules appear in a stat block, with a structure similar to those of feats, spells, and magic items. Because creatures have more abilities, their statistics include more entries, many of which have special formats. In addition to the traits in the Pathfinder Playtest Rulebook, other traits appear in Creature and Hazard Traits on page 123. A creature's size (Tiny, Small, Medium, Large, Huge, or Gargantuan) is one of its traits, and traits for the creature's alignment also appear here.

Actions, reactions, free actions, and activities the creature can use have the appropriate icons next to the names of those abilities. A creature always has any proficiencies or other abilities needed to use what's listed in its stat block. For instance, a creature can use any spellcasting actions required to perform the Cast a Spell activity, and it is never untrained with any of its listed items.

Some abilities are described in full in the Ability Glossary on page 121 and abbreviated in each stat block.

Rarity is indicated on the line with the creature's name. Common creatures are marked with black, uncommon ones are marked with red, rare ones are marked with orange, and unique ones are marked with blue.

CREATURE NAME

RARITY LEVEL

Traits

Perception The creature's perception modifier, followed by any special senses.

Languages The languages for a typical creature of that kind, followed by any special communication abilities. A dash (–) indicates the creature cannot understand languages. If it can understand language but cannot speak, this is also noted.

Skills The first number is the creature's base skill modifier, which you add to the relevant ability modifier for any skill not listed. For specifically listed skills, use the given modifier only.

Ability Modifiers The creature's six ability modifiers are listed.

Items Any significant gear the creature carries is listed here.

Interaction Abilities Special abilities or exceptions to general rules that affect how the creature interacts using its skills, or that present broad changes for creatures that function differently from other creatures, are listed in alphabetical order after items (or after ability modifiers if the creature has no items).

AC and TAC (followed by any special bonuses to AC or TAC); Saving

Throws A special bonus to a specific save appears in parentheses after that save's bonus, followed by any special bonuses to all three saving throws against particular types of effects.

HP, followed by automatic abilities that affect the creature's healing;

Immunities; Resistances; Weaknesses

Constant Auras The creature's constant auras appear here.

Defensive or Reactionary Abilities Any abilities that automatically affect the creature's defenses, as well as free actions or reactions that usually trigger when it's not the creature's turn, appear here in alphabetical order.

Speed, followed by special Speeds or movement abilities.

◆ Melee The name of the weapon or unarmed attack the creature uses for a melee Strike, followed by the attack bonus, and traits in parentheses, Damage amount, then damage type, plus any special effects (this entry is "Effect" if the Strike doesn't deal damage).

◆ Ranged As Melee, but also lists range increment or range with traits, Damage as Melee.

Spells The entry starts with the magical tradition and whether the spells are prepared or spontaneous, followed by the DC and attack bonus (if any spells require attack rolls). Spells are listed by level, followed by cantrips. A spell prepared multiple times lists the number of times in parentheses—for example, "(×2)." Spontaneous spells list the number of slots after the spell level.

Innate Spells These are listed like other spells, with exceptions for constant and at-will spells. Spells of these types list a spell level in parentheses if they are cast at a level higher than their base level. This number appears right after "Constant" or "At Will" if it's the same level for all the creature's constant or at-will spells. Rules for constant and at-will spells appear in the Ability Glossary.

Class Powers If a creature has powers taken from a character class, this entry lists the Spell Points, DC, and powers. Each power lists its Spell Point cost in parentheses.

Rituals Any rituals the creature can cast appear here.

Offensive or Proactive Abilities Any actions, activities, or abilities that automatically affect the creature's offense, as well as free actions or reactions that usually trigger on the creature's turn, appear here in alphabetical order.

CREATURE ADJUSTMENTS

The creatures presented in this document have appropriate statistics for their levels. In many cases, you can make relatively minor adjustments to their statistics to make them function 1 level lower or higher than normal.

ELITE ADJUSTMENTS

Sometimes you'll want a creature that's just a bit more powerful than normal, so you can present a challenge that would normally be trivial or show that one enemy is stronger than its kin. To do this quickly and easily, apply an elite adjustment to its statistics by adjusting them as follows.

- Increase the creature's AC, attack bonuses, DCs, saving throws, Perception, and skill modifiers by 2.
- Increase the damage of its Strikes and other offensive abilities by 2. If the creature can use an ability (such as a dragon's breath weapon) only a limited number of times, increase the damage by 4 instead.
- Increase the creature's Hit Points based on the its starting level.

Starting Level	HP Increase
0-1	10

2-4	15
5-19	20
20+	30

Elite adjustments work best with martial creatures. Spellcasters—or creatures that rely heavily on innate spells or unique, noncombat abilities—typically need more specific adjustments.

WEAK ADJUSTMENTS

Sometimes you'll want a creature that's weaker than normal, so you can present a challenge that would normally be extreme, or show that one enemy is weaker than its kin. To do this quickly and easily, apply a weak adjustment to its statistics by adjusting them as follows.

- Decrease the creature's AC, attack bonuses, DCs, saving throws, and skill modifiers by 2.
- Decrease the damage of its Strikes and other offensive abilities by 2. If the creature can use an ability (such as a dragon's breath weapon) only a small number of times, decrease the damage by 4 instead.
- Decrease the creature's HP based on its starting level.

Starting Level	HP Decrease
1-2	10
3-5	15
6-20	20
21+	30

Like elite adjustments, weak adjustments work best with creatures that are primarily combat-focused. Creatures that rely heavily on innate spells or unique, noncombat abilities usually need more specific adjustments.

CREATURES IN PLAY

Unlike PCs, who are built using a strict set of rules, creatures in this document have special abilities and statistics that cover a broader range. They aren't always suited to adventuring situations, and the extremes of their statistics and abilities go both higher and lower than those of PCs. The game rules define how PCs work so the players at your table understand the consequences of what they do. Since creatures are a part of the world, more of their rules are left flexible so when you experience situations unique to your game, you can make a judgment call. Likewise, some creature rules are abbreviated and might require you to adjudicate how they function in play. The advice here can help guide you. As always, make a different call if it makes more sense for an individual creature, is consistent with your own previous decisions, or is simply easier!

ROLEPLAYING CREATURES

Whether its an adversary or a potential ally, chances are a creature has a very different worldview than the PCs. When roleplaying creatures, think about how they experience the world differently due to their senses, body shape, appendages, and ecology. This can give you roleplaying cues as simple as a difference in idioms (perhaps saying “in the other tentacle” rather than “on the other hand”) and as complex as determining motivations, hopes, and dreams. Understanding the creatures you run also helps you determine what tactics they will use, as well as whether they are willing to surrender or flee.

LOST GEAR

Some creatures rely on gear, like armor and weapons. You might need statistics for a creature that doesn't have its gear. For example, it could get disarmed, an ambush might catch it while it's out of its armor, or one of its worn magic items could get dispelled.

If a creature loses its weapon, it needs to use an unarmed attack or draw another weapon. In the latter case, find a Strike entry for the creature that most closely matches the substitute, reducing the attack bonus by 2 and using the damage die for the new Strike. If the creature needs to make an unarmed attack and doesn't have one listed, it uses the statistics for a fist (Playtest Rulebook 179).

For a creature that has lost its armor, find the armor in its Items entry. Reduce its AC and TAC by the item's bonuses (Playtest Rulebook 176). If the armor has magical potency, reduce its AC, TAC, and saves by the armor's potency.

For other magic items, the creature doesn't gain benefits.

LANGUAGES

The languages listed in a creature's entry are the typical ones known by a creature of that type. However, you may want to vary these, based on the specific creature. For instance, a creature probably wants to talk to other local creatures; if Common is the language listed for the creature but isn't the local language, consider replacing it with a more appropriate language (perhaps Undercommon if this specific creature lives in the Darklands, or the language of the region it inhabits). Beings from other planes are very unlikely to know a regional language from a particular Material Plane world, even Common, unless they specifically travel there.

SKILLS, PERCEPTION, AND PROFICIENCY

In rare situations, such as when a creature is trying to Disable a PC's snare, you may need to know the creature's proficiency rank. You should normally use expert for a listed skill if the creature is 5th level or higher, master if the creature is 9th level or higher, and legendary if the creature is 17th level or higher. A certain rank of proficiency in Perception might be necessary to detect certain things; a creature gains ranks in Perception in a similar fashion, though Perception typically improves faster than skills. A particularly perceptive creature might have expert proficiency at 1st level!

At your discretion, you can treat creatures with world-class aptitude at a particular skill or in Perception, such as a doppelganger with Deception, as having a higher rank in that skill. Rarely, a creature might have a skill modifier than its base modifier plus its relevant ability modifier. In those cases, always treat the skill as untrained.

DOOMSDAY DAWN CREATURE AND HAZARD LISTS

Creatures and hazards detailed in this document and referenced in Doomsday Dawn are listed below, each by the chapter in which they appear. They are then listed in alphabetical order by the name appearing in the adventure. If a creature is listed in this document by another name, that name is presented between parentheses following the creature's name. The table then lists the type and level of the entry, followed by the page number that you can find that entry in this document.

Monsters with an asterisk (*) have the elite template. You can find that template on page 22.

CATALOG OF CREATURES

You can use the following creatures in your games. Many of them appear in Pathfinder Playtest Adventure: Doomsday Dawn, and you can use others in expansions to that adventure or for adventures you design. These creatures are presented by categories, such as cats, demons, or kobolds. There's also a selection of NPCs on page 119; these represent people with abilities more like those of player characters. See page 24 for an alphabetical listing of creatures and page 26 for a listing of creatures by level.

ANIMATED OBJECT

Granted a semblance of life through the use of rituals or strange magic, animated objects can take many forms and serve a variety of uses. Listed below are just a few examples of common animated objects. Many of these creatures serve as guardians, surprising unsuspecting adventurers when they suddenly attack.

HP 6; Hardness 3; Immunities asleep, bleed, disease, death effects, enervated, enfeebled, healing, mental, necromancy, nonlethal attacks, paralysis, poison, stun Construct Armor Like other objects, an animated object has Hardness. This Hardness reduces any damage it takes by an amount of damage equal to the Hardness. The construct armor takes damage equal to the attack's damage, and might become dented or broken. The construct's AC and TAC might be lower when it's broken. The construct armor can't be entirely destroyed since it's part of the creature's construction.

Speed 15 feet

◆ Melee bristles +7, Damage 1d4 bludgeoning plus dust

Dust A creature hit by the broom's bristles must succeed at a DC 13 Fortitude save or spend its next action coughing. Even if hit by multiple dust attacks, the creature has to spend only 1 action coughing to clear the dust out. A creature that doesn't breathe is immune to this effect.

Drawers An animated bureau has six drawers. It can fire a drawer as a ranged attack and can make melee attacks as long as it has at least one drawer remaining. A creature can attempt to pull a drawer free with a Grapple action, making that drawer inanimate. An animated bureau's drawers often contain treasure or other items of interest.

- ◆ Ranged flaming coal +15 (range increment 80 feet), Damage 2d8 bludgeoning and 2d8 fire
- ◆ Burn Alive (fire) The statue grinds a creature it has grabbed into the red-hot coals of its brazier. The target takes 3d8 fire damage and 1d8 persistent fire damage.

Brazier The statue carries a wide brazier full of hot coals. To make flaming coal Strikes or use Burn Alive, the statue must have the brazier held in one hand or otherwise have it within reach. Instead of targeting the statue with an attack, a creature can target the brazier instead. The brazier has the same AC and saves as the statue. Dealing 15 cold damage to the brazier or dousing it with at least 2 gallons of water extinguishes the coals. This prevents the statue from using Burn Alive and causes its ranged attacks to no longer deal 2d8 fire damage.

ANKHRAV (ANKHEG)

Preying on livestock and humanoids who tend herds, ankhravs are a deadly rural menace. In addition to fighting with their powerful mandibles, these insectile creatures can spit a caustic acid at their victims. Ankhravs' plans for attack are more calculated than mindless vermin.

BANSHEE

Risen from the grave due to strong feelings of betrayal, this undead apparition was once a living elven woman. Undying grief drives banshees to seek out vengeance upon the living. They are best known for their deadly wails.

Speed fly 60 feet

- ◆ Melee hand +24 touch, Damage 3d8+7 negative plus terrifying touch

- ◆ Persistence of Fear (abjuration, divine)

Trigger The banshee damages a creature that is protected against fear by a spell or magic item.

Effect The banshee attempts to dispel the protection effect, with the effect of a 7th-level dispel magic spell.

The banshee can use this reaction before applying her terrifying touch ability.

Spectral Ripple When a banshee Strides at least 10 feet, she's concealed until the start of her next turn.

Sunlight Powerlessness If in direct sunlight, the banshee is slowed 2 and can't make actions with the attack trait.

Terrifying Touch (divine, emotion, enchantment, fear) A creature damaged by the banshee's touch that isn't already frightened must attempt a DC 30 Will save (DC 35 if the attack was a critical hit). If the creature fails its save, it's frightened 2; on a critical failure, the creature also cowers with fear, making it stunned and flat-footed for 1d4 rounds.

- ◆ Wail (auditory, concentrate, death, divine, necromancy) The banshee spends 2 Verbal Casting actions to unleash a soul-chilling wail of the banshee (DC 30). This wail overcomes silence and similar effects of 3rd level or lower. The banshee can add a third Verbal Casting action when casting to overcome such effects of up to 6th level.

The wail resonates from the banshee for 1 round, and any creature that comes within the area during that time must attempt a save against the effect. A creature can't be affected more than once by the same wail. Once she wails, a banshee can't wail again for 2d6 rounds.

BARGHEST

Said to be a fiendish relative of all goblinoid ancestries, these cruel creatures consume their victims, ingesting their life essence to empower their transformations into greater barghests. A barghest shares similar features with a wolf or other canine, but it also has unnervingly humanoid qualities, such as front limbs with humanoid hands.

BARGHEST MUTATIONS

Select one of the following mutations when creating a greater barghest.

Fangs (poison) The barghest grows elongated fangs that seep poison. Its jaws deal 1d6 additional poison damage and 1d6 persistent poison damage.

◆◆ Toxic Breath (arcane, evocation, poison) The barghest breathes a cloud of toxic gas that deals 8d6 poison damage to all creatures in a 30-foot cone (Fortitude DC 21 half, no damage on a critical success, double damage on a critical failure). It can't use Toxic Breath again for 1d4 rounds.

◆ Vestigial Arm Strike

Frequency Once per round

Trigger The barghest completes a Strike.

Effect The barghest makes a claw Strike with a shriveled third arm hanging from its torso. This attack doesn't count for the barghest's multiple attack penalty, nor does that penalty apply on the attack.

Wings The barghest has malformed wings extending from its back. It gains a fly Speed of 25 feet.

◆ Melee claw +11 (agile), Damage 2d6+2 slashing

Arcane Innate Spells DC 18; 4th confusion; At Will blink, levitate

◆ Change Shape (arcane, concentrate, polymorph, transmutation) The barghest takes on the shape of a goblin or a wolf, or it transforms back into its true form. When the barghest is a goblin, it loses its jaws and claw Strikes, it becomes Small, and its Speed changes to 20 feet. When the barghest is a wolf, its Speed changes to 40 feet and its jaws gain Knockdown. Each individual barghest has only one goblin form and one wolf form.

Feed Once per month, a barghest can spend 1 minute to devour a corpse, gaining a permanent +1 conditional bonus to all its d20 rolls. Each subsequent time it feeds, its bonus increases by 1. The fourth time a barghest feeds, it sheds its skin and mutates into a greater barghest, and the conditional bonus ends.

Mutation The process of consuming corpses to evolve into a greater barghest results in odd and unpredictable physiological changes. A greater barghest has one mutation, typically chosen from the list in the Barghest Mutations sidebar.

BAT

Typically seen in caves or flitting through the air at night, bats can be found throughout the world and are generally harmless. However, when bats gather in great numbers and form swarms, they can be deadly to weaker creatures, and giant specimens can be dangerous predators.

BLACK PUDDING

Most often found belowground, these amorphous oozes scour caves for metallic and organic objects to dissolve with their corrosive secretions. This caustic acid is particularly dangerous to creatures attacking black puddings, as it can quickly damage and destroy weapons and armor.

Corrosive Mass A creature that hits the pudding with a metal or wooden weapon must succeed at a DC 19 Reflex save or the weapon takes a Dent. Thrown weapons and ammunition are dented automatically with no save.

Split When the pudding is hit by an attack that would deal slashing or piercing damage, and the pudding has 10 or more HP, it splits into two identical puddings, each half the original's HP. One pudding is in the same space as the original, and the other appears in an adjacent unoccupied space. If no adjacent space is unoccupied, the new pudding automatically pushes creatures out of the way to fill a space.

Suction The pudding can climb on ceilings and other inverted surfaces, treating them as difficult terrain.

- ◆ Melee barbed legs +6 touch, Effect attach
- ◆ Blood Drain

Requirements The bloodseeker is attached to a creature.

Effect The bloodseeker drains blood from the creature. This deals 1d4 damage, and the bloodseeker gains temporary HP equal to the damage dealt. A creature that has its blood drained by a bloodseeker is drained 1 until it receives healing (of any kind or amount).

Attach When a bloodseeker hits a target larger than itself, its barbed legs attach it to that creature. This is similar to grabbing the creature, but the bloodseeker moves with that creature rather than holding it in place. The bloodseeker is flat-footed while attached. If the bloodseeker is killed or pushed away while attached to a creature it has drained blood from, that creature takes 1 persistent bleed damage. Escaping the grab or removing the bloodseeker in other ways doesn't cause bleed damage.

BOAR

Boars are aggressive and ornery beasts that are dangerous to encounter in the wild. Often attacking with no provocation, boars charge their enemies and are difficult to put down. Even their calm, domesticated cousin, the pig, can still deal nasty wounds with its tusks.

This doesn't deal any damage to the boggard, but it can't use this attack again for a week as it regrows its tongue.

Brain Blisters A brain collector has seven brain blisters on its back that it uses to store brains. A brain collector without all seven blisters full is enervated with a value equal to the number of empty blisters. It also reduces its bonus to all Lore skills by 1 per empty blister (to a minimum bonus of +12).

Brain Loss If it takes 35 damage from a critical hit or takes 30 mental damage, the brain collector is stupefied 2 for 1 round and might lose one of its brains. It must succeed at a DC 22 save (Fortitude for critical damage or Will for mental damage) or have one of its brain blisters destroyed.

◆ Melee jaws +18, Damage 2d12+7 piercing

◆ Melee claw +18 (agile), Damage 2d8+7 slashing

Delicious Target A bulette gains a +1 circumstance bonus to attack and damage rolls with its jaws against a specific type of creature designated as its favorite food. Unless otherwise stated, a bulette prefers halflings.

◆ Fin Slash

Requirement The bulette must be burrowing 5 feet under the surface of the ground.

Effect The bulette Burrows up to double its burrow Speed in a straight line and slices each creature on the surface in a line that follows the center of the bulette's movement. This deals 2d8+7 slashing damage, but each creature that succeeds at a DC 22 Reflex save takes half damage (no damage on a critical success, double damage on a critical failure).

◆ Leaping Charge The bulette attempts a High Jump or Long Jump. If it's adjacent to an enemy at the apex of its High Jump or the end of its Long Jump, it can make a claw Strike against the enemy at that moment. If the bulette jumps at least 5 feet vertically or at least 20 feet horizontally, it can attempt two claw Strikes instead of one. The bulette's multiple attack penalty doesn't increase until it has made all the claw Strikes that are part of its Leaping Charge.

Powerful Jumper A bulette jumps 10 feet up on a successful High Jump, or 20 feet up on a critical success.

◆ Melee tail +9 (agile), Damage 1d8+4 bludgeoning

◆ Shift Form (morph, primal, transmutation) A bunyip can alter its form slightly to gain an advantage and make it harder to recognize. If it does, its teeth shrink and it loses the 1d6 persistent bleed from its jaws Strike. It can choose to gain either a long snake tail, granting its tail Strike reach 10 feet and Grab, or squat crocodile legs, increasing its land Speed to 20 feet. If it uses Shift Form again, the bunyip can return to normal or switch between a long tail or crocodile legs.

◆ Blood Frenzy

Requirement The bunyip is not fatigued or already in a frenzy.

Trigger The bunyip deals bleed damage to a living creature.

Effect The bunyip flies into a frenzy that lasts 1 minute. While frenzied, the bunyip gains a +4 conditional bonus to damage rolls with its jaws, gains 8 temporary HP that go away at the end of the frenzy, and takes a –2 penalty to AC.

◆ Roar (auditory, concentrate, emotion, enchantment, fear, mental, primal) The bunyip lets out a loud and horrifying roar. Other creatures within 100 feet must succeed at a DC 15 Will save or become frightened 2 (frightened 3 on a critical failure, frightened 1 on a success, or unaffected on a critical success). No matter the result, the creature is bolstered.

CALIGNI (DARK FOLK)

After fleeing underground during a cataclysmic event, these former humans changed over time into a new species of enigmatic creatures with their own unique culture. Many different types of caligni exist in their darkened communities deep beneath the surface; the following are just two examples.

Triple Opportunity A chimera gains 2 extra reactions each round that it can use only to make Attacks of Opportunity. It must use a different head for each one it attempts, and it can't make more than one on the same triggering action. If it loses one of its heads, it also loses one of these extra reactions.

The color of the chimera's dragon head determines the size and shape of the Breath Weapon, the type of damage it deals, and the type of save to avoid it. The chimera can't use Breath Weapon again for 1d4 rounds. This activity gains the trait corresponding to the damage type.

Dragon Bite A chimera's dragon head deals 2d6 extra damage of a type matching the dragon's color (see Breath Weapon).

◆ Three-Headed Strike The chimera makes a Strike with its dragon jaws, lion jaws, and goat horns, each at a –2 penalty and targeting a different creature. These Strikes count as one attack for the chimera's multiple attack penalty, and the penalty doesn't increase until after all three attacks.

CHOKER

Chokers are small, vaguely humanoid creatures that have limbs that stretch like tentacles, ending in five wide, spiny digits. Chokers lurk in dark places, often clinging to walls, waiting to reach out with rubbery arms to grab their victims. While they keep their distance, chokers are intrigued by the trappings of society, and their lairs are often filled with mundane items and valuables plucked from their victims.

Effect The choker attempts to pull a creature it has Grabbed or restrained into the path of the attack. The choker attempts an Athletics check. If it succeeds against both the grabbed or restrained creature's Fortitude DC and the attacker's attack DC, the choker redirects the attack to the grabbed or restrained creature. The attacker rolls to hit the grabbed or restrained creature instead of the choker.

If the triggering attack is a melee attack, the choker must pull the creature into a space adjacent to itself and within the attacker's reach. If the triggering attack is a ranged attack, the choker must pull the creature into a space adjacent to itself and in a line between it and the attacker. The choker can't use the triggering enemy to block the attack, even if it's grabbing or restraining that enemy.

Strangling Fingers A choker automatically grabs any creature it hits and begins to strangle that creature. The creature is suffocating as long as it's strangled, and can't speak. This prevents it from using the Verbal Casting and Command Activation actions.

Calcification (primal, transmutation) A peck from a cockatrice hardens the flesh of the creature hit. It must succeed at a DC 17 Fortitude save or be slowed 1 (or slowed 2 on a critical failure). Further pecks increase the slowed condition by 1. Once a creature's actions are reduced to 0 by calcification, that creature becomes petrified.

Every 24 hours after it was petrified, the victim can attempt a DC 17 Fortitude save to recover. On a success, it becomes flesh again, but is slowed 1 for the next 24 hours. On a critical success, the creature recovers and isn't slowed. On a failure, the creature remains petrified, but can try again in 24 hours. On a critical failure, the petrification is permanent and the creature can't attempt any more saves.

It then makes a jaws Strike against the triggering creature, which is flat-footed against the crocodile's attack.

◆ Death Roll

Requirement A creature is grabbed or restrained by the crocodile.

Effect The crocodile tucks in its legs and rolls rapidly, twisting its victim. The crocodile makes a jaws Strike against the grabbed creature with a +2 circumstance bonus to the attack roll. If the crocodile hits, it deals jaws damage and knocks the creature prone. If the crocodile misses, it releases the creature.

Deep Breath If the crocodile uses the Breathe Deep action, it can hold its breath for 320 actions.

Roll damage only once, and apply it to each creature hit. If the cyclops critically hits one target and not the other, roll the extra critical hit damage separately. A Swipe counts as two attacks for the cyclops's multiple attack penalty, and the penalty doesn't increase until after both attacks.

DEH-NOLO

Deh-nolos are aberrant aliens associated with brain collectors. They hail from the depths of space, and visit worlds to hunt their preferred prey—intelligent beings. Deh-nolos use the brains of other creatures to amplify their own magical abilities and slake their unending thirst for knowledge. These creatures have a bulbous bodies held up by four spindly legs, and four translucent sacs that stand at the end of appendages growing from their backs.

Brain Blisters A deh-nolo has four brain blisters on its back that it uses to store brains. If the deh-nolo's four brain blisters are not all full, it becomes enervated with a value equal to the number of empty blisters. It also reduces its bonus to Lore skills by 1 per empty blister (to a minimum of +25).

Brain Loss If it takes 55 damage from a critical hit or takes 50 mental damage, the deh-nolo is stupefied 2 for 1 round and must also succeed at a DC 31 Fortitude save (for critical damage) or DC 31 Will save (for mental damage) to avoid having one of its brain blisters destroyed.

DEMON

Demons are fiendish natives of the Abyss who seek to twist mortals to sin. Demons seek to drag more beings into the pit following their death and final judgment. Many different types of demons exist, but only 13 of their kind are presented here.

The boar demon can use an Interact action to regurgitate any number of these items, expelling them from its mouth. If the boar demon dies, uses teleportation magic, or consumes an extradimensional space (such as a bag of holding), it immediately vomits up all the stolen items.

◆◆ Light of Avarice (attack, divine, enchantment, light, mental)

Frequency Once per hour

Effect Beams of unholy light shoot out from the boar demon, targeting up to four items within 60 feet. To affect a held or worn item, the boar demon must succeed at a ranged touch attack with a +28 modifier against the creature holding or wearing the item; these attacks don't affect the boar demon's multiple attack penalty. For 1 minute, all affected items glow in nauseating colors, and visions of obscene greed flit over their surface. Any non-demon is sick 2 and slowed 1 as long as it holds, wears, or touches any glowing item. To recover from this sickness, a creature must succeed at a DC 29 Will save instead of a Fortitude save. If the sickness ends, the creature ends the slow condition and becomes bolstered. If the creature removes or drops the item, both the sick and slow conditions end immediately.

ABYSSAL PACTS

Many demons can cast the Abyssal pact ritual to coax others of their kind into servitude. Rules for rituals appear on page 274 of the Pathfinder Playtest Rulebook.

ABYSSAL PACT

RARE RITUAL 1

Conjuration Casting 1 day

Proficiency Expert Religion (you must be a demon)

You call in a favor from another demon with a level of, at most, twice the spell level of the Abyssal pact, two demons up to 2 levels lower than that, or three demons up to 3 levels lower than that. If the ritual succeeds, you owe the summoned demons a favor, depending on their nature and eagerness to pursue whatever tasks you had in mind.

Success You summon the demon or demons.

Critical Success You summon the demon or demons, and because they are so eager to perform the task, they do not ask for a favor.

Failure You don't summon the demon or demons.

Critical Failure Each demon is angry that you disturbed them. They appear before you, but they have the summoned trait and immediately attack you.

◆ Protective Slime

Trigger A creature Strikes the blood demon with a weapon or unarmed attack, or otherwise touches the blood demon.

Effect If the creature hit the blood demon with an unarmed Strike or touched the blood demon, the creature takes 2d4 acid damage (Reflex DC 20 negates). If the creature hits the blood demon with a melee weapon, the creature has to succeed at a DC 20 Reflex save or the weapon is dented. On a critical failure, the weapon is broken. Thrown weapons and ammunition are broken automatically with no save. This doesn't affect items the blood demon holds or wears.

Lurking Assassin If the blood demon is unseen or sensed by a creature at the start of the blood demon's turn, the demon can attempt to frighten that creature if it hits the creature with its first attack on that turn. The target must succeed at a DC 22 Will save or become frightened 2. On a critical failure, the creature can't reduce its fear below frightened 1 for 1 minute.

Sneak Attack When attacking a flat-footed creature, the blood demon deals 1d6 additional precision damage.

FIRE DEMON (BALOR)

Aura of Flame (aura, divine, evocation) 20 feet. Any creature that starts its turn in the aura takes 20 fire damage, or 40 fire damage if the fire demon has grabbed or restrained it. Any creature that hits a fire demon with an unarmed Strike takes 20 fire damage, and weapons that hit a fire demon also take 20 fire damage.

◆ Attack of Opportunity

Disruptive In addition to its normal triggers, the fire demon's Attack of Opportunity can also be used when a creature within the fire demon's reach uses an action with the concentrate trait. Furthermore, the fire demon doesn't take the normal -2 penalty when it makes an Attack of Opportunity.

Death Throes (death, divine, evocation, fire) When a fire demon dies, it explodes in a 100-foot-aura flash of intense demonic flame. All creatures and objects in range take 100 fire damage. A creature that succeeds at a DC 42 Reflex save halves the damage (no damage on a critical success, double damage on a critical failure). Because the flame is infused with divine energy, creatures in the area apply only half their usual fire resistance. A creature that is immune to fire treats its result on the saving throw as one degree of success better, instead of gaining the usual benefit of immunity.

The bodies of creatures reduced to 0 HP by this fire are completely incinerated into dust, as per disintegrate.

Dimensional Dervish A fire demon can cast its at-will innate dimension door using only one Verbal Casting action.

◆ Dispelling Strike

Frequency Once per round.

Trigger The fire demon hits a creature, object, or spell effect with a weapon Strike.

Effect The fire demon casts its innate dispel magic on the target it hit with its Strike.

Infuse Weapons (divine, evocation) Any weapon a fire demon wields is treated as a +5 vorpal weapon made of cold iron and silver. Damage resulting from the fire demon's weapon Strikes also triggers any weakness to chaos or evil the target has. The demon can also conjure a flaming whip with an Interact action that gains the same benefits as other weapons the fire demon wields.

◆ Lifedrinker (divine, healing)

Trigger The fire demon kills a living creature that is at least 13th level.

Effect The fire demon drinks the triggering creature's life force and gains the benefits of a 10th-level heal spell.

Whip Reposition When a fire demon Grabs a creature with its whip, it can move the creature to any space in its whip's reach. The fire demon can move without ending the Grab—as long as it keeps the creature within the whip's reach—and it can use an action with the manipulate trait to move the creature to any other space within its reach.

LUST DEMON (SUCCUBUS)

Lust demons are manipulative, cruel fiends that use charm and lust as weapons. Succubi are physically attractive, have wings and horns, and are formed from the souls of lustful and rapacious mortals.

The lust demon can take on the appearance of any Small or Medium humanoid. This doesn't change her Speed, or her attack and damage bonuses with her Strikes, but might change the damage type her Strikes deal (typically to bludgeoning).

◆ Embrace (attack) Instead of using the Athletics skill, the lust demon attempts a Diplomacy check to Grapple a creature. If the creature is willing, the lust demon Grapples it automatically.

◆ Passionate Kiss (divine, emotion, enchantment, mental)

Frequency Once per round

Effect The lust demon engages a creature she has grabbed in a kiss or other act of passion in order to drain its energy. The kiss makes the creature enervated 1 for 1 day. The creature must also succeed at a DC 21 Will save or become affected by a suggestion to submit to more acts of passion rather than trying to escape. Further Passionate Kisses increase the amount of the enervated condition by 1. A creature whose enervated condition becomes equal to its level is slain by the Passionate Kiss.

◆ Profane Gift (divine, enchantment, mental)

Frequency Once per day

Effect The lust demon can give a willing humanoid a profane gift. That creature gains a +1 conditional bonus to all attack rolls, skill checks, and saving throws. As long as the gift persists, the lust demon can communicate telepathically with the creature at any distance, perceive through the creature's senses, and target the creature with suggestion through the telepathic link. In addition, the creature treats the results of any saving throw against the lust demon's suggestion spell as one degree of success worse than normal.

A humanoid can't have more than one profane gift at a time, and a lust demon can't grant more than one profane gift at a time. Removing the gift requires an atone ritual. The lust demon can remove the gift as an action to give the recipient a permanent stupefied 3 condition. This condition is especially potent. It takes a 4th-level restoration spell to reduce the stupefied condition by 1.

A summoned lust demon can't use Profane Gift.

MUTILATION DEMON (SHEMHAZIAN)

Prone to violence at a whim, these fiends are among the most predacious of their kind. Each of these massive

A creature can spend an action averting its gaze (this action has the concentrate trait) to gain a +2 circumstance bonus to its saves against Paralyzing Gaze and Focused Gaze for 1 round.

◆ Tail Whip (attack)

Trigger A creature within the reach of the mutilation demon's tail uses an action with the move trait to leave a square.

Effect The mutilation demon attempts to Trip the triggering creature at a -2 penalty. On a success, the creature also takes damage as if the mutilation demon hit with its tail Strike, and if the creature was flying, it falls 30 feet.

If that creature isn't slowed by the mutilation demon's focused gaze, it must attempt a save against the mutilation demon's focused gaze. If that creature is slowed, it must succeed at a DC 34 Fortitude save or become paralyzed for 1 round. A mutilation demon can't use this ability against the same creature more than once per round.

◆ Rend After hitting the same enemy with two consecutive claw attacks in the same round, a mutilation demon can deal claw damage again as its next action, without an attack roll.

Enfeebling Bite (divine, necromancy) When the mutilation demon hits a creature with a jaws Strike, the creature becomes enfeebled 3. The creature can attempt a DC 34 Fortitude save to reduce this to enfeebled 1 (unaffected on a critical success).

The pride demon gains a circumstance bonus to AC for 1 round equal to the number of weapons that it didn't attack with. If it uses any of those weapons to attack (including making an Attack of Opportunity), the bonus decreases by 1 for each weapon it used.

◆◆ Focused Assault The pride demon attacks a single target with all the weapons it wields, overwhelming the target with multiple attacks and leaving nowhere to dodge. The demon makes a longsword Strike. On a successful attack, it deals its longsword damage to the target, plus 1d8 additional damage for every longsword it wields beyond the first (typically 5d8 extra). Even on a failed attack, the pride demon deals the damage from one longsword to the target, though it still misses completely on a critical failure. This counts toward the pride demon's multiple attack penalty as a number of attacks equal to the number of longswords the pride demon wields.

Infuse Weapons (divine, evocation) Any weapon a pride demon wields is treated as a +2 weapon made of cold iron and silver. Damage from the pride demon's weapon Strikes also triggers any weakness to chaos or evil the target has.

◆ Greater Constrict 20 bludgeoning, DC 35

◆◆ Sextuple Strike The pride demon makes six longsword Strikes, each against a different target. These attacks count toward the pride demon's multiple attack penalty, but the multiple attack penalty doesn't increase until after it makes all its attacks.

◆ Horn Snare

Trigger A creature misses the slaver demon with a melee weapon Strike.

Effect The slaver demon attempts to Disarm the weapon used in the triggering Strike at a -2 penalty. Because it uses its horns, the slaver demon doesn't need a free hand, and if the result is a success, it is instead a critical success.

◆ Enslave Soul (arcane, enchantment, mental) The slaver demon attempts to enslave the soul of a living creature within 60 feet. The target can resist this enslavement with a successful DC 25 Will save. On a failure, the target is enfeebled 2 for 24 hours or until the slaver demon is slain, whichever comes first; on a critical failure, it also suffers the effects of a failure against dominate. On a successful save, the target is bolstered.

If a slaver demon kills a creature whose soul it has enslaved, the demon regains 20 HP and the slain foe's soul is enslaved to a life of toil in the Abyss, adding to the slaver demon's tally of souls.

A slaver demon can have only one living soul enslaved with this ability at a time, and no more than one slaver demon can enslave the same soul.

SLIME DEMON (OMOX)

Slime demons are amorphous fiends made of churning sewage. They revel in despoiling waters and guarding already corrupted bodies of water. Omox demons form from souls who took great pleasure in desecrating purity.

◆ Liquid Leap (concentrate, conjuration, teleportation) The slime demon transports itself from its current space to any clear space within range that it can see, as long as both spaces are within a liquid.

◆ Smother A slime demon can flow over a creature it has grabbed, coating it in acidic slime which covers the creature's face and oozes down its throat. The creature must hold its breath and is blind; succeeding at a DC 28 Fortitude save negates both effects. Otherwise, this effect lasts as long as the slime demon continues to Grab the creature.

Slime Trap A creature struck by the slime demon's slime attack is coated in the sticky substance, becoming entangled for 1d6 rounds unless it succeeds at a DC 28 Reflex save. On a critical failure, that creature is also immobilized. If the creature or its allies spend a total of six Interact actions, they can scrape off the slime before the duration expires.

◆◆◆ Dance of Ruin (arcane, evocation, manipulate) The wrath demon dances to create a ruinous explosion of electricity. The wrath demon can choose to delay the dance to allow up to three additional wrath demons within 30 feet to join in; in that case, the explosion occurs after the last wrath demon uses Dance of Ruin or one of the dancers chooses to unleash the effects of the dance. When the dance is completed, all nondemon creatures in a 20-foot aura of any of the dancers take 2d12 electricity damage (Reflex DC 23 half, double damage on a critical failure, no damage on a critical success). For each additional wrath demon that joins, the damage increases by 1d12 and the DC of the save increases by 1 (to a maximum of 5d12 damage and a DC 27 save with four wrath demons). The wrath demons can continue dancing for up to two additional rounds by using Dance of Ruin on consecutive rounds, increasing the aura by 20 feet each round and the damage by an additional 1d12 per wrath demon each round (to a maximum of four wrath demons dealing 13d12 damage on the third round).

◆ Spore Cloud (disease, poison) The wrath demon releases a cloud of spores from its body, dealing 2d8 poison damage to all adjacent creatures. Each damaged creature must succeed at a DC 23 Fortitude save or take 1d12 persistent piercing damage as the spores implant in its skin and grow into thick, green vines. The vines cease growing after 10 rounds, and wither away in 1d4 days if not removed before then. The vines can be destroyed if the creature is affected by a good spell or if holy water is applied to the vines with an Interact action. Once the wrath demon uses Spore Cloud, its spores are depleted for 1d6 rounds.

◆ Screech (auditory, sonic)

Frequency Once per hour

Effect The wrath demon emits a shrill screech. All nondemon creatures within a 30-foot aura must attempt a DC 23 Fortitude save. On a failure, the creature is slowed 2 for 1 round; on a critical failure, it's stunned for 1 round.

DEVASTATOR

Devastators are created by demonic crafters to fight for the hordes of the Abyss against angelic choirs and other good celestials. The ritual to animate these massive machines of destruction requires the battered and corrupted body of an angel or other powerful good outsider.

◆ Frightful Strike (divine, emotion, enchantment, fear, mental)
Trigger The barbed devil hits a creature with a claw Strike.

Effect The creature must succeed at a DC 23 Will save or be frightened 2 (or frightened 3 on a critical failure). Regardless of whether it succeeds, the creature is bolstered.

◆◆ Impaling Strike The barbed devil makes a barb Strike, then Strides up to half its Speed without triggering reactions. If the Strike hits, the barbed devil impales the target with one of its barbs and snaps the barb free. This deals an additional 2d8 piercing damage and pins the target to an adjacent surface, rendering it immobile. The target creature can use an action to attempt a DC 24 Athletics check; on a success it pulls the barb free.

Warden of Erebus A barbed devil's glyph of warding innate spell can contain any common spell from the Pathfinder Playtest Rulebook that meets glyph of warding's requirements; the barbed devil doesn't need to provide the spell.

Angel's Blood (emotion) Whether or not she arose from a fallen celestial, a fury devil's form is a mockery of an angel's, and she relishes her own body's harm. As long as she's taking persistent bleed damage, the fury devil gains a +2 conditional bonus to damage rolls and is accelerated 10.

Flames of Fury Any weapon a fury devil holds gains the effects of a flaming rune.

◆◆ Furious Fusillade The fury devil fires one arrow at each creature she chooses in a 30-foot cone. She makes each attack roll separately. This counts as one attack for the purpose of her multiple attack penalty.

Rope Snare A fury devil carries a coil of nonmagical rope that animates in her hands. When a creature is hit by the fury devil's rope, a segment of the rope tears loose and entangles the creature (Escape DC 22). The piece that tears off is 10 feet long

◆ Chain of Malebolge (attack)

Requirement The horned devil hit a creature with its spiked chain on its most recent action this turn.

Effect The devil pulls the creature it hit 5 feet closer to itself and Grabs it with the spiked chain. To free itself, the creature can Escape (DC 40) or use an action to attempt an Athletics check (DC 40). The creature is automatically freed if the devil makes another attack with its spiked chain or moves away.

Infernal Wound (divine, necromancy) A tail wound caused by a horned devil also deals 2d6 persistent bleed damage that's difficult to heal. The flat check DC starts out at 21 and drops to 16 if the bleeding creature or an ally successfully Aids with the recovery.

The DC for applying first aid to a creature with an infernal wound is increased by 2. A caster or item attempting to use healing magic on a creature suffering effects of an infernal wound must succeed at a DC 36 spell roll or the magic fails to heal the wounded creature.

◆◆ Maul The horned devil makes one jaws Strike, one tail Strike, and one claw Strike in any order, all against the same creature. The multiple attack penalty applies normally.

Stunning Chain If the result of the horned devil's Strike with its spiked chain is a critical hit, the target must succeed at a DC 34 Fortitude save or be stunned for 1 round (1d4 rounds on a critical failure).

Slowing Frost (cold) The ice devil channels the extreme cold of its body through its appendages and weapons. A creature hit by an ice devil's weapon or unarmed attack in melee must attempt a DC 29 Fortitude save or be slowed 1 for 1d4 rounds. A weapon used by an ice devil permanently gains the effects of a frost rune after extended exposure to this ability, and the ice devil can throw any such weapon with a 20 foot range increment, trailing motes of frost.

- ◆ Tactician of Cocytus (concentrate) An ice devil's logical mind devises genius tactics from its perfect memory. It can telepathically send a tactical repositioning to its allies, allowing all commanded or allied evil creatures in the range of its telepathy to Stride (or Fly, Swim, Climb, or Burrow if the creature has one of those speeds).

IMP

Imps have a knack for deceiving and manipulating other creatures, and are often found on the Material Plane serving as powerful familiars to evil spellcasters. Imps typically have red skin, bat wings, and small frames with a long barbed tail that can deliver a debilitating poison with its strikes.

Effect The imp offers a non-fiend within 15 feet a bargain, granting a boon of good luck for 1 hour if the creature accepts. If the creature dies while the boon is in place, its soul travels to Hell, where it is bound for eternity and unable to be raised or resurrected by any means short of miracle or similarly powerful magic. One time during the hour, the creature that accepts this boon can roll twice on an attack roll or saving throw and take the higher result.

Subservience Lemures have little drive of their own, but other devils can take command of them. A non-lemure devil can issue a command to all lemures within 60 feet of it with an action (this action has the auditory and concentrate traits). The devil picks one of the following orders lemures can understand, causing all lemures who hear it to do as instructed. The command and its effects end once the commander is out of sight of the lemure, a new command is issued by the same or another devil, or the lemure dies.

Kill The lemure attacks one target the commander chooses and gains a +1 circumstance bonus to attack rolls against the target.

Defend The lemure circles nears the commander and attacks anyone who approaches. The lemure gains a +1 circumstance bonus to AC and saves.

Fetch The lemure is accelerated 10 and attempts to retrieve an object or creature the commander chooses. The lemure attacks anyone or anything that gets in the way.

Work The lemure performs tasks dictated by the commander.

SHAPE DEVILS

RARE RITUAL 10

Transmutation Casting Between 1 and 9 days

Cost a number of lemures

Proficiency Master Religion

Requirements You must be a pit fiend.

You reshape a number of pathetic lemures into one or more higher-level devils to swell Hell's legions. You can shape 100 lemures into devils per day, and can cast the ritual for up to 9 days to shape a maximum of 900 lemures' worth of devils.

DEVIL SHAPING

Devil Level	Number of Lemures
9-10	16
11-12	32
13-14	64
15-16	128
17-18	256
19-20	512

Most devils you shape are in thrall to you, and follow your orders. However, if you shape a pit fiend or any other level 20 devil, it's independent of your control. Few pit fiends choose to do this.

Success You shape the lemures into the desired number of higher-level devils.

Critical Success You shape devils more quickly, reshaping double the normal number of lemures allowed each day, assuming you have enough lemures.

Failure You shape half the normal number of devils allowed each day (for a maximum of 450, preventing you from shaping a 19th-level or 20th-level devil at all).

Critical Failure You fail to shape any devils, and draw the ire of an archdevil for your failure.

Commander's Aura (aura, divine, enchantment) 100 feet. Commanded or allied evil creatures of lower level than the pit fiend within the aura gain a +1 circumstance bonus to attack rolls, damage rolls, AC, saves, and skill checks.

Frightful Presence (aura, divine, emotion, enchantment, fear, mental) 20 feet, DC 38

◆ Attack of Opportunity

Disruptive In addition to its normal triggers, the pit fiend's Attack of Opportunity can also be used when a creature within the pit fiend's reach uses an action with the concentrate trait. Furthermore, the pit fiend doesn't take the normal -2 penalty when it makes an Attack of Opportunity.

◆ Melee horns +21 (reach 10 feet), Damage 2d8+6 piercing

Arcane Innate Spells DC 26; At Will darkness

◆◆ Breath Weapon (acid, arcane, evocation) The dragon breathes a spray of acid that deals 12d6 acid damage to all creatures in an 80-foot line (Reflex DC 26 half, double damage on a critical failure, no damage on a critical success). It can't use Breath Weapon again for 1d4 rounds.

◆ Corrupt Water (arcane, concentrate, necromancy)

Frequency Once per day

Effect The dragon permanently befouls 10 cubic feet of liquid within 90 feet. The liquid becomes undrinkable and unable to support water-breathing life. This destroys liquid magic or alchemical items if they're of a lower level than the dragon (a creature can attempt a DC 24 Will save to protect liquids in its possession). This doesn't affect the liquids in a creature's body.

◆◆ Draconic Frenzy The dragon makes two claw Strikes and one horns Strike in any order.

Draconic Momentum When the dragon scores a critical hit with a Strike, it recharges its Breath Weapon.

CHANGE SHAPE

Some dragons can take humanoid form, allowing them to infiltrate settlements or mislead others to their true nature. They gain the following ability:

◆ Change Shape (concentrate, divine, polymorph, transmutation) The dragon can take on the appearance of any Small or Medium humanoid. This doesn't change its Speed or attack and damage bonuses with its Strikes, but might change the damage type its Strikes deal (typically to bludgeoning).

◆ Wing Deflection

Trigger The dragon is targeted with an attack.

Effect The dragon raises its wing, gaining a +2 circumstance bonus to AC against the triggering attack. If the dragon is flying at the time it is attacked, it descends 10 feet after the attack is complete.

Speed 30 feet, burrow 15 feet, fly 100 feet

◆ Melee jaws +19 (reach 10 feet), Damage 2d10+10 piercing plus 1d12 electricity

◆ Melee claw +19 (agile), Damage 2d8+10 slashing

◆ Melee tail +19 (reach 10 feet), Damage 2d8+10 bludgeoning

◆ Melee horns +18 (reach 10 feet), Damage 2d8+5 piercing

Arcane Innate Spells DC 23; At Will create water (see desert thirst); Cantrips (4th) ghost sound

◆◆ Breath Weapon (arcane, electricity, evocation) The dragon breathes lightning that deals 6d12 electricity damage to all creatures in an 80-foot line (Reflex DC 23 half, double damage on a critical failure, no damage on a critical success). It can't use Breath Weapon again for 1d4 rounds.

Desert Thirst (arcane, transmutation) When casting create water, the dragon can attempt to destroy liquid instead of creating it, turning an equal amount of liquid into sand. This destroys liquid magic or alchemical items if they're of a lower level than the dragon (a creature can attempt a DC 21 Will save to protect all liquids in its possession). This doesn't affect the liquids in a creature's body.

Each time the dragon uses its Breath Weapon, a miniature storm cloud with a 20-foot radius appears 80 feet above a point of the dragon's choosing along the Breath Weapon's path. Clouds last for 10 minutes, and allow the dragon to use Storm Breath.

Desert Thirst (arcane, transmutation) As young blue dragon, but DC 34.

◆◆ Draconic Frenzy The dragon makes two claw Strikes and one horns Strike in any order.

Draconic Momentum When the dragon scores a critical hit with a Strike, it recharges its Breath Weapon.

◆ Storm Breath (arcane, concentrate, electricity, evocation)

Requirement A storm cloud created by the dragon's breath is within 500 feet, and the dragon can see the cloud.

Frequency Once per round

Effect The dragon calls down a lightning bolt from a storm cloud created by its Breath Weapon. This creates a vertical line of lightning to the ground that deals 6d12 electricity damage to all enemies in its path (Reflex DC 36 half, double damage on a critical failure, no damage on a critical success).

Mirage Whenever the dragon uses its Breath Weapon while the illusory image from its innate project image spell persists, it can cause the Breath Weapon to originate from itself or the image.

Draconic Momentum When the dragon scores a critical hit with a Strike, it recharges its Breath Weapon.

◆ Manipulate Flames (arcane, concentrate, transmutation) The red dragon takes control of a magical fire or a fire spell within 100 feet. If it succeeds at its check to dispel (+21, counteract level 10), the original caster loses control of the spell or magic fire, control is transferred to the dragon, and the dragon counts as having Concentrated on the Spell, if applicable. On a success, the dragon can instead choose to dispel the fire magic.

Tree Dependent A dryad must remain within 300 feet of the single, enormous tree to which it is bonded, or it becomes sick 1 and is unable to recover. The dryad must succeed at a DC 17 Fortitude save every hour or increase the sick value by 1 (to a maximum of sick 4). After 24 hours beyond the range of its tree, it becomes drained 1, with this value increasing by 1 for every additional 24-hour period. A dryad can perform a 24-hour ritual to bond itself to a new tree. Most dryads are mystically bonded to oak trees.

◆◆ Tree Meld (primal, transmutation) The dryad touches an adjacent tree of enough volume to contain it, and merges into the tree indefinitely. It can cast spells while inside as long as they don't require it to have line of effect outside the tree, and it can hear, but not see, what's going on outside the tree.

Significant physical damage to the tree while the dryad is inside expels the dryad and deals 3d6 damage to it. Passwall expels the dryad without dealing damage and dismisses Tree Meld. The dryad can dismiss this effect with the Verbal Casting action.

If a dryad uses this ability on its bonded tree, it instead enters an extradimensional living space within the tree, and this ability gains the extradimensional space trait. A dryad can bring one other creature with it when entering its home within its bonded tree.

ELEMENTAL, EARTH

Stubborn and ponderous, earth elementals are beings of living rock and dirt from the Plane of Earth. They are often called to the Material Plane by conjurers and druids as defense, but some slip through where barriers between the planes are thin.

Each brain controls one of the ettin's arms, and tracks its multiple attack penalty separately. Any ability that would sever an ettin's head (such as a vorpal sword) instead severs one of its heads at random. Losing a head doesn't cause the ettin to die, but does cause it to lose the actions and reaction of that head.

GARGOYLE

These winged creatures have a stony hide and can perch in place for long periods of time, where many mistake them for a decorative statue. Treacherous and petty, many gargoyles are loners, though some gather in small groups for a time. If they reside in a city long enough, their forms shift slightly to resemble the local architecture.

GELATINOUS CUBE

Found underground or in dungeons, these massive, quivering cubes of slime continuously scour their domain for food. While their bodies contain acid, it's weak enough that many gelatinous cubes contain the gear of their previous victims.

◆◆ Engulf A creature Engulfed by the gelatinous cube must also save against paralysis. DC 17, 2d6 acid, escape DC 16, toughness 7

Paralysis A creature Engulfed by the cube or hit by its attack is paralyzed unless it succeeds at a DC 17 Fortitude save. Once paralyzed, it can attempt a new save at the end of each of its turns to recover.

Weak Acid A gelatinous cube's acid damages only organic material—not metal, stone, or other inorganic materials.

GENIE

Genies are closely tied to the Elemental Planes, and some of the more powerful ones can grant wishes.

There is a type of genie for each Elemental Plane, and the weakest of geniekind, the janni, are formed out of all four elements. Only two of the five types of genies are presented here: the janni and the fiery efreeti.

ABILITY GLOSSARY

CATCHING AND THROWING ROCKS

Giants have an inborn ability to catch and hurl rocks. All giants can wrench stones from the ground to throw them, and many carry sacks of rocks to heave at their enemies. The Catch Rocks reaction and the Rock Throwing ability work as follows, and might be modified for each individual giant. The damage from a thrown rock appears in the giant's ranged Strike entry.

◆ Catch Rock

Trigger The giant is targeted with a thrown rock attack, or a rock would fall on the giant.

Effect The giant can attempt a DC 20 Acrobatics or Athletics check. On a success, it safely catches the rock, takes no damage, and is now holding the rock. On a failure, the giant takes half damage. On a critical failure, the giant takes full damage. The giant must have a free hand to catch a rock, but can release anything it's holding in that hand as part of this reaction.

Rock Throwing A giant can pick up a rock or take out one from its sack (if it has one) and throw it using a single Strike action.

out a 15-foot cone of freezing moisture that quickly condenses into a coating of ice crystals. Any creature in the cone must succeed at a DC 23 Reflex save or take 2d6 cold damage (half damage on a success, no damage on a critical success, double damage on a critical failure). A creature that fails its save is also entangled and takes 2d6 cold damage at the end of each of its turns until it gets free (Escape DC 23). The giant can't use Chill Breath again for 1d4 rounds.

Ice Stride A frost giant isn't impeded by difficult terrain caused by snow or ice, nor does it need to make Acrobatics checks to keep from falling on slippery ice.

Rock Throwing See the sidebar above.

◆ Wide Swing The giant makes a greataxe Strike and compares the attack roll to the ACs of up to two foes, each of whom must be within its melee reach. The giant rolls damage only once, and applies it to each creature hit. If it critically hits one target and not the other, it rolls the extra critical hit damage separately. A Wide Swing counts as two attacks for the giant's multiple attack penalty.

HILL GIANT

◆ Invoke Rune (arcane, concentrate, electricity, evocation) The rune giant invokes one of the runes on its body, causing the rune to spray forth a 30-foot cone of sparks that deals 6d12 electricity damage to all creatures in the cone (Reflex DC 34 half, no damage on a critical success).

A glowing copy of the invoked rune appears on a single weapon the giant holds, granting the weapon one effect listed below of the giant's choice. The giant can't use Invoke Rune again for 1d4 rounds. The effect on the weapon lasts for 1 minute. If the giant places a new rune on a weapon, any previous rune on it wears off immediately.

- Rune of Destruction The weapon gains the deadly trait with three dice of the same die size as the weapon, and any armor worn by a creature hit with the weapon takes 1 Dent (a second Dent causes it to become broken) unless the creature succeeds at a DC 32 Fortitude save.
- Rune of Flames The weapon deals an additional 2d6 fire damage on all attacks.
- Rune of Smiting When the weapon hits, the giant pushes the target back 10 feet.

Command Giants When a rune giant casts a mental spell against a giant, the rune giant gains a +4 circumstance bonus to the spell roll or spell DC.

◆ Demand (arcane, enchantment, mental) When a rune giant casts its innate sending, it can also send a suggestion to the recipient of the message (with the normal DC).

◆ Flashing Rune (arcane, evocation, light)

Trigger The rune giant uses an arcane ability or casts an arcane spell.

Effect The runes on the giant's body flash as they produce magical energy. Each creature within a 10-foot aura must succeed at a DC 32 Fortitude save or become blinded for 1 round. On a success, the creature is dazzled for 1 round (or unaffected on a critical success).

Immunity to Magic The adamantine golem is immune to spells and magical abilities other than its own, though certain spells bypass this immunity.

- Harmed by Acid Any acid magic that targets the adamantine golem causes it to take 10d10 damage instead of the usual effect. If the golem starts its turn in the area of acid magic, it takes 3d10 damage.
- Healed by Fire Any fire magic that targets the golem makes the golem lose the slowed condition and gain HP equal to half the fire damage the spell would have dealt. If the golem starts its turn in the area of fire magic, it regains 2d10 HP.
- Slowed by Electricity Any electricity magic that targets the adamantine golem causes it to be slowed 1 for 2d6 rounds instead of the usual effect. If the golem starts its turn in the area of electricity magic, it's slowed 1 for that round.
- Vulnerable to Dispelling The golem can be targeted by disjunction and dispel magic. If targeted by such a spell of 9th level or higher, the golem has its resistance to physical damage lowered to 15 and is slowed 1 (or slowed 2 if in repair mode) for 1d4 rounds. During this time, if the golem is reduced to 0 HP while already in repair mode, it is destroyed.

Repair Mode When the adamantine golem is at 0 HP, it isn't destroyed. Instead, it enters repair mode, during which it is slowed 1, can't take reactions, and can take only the Self-Repair action. Once it has more than 30 HP again, it can use any type of action and can use reactions, though it remains slowed 1 until the start of its next turn. If a critical hit with an adamantine vorpal weapon reduces the golem to 0 HP, or hits it while it's already at 0 HP, the golem is destroyed.

Speed 30 feet

◆ Melee fist +31 (reach 15 feet), Damage 3d10+16 bludgeoning plus destructive strike

Destructive Strike An adamantine golem's Strike both damages the target and dents the target's armor. If the target has a shield raised, the shield takes the Dent instead of the armor. On a critical hit, the armor or shield takes 2 Dents instead.

◆ Inexorable March The adamantine golem Strides up to its Speed, pushing back and damaging each creature whose space it moves into. A creature can bar the way by succeeding at a Fortitude save against the adamantine golem's Athletics DC (42). Regardless of success or failure, the creature is damaged and its armor is dented as if hit by the adamantine golem's fist (though on a critical success, the creature takes no damage and its armor takes no Dent).

◆ Self-Repair (manipulate) The adamantine golem repairs itself, regaining 30 Hit Points.

◆◆ Vent (fire) The golem vents a 30-foot cone of superheated steam from its internal forge. This deals 19d6 fire damage to all creatures in the cone (Reflex DC 34 half, no damage on critical success). The forge can't be vented again for 1d6 rounds.

◆ Betraying Touch The hag touches a creature that doesn't realize she's an enemy, exposing the creature to enfeeblement. The betrayed creature takes a -4 circumstance penalty to its save against enfeeblement.

◆ Change Shape (arcane, concentrate, polymorph, transmutation) A green hag can take on the appearance of any Medium female humanoid. This doesn't change her Speed or her attack and damage bonuses with her Strikes, but might change the damage type her Strikes deal (typically to bludgeoning, if her new form lacks claws).

Enfeeblement (arcane, necromancy) A creature damaged by a hag's claw must succeed at a DC 19 Fortitude save or become enfeebled 1 for 1 day. On a critical failure, or if the creature is hit again and fails a second time, the creature is instead enfeebled 2 for 1 day.

◆◆ Enfeebling Blight (arcane, necromancy) The hag unleashes a foul miasma. Each living creature in a 15-foot cone is affected by her enfeeblement ability (attempting a save as normal). She can't use Enfeebling Blight again for 1d4 rounds.

NIGHT HAG

These terrifying hags make their homes on the Ethereal Plane, where they attempt to pilfer souls on their way to the afterlife. Night hags prey upon mortals in their dreams, debilitating them as they rest; many victims die unaware that a night hag had them in her clutches.

ABILITY GLOSSARY

CREATURE AND HAZARD TRAITS

A head that is not completely severed returns to full HP at the end of any creature's turn.

Once the hydra's head has been severed, the hydra can regrow it using hydra regeneration. A creature can prevent this regrowth by dealing any acid or fire damage to the remaining stump, cauterizing it. Single-target acid or fire attacks need to be directed at a stump, but splash damage and areas covering the hydra's whole space cauterize all stumps if they deal acid or fire damage. If the attack that severs a head deals any acid or fire damage, the stump is cauterized instantly.

Hydra Regeneration The hydra has regeneration equal to 5 per head it has. If a hydra's head is severed and the remaining stump is not cauterized, the hydra attempts a DC 27 Fortitude save after it regains its HP from regeneration. On a success, one uncauterized stump regrows into two heads; on a critical success, two uncauterized stumps regrow into two heads each. The hydra can never grow more than double the number of heads it ordinarily has. The hydra's regeneration only fully deactivates if all its heads are severed and all stumps are cauterized.

Multiple Opportunities The hydra gains an extra reaction per round for each of its heads beyond the first, which it can use only to make Attacks of Opportunity. It can't use more than one reaction on the same triggering action, even if a creature leaves several squares in its reach, and the hydra must use a different head for each Attack of Opportunity. Whenever one of the hydra's heads is severed, the hydra loses one of its extra reactions per round.

Speed 25 feet, swim 25 feet

❖ Melee fangs +15 (reach 10 feet), Damage 2d6+6 piercing

❖❖ Focused Assault The hydra attacks a single target with its heads, overwhelming it with multiple attacks and leaving almost nowhere to dodge. The hydra Strikes with its fangs. On a successful attack, the hydra deals the damage from its fangs Strike to the target, plus an additional 1d6 damage for every head beyond the first. Even on a failed attack, the hydra deals the damage from one fangs Strike to the target creature, though it still misses completely on a critical failure. This counts toward the hydra's multiple attack penalty as a number of attacks equal to the number of heads the hydra has.

❖❖ Storm of Jaws The hydra makes a Strike with each of its heads, each against a different target. These attacks count toward the hydra's multiple attack penalty, and the multiple attack penalty doesn't increase until after the hydra makes all its attacks.

- ◆ Illusory Retreat (arcane, illusion, manipulate, move)
Requirement The dragon mage is adjacent to at least one enemy.
Effect The dragon mage spends two Somatic Casting actions to create an illusion of itself in its square and to turn itself invisible (as 2nd-level invisibility) for 1d4 rounds. As part of the second Somatic Casting action, the dragon mage can move up to half its Speed, but must end its move in a space that's not adjacent to any enemies.
- Sneak Attack (precision) The dragon mage deals 1d6 extra precision damage to flat-footed creatures.

Altered Weather (aura, evocation, primal) A kraken reshapes the weather within 2 miles of it. This has the same effects as the control weather ritual, but is centered on the kraken and alters the weather depending on the kraken's emotional state. When the kraken's mood shifts, it takes between 30 seconds and 30 minutes for the weather to change. If the kraken dies, the weather returns to normal immediately.

- ◆ Double Attack (attack) The kraken makes two Strikes with different arms or tentacles as a single action. Each Strike must target a different creature. This counts as two attacks for the kraken's multiple attack penalty, and the penalty doesn't increase until after both attacks. If the kraken subsequently takes the Grab action, it Grabs any number of creatures it hits with this action.

- ◆ Ink Cloud The kraken emits a cloud of black, venomous ink in an 80-foot-radius burst centered on it. This cloud has no effect outside water. Anyone inside the ink cloud is unseen and is exposed to kraken ink poison. The cloud dissipates after 1 minute. After making an ink cloud, a kraken can't use Ink Cloud again for 2d6 rounds.
- ◆ Jet The kraken Swims up to 280 feet in a straight line without triggering reactions.
- ◆ Kraken Constrict The kraken deals 12 bludgeoning damage to each creature grabbed or restrained by it. Any of those creatures that is holding its breath must succeed at a DC 36 Fortitude save or lose 1d6 actions worth of air.
- Kraken Ink (poison) Krakens are immune to this poison. Saving Throw Fortitude DC 36; Maximum Duration 10 rounds; Stage 1 2d6 poison and sick 1 (1 round); Stage 2 2d6 poison, sick 1, and slowed 1 (1 round).

◆◆ Rend Ship

Requirements A ship of the kraken's size or smaller is within reach of the kraken's arms, and the kraken has four arms free.

Effect The kraken uses four tentacles in an attempt to Grab the ship. To Grab the ship, the kraken must succeed at an DC 28 Athletics check, or the pilot's Sailing Lore DC, whichever is higher. If the kraken succeeds, the ship is grabbed and the kraken slowly compresses and damages it—at the end of each of the kraken's turns while it has the ship grabbed, the ship takes 1 Dent. The ship's captain can attempt a Sailing Lore check against the kraken's Athletics DC (normally 42) to escape the grab. The kraken does not need to continue to use Rend Ship every turn to inflict these Dents on the ship.

- ◆ Reposition The kraken moves a creature it's grabbing or restraining up to 20 feet to another position within the grabbing appendage's reach. If the creature is within reach of the kraken's beak after this movement, the kraken can make a beak Strike against it as part of this action.

- Entangling Bolas The Leng spider's bolas wraps around its target, causing it to become it entangled (Escape DC 28).
- ◆ Lay Web Trap (manipulate) The Leng spider spins a web within 20 feet of itself to create a 10-foot-by-10-foot web trap. This trap stays viable for 1 week, after which it decays into uselessness. A Leng spider can create four web traps per day. When a creature enters a square of the web trap, the trap uses a reaction with the following effect: The creature must succeed at a DC 30 Reflex save or become grabbed by the web. The DC to Escape is equal to the Leng spider's Crafting DC at the time the trap was created (typically 33). The trap is destroyed if it takes 25 fire damage.

Trigger A creature casts a spell the lich has prepared.

Effect The lich expends a prepared spell to counter the triggering creature's casting of that same spell. It can then attempt to dispel the triggering spell.

Paralyzing Touch (arcane, curse, necromancy) A creature damaged by the lich's touch must attempt a DC 28 Fortitude save. On a success, the creature is slowed 1 for 1 round. On a failure, the creature is paralyzed for 1 round; on a critical failure, the creature is paralyzed permanently, falls prone, and appears to be dead, though a creature who succeeds at a DC 25 Medicine check recognizes the victim is alive.

- ◆ Phylactery Bond Once per day, a lich can tap into its phylactery's power to cast any arcane spell of 6th level or lower from the Pathfinder Playtest Rulebook, even if it's not one of its normal arcane spells. If it does so and is destroyed on the same day, its body takes 1d10+2 days to rebuild instead of 1d10 days. The phylactery doesn't need to be present for the lich to use this ability.

Steady Spellcasting A lich's spells are disrupted by reactions only it takes 25 or more damage.

PHYLACTERY

LICH'S PHYLACTERY UNCOMMON ITEM 12

Arcane Necromancy Negative	Price 1,500 gp Method of Use held, 1 hand; Bulk – This item is crafted by a spellcaster who wishes to become a lich, and serves to return the lich to unlife if the lich is slain. When a lich's soul flees to its phylactery, the phylactery rebuilds the lich's undead body over the course of 1d10 days. Then, the lich returns fully healed in its new body (but lacking any gear it had on its old body). If the body is destroyed, the phylactery just starts the process anew. The phylactery must be destroyed to prevent a lich from returning.

ABILITY GLOSSARY

CREATURE AND HAZARD TRAITS

A typical phylactery is a sealed metal box containing strips of parchment on which magical phrases have been transcribed. This box has a hardness of at least 30, but some liches devise even more impregnable or unattainable phylacteries. A lich may also craft its phylactery from a ring, amulet, or similar item.

DEMILICH

The floating skull called a demilich forms from the degenerate remains of a lich. This happens after a lich's phylactery has been destroyed or has failed in some other way, but the lich is too complacent after vast centuries of undeath to create a new one. Without the phylactery to sustain it, the lich wastes away in body and mind. As the lich loses its autonomy, its magic items become part of it and its knowledge of spells twists. The curse of undeath overwhelms all the former lich's higher ideals. Over time, negative energy is drawn to the powerful undead, crystallizing into black gemstones of blight quartz that form its teeth. A demilich lies in torpor most of the time, but when the living draw near, an aching hunger for souls rouses the creature.

Telekinetic Storm (arcane, aura, evocation) 20 feet. This aura activates when the demilich leaves its torpor; telekinetically whipping loose debris into a whirling storm. This obscures vision, causing any creature in the area to become concealed, and causing creatures in the area to treat all creatures as concealed. Any creature other than the demilich that enters or begins its turn in the telekinetic storm takes 2d12 bludgeoning damage.

◆ Contingency A demilich has one permanent 8th-level contingency spell in effect with one of its other innate spells as the companion spell—typically dimension door.

Trigger While the lich is in torpor, a creature disturbs the demilich's remains, disturbs its treasure, casts a spell that targets the demilich, or would cause the demilich to come into the area of a spell.

Effect The demilich leaves its torpor, rolls initiative, and gains the benefit of its contingency's companion spell.

◆ Countermeasures

Trigger The demilich's turn begins.

Effect The demilich casts blink, fly, spell turning, or true seeing on itself. It usually chooses spell turning unless it already has that spell in effect.

Speed fly 30 feet (from fly)

◆ Melee jaws +26 (reach 0 feet), Damage 1d6-3 piercing plus 2d6 negative

Arcane Innate Spells DC 32, attack +28; Constant fly, true seeing; 9th wail of the banshee; At Will blink, dimension door, spell turning, telekinetic maneuver; Cantrips (8th) mage hand, telekinetic projectile

◆ Devour Soul (arcane, necromancy, negative)

Requirement A soul has been trapped in one of the demilich's blight quartz gems for 24 hours.

Effect The demilich consumes the soul. The soul is utterly destroyed, and the demilich regains HP equal to double the creature's level.

Joined Items (arcane) As a lich becomes a demilich, some of its magic items bleed over into the substance of the creature itself. A demilich has 20 Resonance Points, which it can use to Activate these items (and to Trap Souls). It recovers all spent points after 8 hours spent in torpor. Many of the specific item abilities vary from demilich to demilich.

- Eye Gems (arcane) A demilich has eye gems that glow when the demilich is active. It can Activate an eye gem by spending Focus Activation actions equal to the number of spellcasting actions the spell requires. Each eye gem contains an 8th-level spell that targets one creature. Usually, one eye gem has maze and the other has polar ray. When the demilich casts a spell from an eye gem, that eye gem stops glowing for 1d4 rounds, during which time that eye gem's spell can't be used. Occasionally, one or both of the two eye gems can be harvested from a destroyed demilich as magic items.

- Staff Gems A demilich absorbs the spells from a single staff into gemstone nodules across its head, with larger nodules representing higher-level spells. It can cast any of the spells at a cost of 1 Resonance Point as though it were activating the staff and expending a spell slot of the appropriate level. A typical demilich has the spells from a staff of necromancy, but it could have those from another staff of 13th level or lower.

Mental Magic A demilich can replace Material and Somatic Casting actions with Verbal Casting, and can replace Operate Activation actions with Focus Activation. It does so by manipulating the magical parts of its skull, so any such Verbal Casting or Focus Activation actions also gain the manipulate trait.

◆ Trap Soul Ten black blight quartz gemstones on the demilich's skull can trap the souls of the living. The demilich can Activate each gem once per day with a Focus action to cast bind soul. This bind soul can target and affect a dying creature instead of a corpse. If it does, the dying creature must attempt a DC 32 Fortitude save. If it succeeds, it is enervated 2 instead of dying and having its soul trapped; if it critically succeeds, it is unaffected. The body of a creature whose soul is trapped rapidly turns to dust.

The gemstones function as the black sapphire used in bind soul, except they can hold creatures of up to level 17 despite having a value of 200 gp apiece. The demilich can Devour a Soul it has trapped for at least 24 hours.

EYE GEMS

A demilich's eye gems are magic items.

Activation ♦ Operate Activation or more

This glowing gem harvested from a demilich has an 8th-level spell magically bonded to it. Once per day, you can cast that spell by spending a number of Operate actions equal to the number of actions normally required to cast the spell. Once the spell is cast, the gem's glow goes out. After 24 hours, the gem's glow returns, and the spell can be used once again.

This item has the traits of the spell bonded to it.

◆ Object Lesson

Trigger A creature touches or physically interacts with the mimic while it is disguised.

Effect The triggering creature is automatically affected by the mimic's adhesive, and then the mimic makes a pseudopod Strike against any creature adjacent to the mimic. This reaction can't be used again until the mimic escapes and takes on a new disguise.

Speed 10 feet

- ◆ Melee pseudopod +11, Damage 2d8+4 bludgeoning plus adhesive
- ◆ Mimic Object (concentrate, polymorph) The mimic assumes the shape of any Medium object. It has an automatic result of 28 on Deception checks to Impersonate that object until it decides to act. This doesn't change the mimic's texture or overall size, but can alter its coloration and visual appearance.

MINOTAUR

These broad-shouldered, bull-headed humanoids hunt and stalk creatures that trespass in dungeons and labyrinths. Minotaurs are said to be the profane creations of the demon lord Baphomet, and they can sometimes be found in the employ of more powerful creatures.

Spores (aura) 60 feet. A living creature that enters the aura or ends its turn within it becomes corrupted by spores. It must succeed at a DC 40 Fortitude save or become enfeebled 1, slowed 1, and sluggish 1 for 1 round. Creatures with the plant or fungus trait are immune.

◆ Grasping Tendrils Sticky tendrils cover a mu spore's body.

Trigger A creature within 10 feet of the mu spore attacks the mu spore or moves.

Effect The spore automatically Grabs the triggering creature. There is no limit to how many creatures its tendrils can Grab.

◆◆ Enormous Inhalation The mu spore breathes in deeply, pulling all creatures and objects within a 400-foot cone to its maw. Creatures can attempt a DC 42 Athletics check to avoid being inhaled. The mu spore can't use this ability again for 1d4 rounds.

Success The creature is pulled adjacent to the mu spore and falls prone.

Critical Success The creature can choose to stay in place or move to any space directly closer to the mu spore.

Failure The creature is pulled to the mu spore's mouth and the mu spore immediately uses Swallow Whole on the creature.

◆ Greater Constrict 15 bludgeoning, DC 42

Massive Jaws The mu spore still deals 16 piercing damage if its jaws Strike is a failure (but not if the Strike is a critical failure).

◆◆ Spore Cough The mu spore releases a cloud of burrowing spores in a 400-foot cone. The spores deal 20d8 piercing damage to all creatures, objects, and unliving plant or fungal matter (such as a wooden structure), but not to living plants or fungi or to creatures with the plant or fungus trait (Reflex DC 44 half, no damage on a critical success, double damage on a critical failure). They can't naturally recover from this fear while in the aura. When a creature first enters the aura, it must succeed at a DC 21 Will save or become paralyzed with fear for 1d4 rounds. After a creature attempts this save, it's bolstered against the paralyzing effect of the aura.

Undead Mastery (aura, divine, necromancy) 100 feet. Commanded or allied undead in the aura that are of a lower level than the pharaoh gain a +1 circumstance bonus to AC, attack rolls, damage rolls, saves, and skill checks.

◆ Attack of Opportunity

Disruptive In addition to its normal triggers, the pharaoh's Attack of Opportunity can also be used when a creature within the pharaoh's reach uses an action with the concentrate trait. Furthermore, the pharaoh doesn't take the normal -2 penalty when it makes an Attack of Opportunity.

Rejuvenation (divine, necromancy) When a mummy pharaoh is destroyed, necromancy rebuilds its body in its tomb over 1d10 days. If the body is destroyed, the process starts anew. A mummy pharaoh can be permanently destroyed with a consecrate ritual.

Energy Drain (necromancy, occult) When a norn hits with her hand of fate or her shears, she regains 10 Hit Points and the target must succeed at a DC 34 Fortitude save or become enervated 1. On a critical failure, this condition cannot be removed normally, but only by magical treatment.

Fated When a creature is subject to a fortune or misfortune effect from a norn and a misfortune or fortune effect from a non-norn, the norn's effect automatically counteracts the other effect and then takes place normally, rather than the two effects canceling each other out. If both the fortune and misfortune effect are from a norn, then the two cancel each other out as normal. At the GM's discretion, powerful entities related to fate or luck, like Desna or Pharasma, may count as a norn for the purpose of this ability.

Shears (evocation, occult) Shears wielded by a norn function as a +5 keen mithral scimitar. They're expert quality and nonmagical when wielded by other creatures. ◆ Shift Fate (divination, fortune, misfortune, occult)

Trigger A creature within 120 feet rolls a saving throw. The norn can use this ability after the results of the saving throw are revealed.

Effect The creature rerolls the saving throw. If the creature is rerolling a successful saving throw, this is a misfortune effect. If the creature rerolls a failed saving throw, this is a fortune effect.

◆◆ Snip Thread (death, manipulate, necromancy, occult)

Frequency Three times per day

Effect The norn produces a golden thread linked to a creature's fate, then attempts to snip it short with her shears. The target must be within 120 feet. The target takes 100 damage (Fortitude DC 36 half, no damage on a critical success, double damage on a critical failure) and becomes bolstered. If the creature is reduced to 0 HP from this damage, the norn snips through the thread—the creature dies immediately and can't be restored to life except by miracle or similarly powerful magic, or by divine intervention. The norn can't use Snip Thread again for 1d4 rounds.

This doesn't change its Speed or attack and damage bonuses with its Strikes, but might change the damage type its Strikes deal (typically to bludgeoning, if its new form lacks claws).

◆ Impaling Push (move)

Requirement The fire yai must have hit with a piercing katana attack on its previous action.

Effect The fire yai deals 2d8 persistent bleed damage to the creature it hit on its previous action, then moves up to half its Speed in the direction of the creature, pushing the creature in the same direction. At the end of the movement, the fire yai can either withdraw its blade or leave its blade in the target to make the target grabbed. If it leaves its blade in the target, it is unable to attack with its katana while the target remains grabbed.

- ◆ Smoke Form (concentrate, primal, transmutation) The fire yai turns into a cloud of smoke. This functions as gaseous form, except any creature within the smoke must succeed at a DC 30 Fortitude save or become sick 2. After a creature has attempted this save, the creature is bolstered.

- ◆ Swipe The fire yai makes a melee attack against two foes that are adjacent to each other and within its reach. The fire yai rolls one attack roll and applies the result to each foe. If the roll is a critical success against both foes, the fire yai applies the critical to only one foe of its choice. This attack counts as one attack toward the fire yai's multiple attack penalty.

OTYUGH

This odd creature stands on three stumpy legs and has three tentacles, two with raspy barbs that it uses to grab objects and a third, sensory tentacle topped with a multitude of eyes. Otyughs live in sewers and underground areas full of fetid water, scouring their domains for food.

Stench (aura, olfactory) 40 feet. A creature entering the aura must succeed at a DC 16 Fortitude save or become sick 1 until the end of its next turn (plus slowed 1 on a critical failure for the same duration). While within the aura, creatures take a -2 circumstance penalty to saves against disease. A creature that saves is bolstered against the sick and slowed effects. An otyugh's stench is due to the offal and refuse that it wallows in, so thoroughly cleaning the creature (such as with create water and copious scrubbing) deactivates the aura.

Speed 20 feet

- ◆ Constrict 7 bludgeoning
- ◆ Reposition

Requirement The otyugh has one or two creatures grabbed in its tentacles.

Effect The otyugh attempts to reposition one or both grabbed creatures to other spaces within reach, rolling an Athletics check against their Fortitude DC. On a failure, the creature doesn't move but remains in place, and on a critical failure, the creature is no longer grabbed.

Filth Fever (disease) Sickness and unconsciousness from filth fever can't be recovered from naturally. Saving Throw Fortitude DC 17; Stage 1 carrier with no ill effect (1d4 hours), Stage 2 sick 1 (1 day), Stage 3 sick 1 and slowed 1 as long as it remains sick (1 day), Stage 4 unconscious (1 day), Stage 5 dead.

All creatures in an 80-foot radius must succeed at a DC 16 Will save. On a failure, the creature is frightened 2; on a critical failure, it's frightened 2 and fleeing for 1 round; on a success, it's frightened 1; and on a critical success, it's unaffected. If the creature damages the owlbear, it is immediately no longer frightened due to this ability. All creatures in the area become bolstered.
- ◆ Gnaw The owlbear can chew on a creature it has grabbed in an attempt to disembowel it so it can later feed its young by regurgitating its victim's guts. It makes a beak Strike against the creature. If it succeeds, the creature must also succeed at a DC 18 Will save or become sick 1 and slowed 1 until it's no longer sick. If it succeeds at the save, it's sick 1, and on a critical success it's unaffected.
- ◆ Screeching Advance (auditory, emotion, fear, mental) The owlbear charges forward, screeching. It makes a Bloodcurdling screech and Strides up to twice its Speed. All creatures within 80 feet of the owlbear at any point during its movement are within the area of its Bloodcurdling Screech.

While this aura is active, any adjacent creature who hits the phoenix with a melee attack takes 2d6 fire damage. The phoenix can activate or deactivate the aura by using an action (this action has the concentrate trait).

Self-Resurrection (healing, necromancy, primal)

Frequency Once per year

Effect When a phoenix dies, it collapses into a pile of smoldering ashes, returning to life fully healed as if brought back by a 7th-level resurrection 1d4 rounds later. Self-Resurrection can be used only if there are some remains to resurrect; for instance, a phoenix killed by a disintegrate spell can't return. ◆◆ Telekinetic Storm (attack, concentrate, evocation, occult)

The poltergeist telekinetically throws numerous small objects, such as dozens of pieces of silverware, either spreading them out among multiple foes or directing them at one target.

When spread out among multiple foes, the poltergeist makes a telekinetic object Strike at a -2 penalty against each creature within 30 feet. These count as one attack for the multiple attack penalty, and the penalty doesn't increase until after all the attacks.

When Telekinetic Storm is directed at a single target, the poltergeist makes a telekinetic object Strike against the target, with the damage increased to 4d6+4. It deals 8 damage even on a failure, but misses completely on a critical failure.

◆ Vanish (concentrate)

HP 350; Immunities inexorable

Inexorable A purple worm automatically recovers from any paralyzed, slowed, and stunned conditions at the end of its turn. It's also immune to being hampered or immobilized and ignores difficult terrain. Once per day, when a spell or ability causes the purple worm to be affected by a condition or become afflicted by some other negative effect (such as baleful polymorph), it can negate the effects to itself as a reaction. This doesn't cancel any hit point damage or prevent the spell or ability from affecting other creatures or the environment around it, nor does it prevent an ongoing effect from inflicting conditions on it later. This ability does not apply against effects from artifacts, deities, or a similarly powerful source.

◆ Melee body +24 (reach 15 feet), Damage 3d8+14 bludgeoning

◆ Fast Swallow

Trigger The purple worm Grabs a creature.

Effect The worm uses Swallow Whole.

Regurgitate A purple worm can violently regurgitate a creature or boulder it has swallowed to make a ranged Strike. The range increment and damage depend on the size of the creature or boulder. A creature regurgitated in this way takes falling damage from the height of the target or from 20 feet, whichever is greater. Boulders occupy space in a purple worm's stomach as a creature of equivalent size, and purple worms often have several boulders swallowed to assist with digestion and to use for this attack. Purple worms can spend an action to swallow a chunk of rock of a desired size from the ground.

◆◆ Thrash The purple worm Strikes once against each creature in its reach. It can Strike up to once with its jaws, Strike up to once with its stinger, and Strike any number of times with its body. Each attack takes a -2 circumstance penalty and counts toward the worm's multiple attack penalty, but the multiple attack penalty doesn't increase until after all the attacks.

RAKSHASA

Rakshasas are evil spirits that cloak themselves in the guises of humanoid creatures, that they might walk unseen among their prey. They embody what is taboo among most societies, and in the shape of those they seek to defile, rakshasas gorge themselves on these hideous acts. Rakshasas are humanoid in shape, but they have a tiger's head and backward-bending fingers on their hands.

It typically loses its fangs Strike unless the humanoid form has fangs or a similar unarmed attack.

◆ Disturbing Vision (arcane, concentrate, enchantment, mental) The rakshasa's eyes flash green as it projects a telepathic wave in a 30-foot aura. All creatures in the aura are assailed by a vision of evil decadence from one of the rakshasa's past lives. Red Cap (necromancy, primal) A redcap's woolen hat is dyed with the blood of its victims. If the redcap loses its cap, it no longer benefits from fast healing and takes a -4 conditional penalty to its damage rolls. It can create a new cap in 10 minutes, but that cap doesn't grant its powers until the redcap has turned it red with Blood Soak. A redcap's hat has no benefit for creatures other than redcaps.

Snack A roc gains a +2 circumstance bonus to hit with its beak Strike if the target is grabbed or restrained in its talon.

Snatch A roc can Fly at half Speed while it has a creature grabbed or restrained in either or both of its talons, carrying that creature along with it.

ROPER

Ropers lurk in the depths of the earth, patiently waiting

◆ Reactive Lash

Trigger A creature within reach of the roper's strand leaves a square during a move action it's taking.

Effect The roper makes a strand Strike at a -2 penalty against the triggering creature. This Strike doesn't count toward its multiple attack penalty, and its multiple attack penalty doesn't apply to this Strike.

Speed 10 feet

◆ Melee jaws +20, Damage 2d12+12 piercing

◆ Melee strand +20 touch (reach 50 feet), Effect sticky strand

◆ Extend Strands A roper extends six thin, sticky tendrils from its body, or retracts them back into its body. While they're extended, the roper takes a -4 circumstance penalty to Stealth checks, and while they're retracted, it can't use its strand Strikes.

◆◆ Flurry of Strands The roper makes a strand Strike with each of its strands (except those that are entangling creatures). Each attack must be against a different target. These attacks count toward the roper's multiple attack penalty, but its multiple attack penalty doesn't increase until after all the attacks.

◆ Pull the Strands The roper pulls every creature entangled by its strands toward itself. The roper attempts a single Athletics check against each entangled creature's Fortitude DC. On a success, the creature is pulled 25 feet closer to the roper; on a critical success, it's pulled 50 feet closer; on a failure, it's pulled 10 feet closer, and on a critical failure it's not pulled at all.

Sticky Strand Any creature hit by a roper's strand is enfeebled 1 and entangled. A creature entangled by a roper can't move beyond the reach of the roper's strand. Each additional hit from a roper's strand increases the amount of enfeeblement by 1 (to a maximum of enfeebled 4). The enfeebled value from the roper's strands decreases by 1 every 8 hours.

Entangling a creature occupies one of the roper's strands. It can choose not to entangle a creature it hits, and can release an entangled creature as a free action triggered when the roper is about to act or ends its turn. A creature entangled in a roper's strand can attempt to Escape as though freeing itself from a grab. A creature can sever a strand by hitting AC 25 (TAC 24), and dealing at least 18 points of slashing damage. This doesn't deal any damage to the roper itself, though it can no longer attack with a severed strand.

◆ Beckoning Call (auditory, concentrate, enchantment, mental, primal) Non-fey creatures within a 300-foot aura must succeed at a DC 27 Will save or become captivated by the rusalka's song. A creature that fails is fascinated, and it must spend each of its actions to move closer to the rusalka as expediently as possible, while avoiding obvious dangers. If a beckoned creature is adjacent to the rusalka, it stays still and doesn't act. The effect lasts for 1 round, but if the rusalka uses Beckoning Call again on subsequent rounds, she extends the duration by 1 round for any affected creature.

If the rusalka attacks a beckoned creature, that creature is freed from the call at the end of the turn. A creature that critically failed its initial save isn't automatically freed when attacked, but it can attempt a new save at the start of its turn if the rusalka attacked it that round.

Once a creature succeeds at any of these saves, it's bolstered.

◆ Constrict and Charm The rusalka deals 10 bludgeoning damage to any number of creatures grabbed or restrained in her hair. In addition, she can target one creature tangled in her hair with charm. This expends one of her innate charm spells.

Shameful Touch (emotion, enchantment, mental, primal) When the rusalka hits with her hand, the target is filled with overwhelming feelings of desire and shame. The target is sick 2 and must attempt a DC 28 Will save. If it fails, it's slowed 2 for 1 round; if it succeeds, it's slowed 1 for 1 round; if it critically succeeds, it isn't slowed.

◆ Antenna Disarm The rust monster can make an antenna Strike against a creature's Reflex DC to attempt to disarm a metal item that creature is holding. If the attack is a critical hit, the rust monster drops the item on the ground in its own space (in addition to rusting the item).

Rust A rust monster's antenna causes metal to rapidly rust and corrode. If it hits a creature with an antenna attack, the rust monster can rust a metal item the creature is holding or wearing (including metal armor). If it hits an unattended metal item, it rusts the item. The rust dents the item (or deals two Dents on a critical hit). If a creature uses the Shield Block reaction against an antenna attack, the shield is automatically dented if it's made of metal, but it protects the creature's other items. The rust monster can dent an unattended item within reach with an antenna Strike.

Bonetaker (divine, necromancy) Whenever a creature dies within 60 feet of a saxra, the saxra draws a small fragment of the creature's bones into its aura. The creature must succeed at a DC 36 Will save or rise as a skeletal champion (see page 106) in 1d4 rounds. Creatures raised as skeletal champions are overcome with the desire to slay living creatures, but the saxra has no special control over them.

Energy Drain (divine, necromancy) When a saxra hits with a melee Strike, the target must succeed at a DC 35 Fortitude save or become enervated 2. On a critical failure, this condition cannot be removed normally, but only by magical treatment.

◆ Splintered Ground The saxra causes splintered bones to erupt from all solid surfaces in a 100-foot aura, except for surfaces of worked stone. Any creature moving through the bones takes 10 piercing damage and 10 negative damage for every 5 feet of movement. The first time each round a creature takes piercing damage from these splintered bones, it must succeed at a Reflex save or be hampered 10 for 10 minutes, or hampered 15 for 24 hours on a critical failure. Once hampered, the creature is bolstered until it recovers from the condition. The bones remain in place until the saxra uses this action again, or the bones are manually removed, which takes 10 minutes for each 5-foot square.

Effect The sewer ooze unleashes a wave of filth and slime, hitting all creatures within a 20-foot aura. Creatures in the area take 1d4 acid damage and are hampered 10 feet for 1 minute unless they succeed at a DC 15 Reflex save (no damage or hampered on a success, and a character additionally falls prone on a critical failure). An affected creature can clean off the muck as an Interact action, reducing the hampered condition by 5 feet with each action.

SHADOW

These sinister undead creatures appear as flitting silhouettes that are typically attracted to dark places, as they are vulnerable to light. A shadow can snatch away its victim's own shadow, weakening the target and allowing the shadow to create more of its kind.

the shadow that created it. This shadow spawn doesn't have Steal Shadow, and is perpetually and incurably enervated 2. If the creature the shadow spawn was pulled from dies, the shadow spawn becomes a full, autonomous shadow. A creature separated from its shadow recovers from Steal Shadow's enfeeblement half as quickly. If it recovers entirely, its shadow returns to it and the shadow spawn is extinguished.

◆ Slink in Shadows

Requirement The shadow is hiding in darkness.

Effect The shadow Sneaks up to its Speed and doesn't need to stop hiding if it ends its movement in darkness.

◆ Steal Shadow (divine, necromancy)

Requirement The shadow hit a living creature with a shadow hand Strike on its previous action.

Effect The shadow pulls at the target's shadow, making the creature enfeebled 1 (or enfeebled 2 if the previous action was a critical hit). This is cumulative with other enfeebled conditions from shadows. If this increases a creature's enfeebled value to 3 or more, the shadow tears the target's shadow free from its body (see shadow spawn). The enfeebled condition from Steal Shadow reduces by 1 every 8 hours, ending once it hits enfeebled 0. The recovery speed is halved if the shadow is separated from the creature's body.

SINSPAWN

Sinspawn are the corrupted products of magic used by spellcasters in a past era as shock troops for their armies. The embodiment of sin made flesh, they are sentient abominations of distilled ectoplasm imprinted with the soul-image of slain creatures that committed an abundance of a particular sin. Sinspawn come in many forms, often reflecting the sin they are most attuned to.

CUSTOMIZING SINSPAWN

The statistics here function for basic sinspawn, but some sinspawn gain skills and abilities based on their sins, often filling a role similar to a character class. The most common adjustments follow.

- Envyspawn are short and thin, often filling the role of scouts. They typically have Dex +3, Wis +3, Cha -1 and carry composite longbows.
- Gluttonyspawn are obese and hardy, fighting on the front lines. They typically have Dex +0, Con +4, and carry backup weapons, such as javelins and shortwords.
- Greedspawn have gold-tinged veins, stand over 7 feet tall, and are skilled thieves. They typically have Str +2, Dex +4, Int +1, and carry one finesse weapon and one agile weapon.
- Lustspawn have beautiful bodies while retaining their grotesque faces and claws. They typically have Str +2, Wis +0, and Cha +4, and know a small number of spontaneous arcane spells, primarily of the enchantment school.
- Pridespawn are gaunt with long manes of styled hair. They typically have Str +1, Int +4, Wis -2, and know a small number of prepared arcane spells.
- Slothspawn hang heavy with dense rolls of excess skin. They typically have Dex +0, Wis +3, and know a small number of prepared divine spells.
- Wrathspawn are muscular and pale. Their ability scores don't change, but some of them carry high-damage weapons like greataxes.

◆ Melee ranseur +8 (disarm, reach 10 feet), Damage 1d10+4 piercing plus weapon mastery

◆ Melee claw +8 (agile), Damage 1d6+4 slashing

Sinful Bite (mental) A creature hit by the jaws Strike of a sinspawn must attempt a DC 15 Will save as it is assailed by sinful thoughts.

Success Sick 1.

Critical Success Unaffected.

Failure Sick 2.

Critical Failure Sick 2 and slowed 1 as long as it remains sick.

Sin A sinspawn gains one or more skills and a special ability based on its sin. The skills and abilities of the most common sins are found below.

- Envy Survival +7. A creature struck by the envyspawn's jaws suffers the effects of a paranoia spell (DC 16), then is bolstered.
- Gluttony Survival +7. Increase the damage of a gluttonyspawn's bite to 1d10+4. On critical hit with a bite Strike, the gluttonyspawn regains 2d6 Hit Points.
- Greed Thievery +7. The greedspawn has the Pickpocket skill feat and counts as having master proficiency rank for it.
- Lust Diplomacy +7. The lustspawn can cast charm as an arcane innate spell at will (DC 15).
- Pride Performance +7, Society +7. The first time each round the pridespawn hits a creature, it gains 4 temporary Hit Points (8 on a critical hit). If it doesn't hit at all during a round of combat, the pridespawn takes a -1 circumstance penalty to AC and saving throws for 1 round.

- Sloth Deception +7. A creature struck by a slothspawn's jaws suffers the effects of a slow spell (DC 16), then is bolstered.
- Wrath Athletics +7, Intimidation +7. The wrathspawn can cast weapon surge as an innate arcane spell (DC 15). A wrathspawn can't cast the spell again for 1d4 rounds.

Weapon Mastery Sinspawn are masters of armaments, and gain the critical specialization benefit for any weapons they wield. For example, if a sinspawn scores a critical hit with a ranseur, the target is moved 5 feet in a direction of the sinspawn's choice.

- ◆ Web Reel (manipulate)

Requirements A creature is tethered to the goliath spider's web tether.

Effect If the goliath spider succeeds at an Athletics check against the creature's Fortitude DC, it pulls that creature 20 feet closer to it (double distance on a critical success, half distance on a failure, no distance on a critical failure).

Web Tether A creature hit by the spider's web Strike is entangled and tethered to the spider, preventing it from moving farther away from the spider. The trapped creature or an adjacent creature can attempt a DC 28 Athletics check to Break Open the entangling web. Severing the tether requires attacking it and breaking it (AC 20, TAC 17, Hardness 20).

STAR-SPAWN OF CTHULHU

Of all the strange and malefic denizens of the void between the stars, few evoke the same terror as a star-spawn of Cthulhu. Humanoid in shape, a star-spawn's immense body has rubbery flesh that wriggles and seethes like a half-solidified ooze.

Frightful Presence (aura, emotion, fear, mental) 150 feet, DC 38

Mental Dominance (aura, mental) 150 feet. The star-spawn of Cthulhu projects its mental presence in an aura around it, preventing its foes from concentrating. A foe attempting a concentrate action in the area must succeed at a DC 36 Will save or the action fails.

Immortality The star-spawn of Cthulhu doesn't age, nor does it need to eat or breathe. It can die only as a result of violence.

◆ Overwhelming Mind (mental)

Trigger The star-spawn of Cthulhu makes mental contact with a creature either using its own abilities (including telepathy) or the creature's divination or mental effect.

Effect The creature must succeed at a DC 40 Will save or be stunned for 1d4 rounds. On a success, the creature is slowed 1 for 1 round; on a critical success, the creature is unaffected; on a critical failure, the creature is stunned for 1d4 rounds and permanently confused, as per the effects of a critical failure when casting warp mind. Regardless of the save result, the creature becomes bolstered.

Occult Innate Spells DC 40, Constant (10th) mind blank; 10th gate;

At Will (10th) dream message, nightmare, sending, warp mind

◆◆ Focused Assault (attack) The star-spawn of Cthulhu attacks a single target with all six of its face tentacles, overwhelming it with multiple attacks and leaving almost nowhere to dodge. On a successful attack, the star-spawn of Cthulhu deals damage from one tentacle to the target, plus an additional 1d6 damage for every tentacle beyond the first (normally 5d6 unless a tentacle is severed or occupied). Even on a failed attack, the star-spawn deals the damage from one tentacle to the target. It can't Grab a creature on a failed attack and still misses completely on a critical failure. This counts toward the star-spawn's multiple attack penalty as a number of attacks equal to the number of tentacles it uses.

◆ Greater Constrict 18 bludgeoning, DC 40

◆◆ Tangle of Tentacles The star-spawn of Cthulhu makes up to six tentacle Strikes at a -2 penalty, each against a different target in a 15-foot cone. If it follows this by using a Grab action, it can Grab any number of creatures it hit instead of just one. These attacks count toward the star-spawn's multiple attack penalty, and the multiple attack penalty doesn't increase until after it makes all its attacks.

Starflight A star-spawn of Cthulhu can use its fly Speed to fly in outer space despite the lack of atmosphere.

TITAN

Titans are gargantuan, armor-clad humanoids that wield massive weapons. Said to be the first children of the gods, the titans waged war upon their creators. Thanatotic titans were banished to the Abyss as punishment for their hubris.

◆ Change Shape (concentrate, divine, polymorph) A thanatotic titan can take the shape of any humanoid of any size. In humanoid shape, it can Trample only creatures of its new size or smaller and its reach decreases to match its new size. If a titan is Huge, the reach of its halberd decreases to 40 feet, while the reach of its foot decreases to 20 feet (20 feet [halberd] and 10 feet [foot] if Large; and as normal for both Strikes if the titan is smaller).

◆ Godslayer (divine)

Trigger The thanatotic titan damages a creature that can cast divine spells or use divine abilities.

Effect The damaged creature must succeed at a DC 44 Will save or become unable to use any of its divine spells and abilities for 1 day and become frightened 2 for as long as this restriction lasts. A success reduces the duration to 1 round, a critical success negates the effect, and a critical failure causes the damaged creature to lose its divine spells and abilities forever.

Primordial Rock (divine) A thanatotic titan can shape creatures and objects alike from the primordial nature of the universe. When it creates a rock to throw, the titan imbues it with that nature, choosing any damage type for it to deal. After a rock Strike, the rock explodes in the square of its target, even on a miss (though not on a critical failure). This deals 10d6 damage of the chosen type to all creatures in a 20-foot burst (Reflex DC 44 half, no damage on a critical success, double damage on a critical failure).

◆◆◆ Trample Gargantuan or smaller, foot, DC 44 length equal to the reach of its titanic halberd (a 60-foot cone when the titan is Gargantuan). These attacks count as one attack toward the titan's multiple attack penalty, and the penalty increases only after all the attacks have been made.

Ride The valkyrie can use Command an Animal to control her mount without needing to use Handle an Animal first.

VAMPIRE (MOROI)

Vampires are undead creatures that drink the blood of the living. The most common vampire is the moroi. Although the rules here include a template to convert the statistics for a living creature into those of a moroi vampire, the vampires presented below don't exactly match what you would get if you used the template. It is best to build a vampire from scratch—creating its statistics as you see fit and then adding the special abilities below—but if you don't have the time, simply apply the template. A creature should be at least level 3 before being converted to a vampire.

CREATING VAMPIRES

You can turn an existing, living creature into a moroi vampire by completing the following steps.

First, increase the creature's level by 1 and change its statistics as follows.

- Increase its AC, attack bonuses, DCs, saving throws, and skill modifiers by 1.
- Increase its damage with Strikes and other offensive abilities by 1. If the vampire is limited in how often it can use an ability (such as a breath weapon), increase the damage by 2 instead.
- The creature gains fast healing and resistance to physical damage (except silver) roughly equal to the amount shown on the table.
- Reduce its HP by roughly the amount shown on the table. This lower HP compensates for the creature's fast healing.

Starting Level	Fast Healing/Resistance	HP Decrease
3-4	5	-10
5-7	7	-15
8-14	10	-30
15+	15	-55

Vampire Abilities

A vampire gains the undead and vampire traits, and its alignment is usually adjusted to evil. All vampires gain the following abilities. If the base creature has any abilities that come from it being a living creature, it loses them. It also loses any traits that represented its life as a living creature, such as human and humanoid. You might also need to adjust some abilities that conflict with the theme of a vampire (such as abilities with the good trait).

The vampire master gains additional abilities, as described below.

Coffin Restoration (divine, necromancy, negative) Unlike other undead, a vampire isn't destroyed if reduced to 0 HP. Instead, it falls unconscious. If the vampire's body is placed in its coffin for 1 hour, the vampire is restored to 1 HP, after which its fast healing begins to function normally.

Negative Healing

Immunities asleep, death effects, disease, paralysis, poison

Vampire Weaknesses A moroi vampire has several weaknesses specific to its kind. A vampire's coffin can bring it back to unlife from 0 Hit Points, but wooden stakes and sunlight can be used to permanently slay it.

- Compulsions Vampires are creatures of strange and unknowable compulsions. A typical moroi vampire can't voluntarily cross running water unless the vampire is in its coffin, or enter a private home or dwelling unless invited by someone with the authority to do so, though other vampires might have different compulsions. The vampire can still be forced to do these things, and might be able to overcome its compulsion just as it does its revulsion (see below).
- Revulsion A vampire can't voluntarily come within 10 feet of garlic or a brandished holy symbol of a non-evil deity. A creature can use an Interact action to brandish a holy symbol for 1 round (similar to Raising a Shield). If the vampire involuntarily comes within 10 feet of an object of its revulsion, it gains the fleeing condition until it ends an action beyond 10 feet from the object. After 1 round of being exposed to the object of its revulsion, a vampire can take an action to attempt a DC 26 Will save (this action has the

BUILDING ENCOUNTERS

NPCs

ABILITY GLOSSARY

concentrate trait). On a success, it overcomes its revulsions for 1d6 rounds (or 1 hour on a critical success).

- Stakes A wooden stake driven through the vampire's heart reduces the vampire to 0 HP and prevents it from healing above 0 HP, even in its coffin. Staking a vampire requires three actions and can be done only if the vampire is unconscious. If the vampire's head is severed and anointed with holy water while the stake is in place, the vampire is destroyed. If the stake is removed, the vampire can heal again and, if the vampire is in its coffin, its 1-hour rest period begins.
- Sunlight If exposed to direct sunlight, a vampire becomes slowed 1 immediately. The slowed value increases by 1 each time the vampire ends its turn in sunlight. If the vampire loses all its actions in this way, it's destroyed. Antithetical to light by their very nature, vampires don't cast shadows or show a reflection in mirrors.

Climb Speed The creature gains a climb Speed equal to its land Speed.

Claws If the creature had hands, it gains a claw Strike (an agile unarmed attack that deals slashing damage). If the monster had any agile attacks, the damage amount should be roughly the same. If it had only non-agile attacks, use that damage reduced by 25%.

◆ Drink Blood (divine, necromancy)

Requirements An asleep, grabbed, paralyzed, restrained, or unconscious creature is within the vampire's reach.

Effect The vampire sinks its fangs into that creature to drink its blood. If the creature is grabbed, this requires the vampire to attempt an Athletics check against the victim creature's Fortitude DC, but Drink Blood is automatic for any of the other conditions. The creature becomes drained 1 and the vampire regains a set amount of HP, gaining any excess as temporary HP. When you create a vampire, decide how much HP it regains (this amount should be between 10% and 20% of its maximum HP). Drinking blood from a creature that's already drained doesn't restore any HP but does increase the victim's drained condition by 1. A vampire can drink blood that has been already removed from a creature, but gains no HP.

A victim's drained condition reduces by 1 every week. A creature who succeeds at a DC 18 Medicine check (requiring sufficient blood or blood donors) can perform a blood transfusion to reduce this condition by 1 after 10 minutes.

Grab The creature gains Grab and can Grab with its claw attacks, or with equivalent unarmed attacks if it doesn't have claws.

Vampire Master Abilities

Powerful vampires that can create and control vampire spawn also get these abilities. To make a good vampire master, a creature should be at least level 5.

Children of the Night (divine, enchantment, mental) A vampire master's presence beckons creatures of the night that do its bidding. These typically include rat swarms, bat swarms, wolves, or other creatures. The vampire master can give orders to these creatures, but they can't communicate back.

Resistance Overcoming a vampire's resistance requires magical silver.

Create Progeny (divine, downtime, necromancy) If a creature dies after being reduced to 0 HP by Drink Blood, the vampire can turn this victim into a vampire spawn or vampire master by pouring some of its own blood into the victim and burying the victim's coffin in earth for three nights. If the new vampire is a lower level than its creator, it is under the creator's control. If a vampire controls too many progeny at once (as determined by the GM), a strong-willed progeny can attempt a Will save against its master's Will DC to break free.

◆ Mist Escape

Trigger The vampire is reduced to 0 HP.

Effect The vampire uses turn to mist (see below). It can still take actions even though it's at 0 HP, but the only actions it can take are move actions to move toward its coffin. While at 0 HP in this form, it's unaffected by further damage. It automatically returns to its corporeal form, unconscious, if it reaches its coffin or after 2 hours, whichever comes first.

◆ Change Shape (concentrate, divine, polymorph, transmutation)

The vampire can transform into one or more animal forms. This is a bat for most moroi, but could be a different creature modeled after the options in the animal form and aerial form spells.

- Bat The vampire can change in size to Tiny, Small, or Large. It gains echolocation 40 feet and has a land Speed of 20 feet and a fly Speed of 30 feet. It gains two Strikes at the same attack bonus as its highest melee attack: a fangs Strike that deals 25% more damage than its claws (and is piercing instead of slashing) and an agile wing Strike that deals the same damage as its claws (but is bludgeoning).

◆ Dominate

The vampire can cast dominate at will as an innate divine spell; its Somatic Casting gains the visual trait and includes staring into the target's eyes. The DC is 2 lower than the standard DC for the vampire's level, and a creature that succeeds is bolstered. Slaying the vampire ends the domination, but reducing the vampire to 0 HP is insufficient to break the spell.

Drink Blood The victim creature becomes drained 2 instead of 1.

◆ Turn to Mist (concentrate, divine, transmutation) The vampire turns into a cloud of vapor, as the gaseous form spell, or back to its normal form. The vampire loses fast healing while in gaseous form. The vampire can remain in this form indefinitely.

VARGOUILLE

Vargouilles are hideous monsters, little more than fiendish heads that fly upon leathery bat wings. They are known for tormenting living creatures and can often be found haunting graveyards, ancient battlefields, or anywhere that has been transformed by the touch of massive death. Their kiss can transform victims into vargouilles.

Effect The warsworn absorbs the dying creature into itself, instantly killing the creature and healing the warsworn for a number of Hit Points equal to the creature's level. Creatures can't be resurrected except by miracle or a similarly powerful effect while the warsworn that absorbed them still exists.

Energy Drain (divine, necromancy) When a warsworn hits with a corpse wave Strike or damages a creature with Trample, the target must succeed at a DC 33 Fortitude save or become enervated 1. On a critical failure, this condition cannot be removed normally, only by magical treatment.

Plummet A creature hit by a warsworn's scrap ball Strike must attempt a Reflex save. On a failure, an airborne creature falls up to 120 feet; if it hits the ground, it takes damage from the fall and falls prone. On a critical failure, the target is knocked prone (even if it didn't take falling damage) and restrained under a pile of scrap (DC 34 to Escape or Break Grapple).

Cannibal Feast (healing, necromancy, primal) If the wendigo deals bite damage to a creature it's grabbing or restraining, it devours the victim's flesh. The wendigo gains temporary HP equal to half the damage dealt and gains a +1 conditional bonus to all d20 rolls for 1 round. The victim takes 2d10 persistent bleed damage.

Dream Haunting When the wendigo casts nightmare, a target that fails at its save is exposed to wendigo torment.

◆◆ Howl (auditory, concentrate, enchantment, fear, mental, primal) The wendigo unleashes a forlorn howl that can be heard up to 1 mile away. Any creature that hears the howl must succeed at a DC 35 Will save or be frightened 1. Any creature that critically fails and is within 120 feet of the wendigo is instead frightened 3, and also flees for 1d4 rounds (or until it's no longer frightened, whichever comes first). A creature frightened by a wendigo's howl still naturally recovers from its fright but can't reduce it below frightened 1 in this way until 1 hour has passed or magic is used. Whether it succeeds or fails, a creature is bolstered.

◆ Ride the Wind (concentrate, primal, transmutation) The wendigo turns into vapor (as gaseous form) and flies through the air. While in this form, it can spend an action to ride the wind rapidly, moving 200 feet in a straight line (this action has the move trait). The wendigo can spend an action to return to its normal form (this action has the concentrate trait). If the effect ends while the wendigo is airborne, the wendigo benefits from feather fall.

If the wendigo has a creature grabbed or restrained when it Rides the Wind, it can attempt to turn the grabbed creature into wind and carry it along as part of the action. The creature can attempt a DC 35 Will save to prevent being transformed. If the creature succeeds, the wendigo still transforms, automatically releasing the victim. A creature forced to Ride the Wind along with the wendigo is exposed to wendigo torment. The creature can attempt a new Will save each round to return to normal, though it immediately turns corporeal and begins falling if it succeeds.

Wendigo Torment (curse, mental, necromancy, primal) A creature affected by wendigo torment can't recover beyond stage 1 until brought to full HP. Saving Throw Will DC 35; Stage 1 Stupefied 4

If the creature succeeds, it then runs off at full speed, and after 1d4 rounds sprints into the sky so fast that its feet burn away into jagged stumps. As the creature rides the wind into the sky, it turns into a new wendigo over 2d6 minutes. The victim is replaced by a new wendigo, and only alter reality, miracle, primal phenomenon, wish, or a 9th-level resurrection spell can return it to life. The new wendigo remains even if the victim is resurrected.

Deny Advantage The rogue isn't treated as flat-footed by flanking, sensed, or unseen creatures of 10th level or lower.

Evasion When the rogue succeeds at a Reflex save, they treat it as a critical success.

◆ Sidestep

Trigger A Strike attack roll against the rogue fails or critically fails.

Effect The rogue redirects the attack to a creature of the rogue's choice that is adjacent to the rogue and within the reach of the triggering attack. The attacker rerolls the Strike's attack roll at the same multiple attack penalty against the new target.

Speed 25 feet, light step, mobility

◆ Ranged +1 dagger +19 (agile, magical, versatile S), Damage 2d4+5 piercing

◆ Debilitating Strike

Trigger The rogue hits and deals damage to a flat-footed creature with a Strike.

Effect The rogue applies one of the following debilitating, which lasts until the end of the rogue's next turn.

Debilitation The target becomes entangled.

Debilitation The target becomes enfeebled 1.

Light Step When the rogue Strides or Steps, they ignore difficult terrain.

Mobility When the rogue takes a Stride action to move half their Speed or less, that movement does not trigger reactions.

Sneak Attack If the rogue's Strike hits a flat-footed creature, it deals 2d6 extra precision damage.

Surprise Attack On the first round of combat, the rogue treats any creatures that haven't acted yet as if they were flat-footed.

ABILITY GLOSSARY

The following creature abilities are listed here because they are shared by many creatures or are highly complex. The statistics for individual creatures might alter the traits, number of actions, or other rules of these abilities. Anything noted in a specific creature's stat block overrides the general rules for the ability below. In these abilities, "monster" is used for the creature that has the ability, to differentiate it from any other creatures the ability might affect.

At-Will Spells The monster can cast its at-will spells any number of times without using up spell slots. An at-will spell that the monster casts at a higher level than the spell's base level has that level listed in parentheses.

◆ Attack of Opportunity

Trigger A creature within the monster's reach uses a manipulate action or a move action, makes a ranged attack, or leaves a square during a move action it's using.

Effect The monster attempts a melee Strike against the triggering creature at a -2 penalty. If the attack hits and the trigger was a manipulate action, the monster disrupts that action. This Strike doesn't count toward the monster's multiple attack penalty, and its multiple attack penalty doesn't apply to this Strike.

◆ Change Shape (concentrate, polymorph, transmutation) The monster changes its shape indefinitely. It can use this action again to return to its natural shape or adopt a new shape. Unless otherwise noted, a monster cannot use Change Shape to appear as a specific individual. Using Change Shape counts as creating a disguise for the Impersonate use of Deception. The monster's transformation automatically defeats Perception DCs to determine whether the creature is a member of the race into which it transformed, and it gains a +4 conditional bonus to its Deception DC to prevent others from seeing through its disguise.

Change Shape abilities specify what shapes the monster can adopt. The monster doesn't gain any special abilities of the new shape, only its physical form. In each shape, it replaces its normal Speeds and Strikes, and might potentially change its senses or size. Any changes are listed in its stat block.

Constant Spells A constant spell affects the monster without the monster needing to cast it, and its duration is unlimited. If a constant spell gets dispelled, the monster can reactivate it by spending the normal spellcasting actions the spell requires.

Continuous Aura A monster's continuous aura automatically affects everything within a specified radius emanating from that monster. The monster doesn't need to spend actions on a continuous aura; rather, a continuous aura's effects are applied at specific times, such as at the end of each creature's turn or when creatures enter the aura.

◆ Constrict The monster automatically deals the listed amount of damage to any number of creatures grabbed or restrained by it.

Coven (arcane, divination, mental) This monster can form a coven with two or more other creatures who also have this ability. This involves performing an 8-hour ceremony with all prospective coven members. After the coven is formed, each of its members gains elite adjustments (see page 22), adjusting their level accordingly. Coven members can sense other members' locations and conditions by spending an action and can sense what another coven member is sensing with an activity that takes two actions (these both have the concentrate trait).

Covens also grant spells and rituals to their members, but these can be cast only in cooperation between three coven members who are all within 30 feet of one another. A coven member can contribute to a coven spell with a Verbal Casting action. If two coven members have contributed these actions within the last round, a third member can cast a coven spell on her turn by spending the normal spellcasting actions. A coven can cast its coven spells an unlimited number of times, but can cast only one coven spell each round. All covens include the 8th-level baleful polymorph spell and all the following spells, which the coven can cast at any level up to 5th: augury, charm, clairaudience, clairvoyance, dream message, illusory disguise, illusory scene, prying eye, and talking corpse. Individual creatures with the coven ability also grant additional spells to any coven they join. A coven can also cast the control weather ritual, with a DC of 23 instead of the standard DC.

If a coven member leaves the coven, the coven ends immediately. If the death of a coven member brings the coven below three members, the remaining members keep their elite adjustments for 24 hours, but without enough members to contribute the necessary actions, they can't cast coven spells.

Disease When a creature is exposed to a monster's disease, it attempts a Fortitude save or succumbs to the disease. The disease follows the rules for afflictions found on page 324 of the Pathfinder Playtest Rulebook.

◆◆ Engulf The monster Strides up to double its Speed and can move through the spaces of any creatures in its path. Any creature of the monster's size or smaller whose space the monster moves through can attempt a Reflex save with the listed DC to avoid being engulfed. A creature unable to act automatically critically fails this save. If a creature succeeds at its save, it chooses to be either pushed aside (out of the monster's path) or pushed in front of the monster to the end of the monster's movement. The monster can't attempt to Engulf the same creature twice in a single action. The monster can contain as many creatures as can fit in its space.

A creature that fails its save is pulled into the monster's body. It is grabbed, is slowed 1, and has to hold its breath or start suffocating. The creature takes the listed amount of damage when first engulfed and at the end of each of its turns while it's engulfed. An engulfed creature can get free by Escaping against the listed escape DC. An engulfed creature can attack the monster engulfing it, but only with unarmed attacks or with weapons of light Bulk or less. These attacks target the monster's TAC. If the monster takes piercing or slashing damage equaling or exceeding the toughness value listed in its Engulf entry, the engulfed creature cuts itself free. A creature that gets free by either method can immediately breathe and exits the swallowing monster's space.

If the monster dies, all engulfed creatures are automatically released as the monster's form loses cohesion.

ABILITY GLOSSARY

CREATURE AND HAZARD TRAITS

Fast Healing A monster with this ability regains the given number of Hit Points each round at the beginning of its turn.

Frightful Presence (aura, emotion, fear, mental) A creature that enters the area must attempt a Will save. It's frightened 1 on a success, unaffected on a critical success, frightened 2 on a failure, or frightened 3 and fleeing for 1 round on a critical failure. After a creature attempts its save, it's bolstered.

◆ Grab

Requirements The monster's last action was a success with an attack that lists Grab in its damage entry, or it has a creature grabbed using this action.

Effect The monster automatically Grabs the target until the end of the monster's next turn. The creature is grabbed by whichever body part the monster attacked with, and that body part can't be used to Strike creatures until the grab is ended.

Using Grab extends the duration of the monster's Grab until the end of its next turn for all creatures grabbed by it.

The grabbed creature can Escape using Acrobatics or Break the Grapple with Athletics, and the Grab ends if the monster moves away.

◆ Greater Constrict The monster automatically deals the listed amount of damage to a creature grabbed or restrained by it, and the creature must attempt a Fortitude save at the listed DC or fall unconscious. A creature that succeeds at its save is bolstered against falling unconscious in this way.

◆ Improved Grab, Improved Knockdown, or Improved Push The monster can use Grab, Knockdown, or Push (as appropriate) as a free action triggered by a hit with its initial attack. A creature with Improved Grab still needs to spend an action to extend the duration for creatures it already has grabbed.

◆ Knockdown

Requirements The monster's last action was a success with an attack that lists Knockdown in its damage entry.

Effect The monster automatically knocks the target prone.

Poison When a creature is exposed to a monster's poison, it attempts a Fortitude save or becomes poisoned. The poison follows the rules for afflictions found in the Pathfinder Playtest Rulebook (page 324).

◆ Push

Requirements The monster's last action was a success with an attack that lists Push in its damage entry.

Effect The monster automatically knocks the target away from the monster. Unless otherwise noted in the ability description, the creature is pushed 5 feet. If the attack was a critical hit, this distance is doubled.

◆ Raise a Shield

Requirements You are wielding a shield.

Effect You position your shield to protect yourself. When you have Raised a Shield, you gain its listed bonuses to AC and TAC as circumstance bonuses and you can use the Shield Block reaction. Your shield remains raised until the start of your next turn.

Regeneration This monster regains the listed number of Hit Points each round at the beginning of its turn. It can't die from damage or the dying condition; its dying condition never increases beyond dying 3 as long as its regeneration is active. If it takes damage of a type listed in the regeneration entry, however, its regeneration deactivates until the end of its next turn. Deactivate the regeneration before applying the damage, since that damage might kill the monster by bringing it to dying 4.

◆ Rend A Rend entry lists a Strike the monster has.

Requirements The monster hit the same enemy with two consecutive Strikes of the listed type in the same round.

Effect The monster automatically deals that Strike's damage again to the enemy.

◆ Shield Block

Trigger While you have your shield raised, you take damage from a physical attack.

Effect You snap your shield into place to deflect a blow. Your shield prevents you from taking an amount of damage up to its Hardness—the shield takes this damage instead, possibly becoming dented or broken.

◆ Swallow Whole (attack) The monster attempts to swallow a creature of the listed size or smaller that it has grabbed in its jaws or mouth. If a swallowed creature is of the maximum size listed, the monster can't use Swallow Whole again. If the creature is smaller than the maximum, the monster can usually swallow more creatures; the GM determines the maximum. The monster attempts an Athletics check opposed by the grabbed creature's Reflex DC. If it succeeds, it swallows the creature. The monster's jaws or mouth no longer grabs a creature it has swallowed, so the monster is free to use them to Strike or Grab once again. The monster can't attack creatures it has swallowed.

A swallowed creature is grabbed, slowed 1, and has to hold its breath or start suffocating. The swallowed creature takes the listed amount of damage when first swallowed and at the end of each of its turns while it's swallowed. Escaping this ability's grabbed condition puts the victim back in the monster's mouth. This frees any other creature grabbed in the monster's mouth. A swallowed creature can attack the monster that has swallowed it, but only with unarmed attacks or with weapons of light Bulk or less. These attacks target the monster's TAC. If the monster takes piercing or slashing damage equaling or exceeding the toughness value listed in its Swallow Whole entry, the swallowed creature cuts a large enough opening to exit through. The creature can immediately breathe and exits the swallowing monster's space.

If the monster dies, a swallowed creature can be freed by creatures adjacent to the corpse spending a combined total of 3 actions cutting with a weapon or unarmed attack that deals piercing or slashing damage.

Telepathy (aura, divination, magical) A monster with telepathy in can communicate mentally with any creatures within the listed radius, as long as they have a language. This doesn't give any special access to their thoughts, and communicates no more information than normal speech would.

◆◆◆ Trample The monster Strides up to double its Speed and can move through the spaces of creatures of the listed size, Trampling each creature whose space it enters. A trampled creature takes the damage of the listed Strike, but can attempt a Reflex save at the listed DC (half damage on a success, no damage on a critical success, double damage on a critical failure).

CREATURE AND HAZARD TRAITS

Some of these traits appear in the Pathfinder Playtest Rulebook, while others are new to this document.

Aberration Aberrations are creatures from beyond the planes or corruptions of the natural order.

Acid Effects with this trait deal acid damage. An item with 5 or lower Hardness takes 1 extra Dent from acid damage. Creatures with this trait have a magical connection to acid.

Air Effects with the air trait either manipulate or conjure air. Those that manipulate air have no effect in a vacuum or an area without air. Creatures with this trait consist primarily of air or have a magical connection to the element.

Amphibious An amphibious creature can breathe either in water or in air and outside of their preferred environment, usually indefinitely but at least for hours. These creatures often have a swim Speed.

Animal An animal is a creature with a relatively low intelligence. It typically doesn't have an Intelligence ability score over 3, can't speak languages, and can't be trained in Intelligence-based skills.

Aquatic Aquatic creatures are at home underwater. Their bludgeoning and slashing unarmed Strikes don't take the -2 penalty for being underwater. Unless they have amphibious or another trait that says otherwise, aquatic creatures can breathe water but not air.

Beast A creature similar to an animal but with an Intelligence of 4 or higher is usually a beast. Unlike an animal, a beast might be able to speak and reason.

Boggard Boggards are frog-like humanoids. They typically have darkvision, a grabbing tongue, and a horrifying croak.

Caligni Subterranean people with powers to create darkness are called caligni.

Chaotic Chaotic effects often manipulate energy from chaos-aligned Outer Planes and are anathema to lawful divine servants and divine servants of lawful deities. A creature with this trait is chaotic in alignment.

Cold Effects with this trait deal cold damage. Creatures with this trait have a magical connection to cold.

Complex Hazards with this trait roll initiative after their reactions, possibly starting a new encounter, and use actions of their own.

Construct A construct is an artificial creature empowered by a force other than necromancy. Constructs are often mindless; they are immune to disease, paralysis, and poison; and they may have Hardness based on the materials used to construct their bodies. Constructs are not living creatures, nor are they undead. When reduced to 0 Hit Points, a construct creature is destroyed.

Demon A race of fiends, demons hail from or trace their origins to the Abyss. Most are irredeemably chaotic evil. They typically have darkvision and resistances to damage.

Devil A race of fiends from Hell, most devils are irredeemably lawful evil. They typically have greater darkvision, immunity to fire, and telepathy.

Dinosaur These reptiles have survived from prehistoric times.

Dragon Dragons are reptilian creatures, often winged or with the power of flight. Most are able to use a breath weapon and are immune to sleep and paralysis.

Drow Subterranean kin of the elves, drow typically have darkvision and inborn magical abilities.

Earth Effects with the earth trait either manipulate or conjure earth. Those that manipulate earth have no effect in an area without earth. Creatures with this trait consist primarily of earth or have a magical connection to the element.

Electricity Effects with this trait deal electricity damage. A creature with this trait has a magical connection to electricity.

Elemental Elementals are creatures directly tied to an element, and are natives of the Elemental Planes. Elementals don't need to breathe.

Elf A creature with this trait is an elf; these mysterious people have rich traditions of magic and scholarship and typically have low-light vision.

Environmental A hazard with this trait is something dangerous that's part of the natural world, such as quicksand or harmful mold. Skills like Survival are often necessary to overcome them.

Evil Evil effects often manipulate energy from evil-aligned Outer Planes and are anathema to good divine servants and divine servants of good deities. A creature with this trait is evil in alignment.

Fey Creatures of the First World are called the fey.

Fiend Creatures that hail from or have a strong connection to the evil-aligned planes are called fiends. Fiends can survive the basic environmental effects of planes in the Outer Sphere.

Fire Effects with the fire trait deal fire damage or either conjure or manipulate fire. Those that manipulate fire have no effect in an area without fire. Creatures with this trait are primarily constituted of fire or have a magical connection to the element.

Fungus Fungal creatures have the fungus tag. They are distinct from normal fungi.

Gargantuan This creature is Gargantuan in size.

Genie The diverse races of genies hold positions of prominence in the Elemental Planes. They have powerful magical abilities.

Ghost Lost souls that haunt the world as incorporeal undead are called ghosts.

Ghoul Ghouls are vile undead creatures that feast on flesh.

Giant Giants are massive humanoid creatures.

Gnoll Gnolls are humanoids that resemble hyenas.

Goblin Creatures with this trait can be of any of several ancestries, including small and canny goblins, militaristic hobgoblins, and hulking and savage bugbears. They tend to have darkvision.

Golem A golem is a special type of construct. A golem is immune to almost all magic, but most have a weakness to certain spells.

Good Good effects often manipulate energy from good-aligned Outer Planes and are anathema to evil divine servants and divine servants of evil deities. A creature with this trait is good in alignment.

Hag These creatures are spellcasting crones.

Halfling A creature with this trait is a halfling; these small people are considered to be lucky, friendly wanderers.

Haunt A hazard with this trait is a spiritual echo, often of someone with a tragic death. The means to put a haunt to rest varies, and often involves resolving the haunt's unfinished business. A haunt that hasn't been properly put to rest always returns after a time.

Huge This creature is Huge in size.

ABILITY GLOSSARY

CREATURE AND HAZARD TRAITS

Human A creature with this trait is a human; these people are known for their adaptability.

Humanoid Humanoid creatures reason and act much like humans. They typically stand upright and have two arms and two legs.

Incorporeal An incorporeal creature or object has no physical body. It can pass through solid objects, including walls. When inside an object, it can't perceive, attack, or interact with anything outside the object, and it is slowed 1. If it exits an object, it remains slowed until the end of its turn. Corporeal creatures can pass through an incorporeal creature, but can't end their movement in its space.

An incorporeal creature can't attempt Strength-based checks against physical creatures or objects—only against incorporeal ones—unless those objects have the ghost touch property rune. Likewise, a corporeal creature can't attempt Strength-based checks against incorporeal creatures or objects.

Incorporeal creatures usually have immunity to nonmagical attacks and other effects or conditions that require a physical body, like disease, poison, and precision damage. They usually resist all damage (except force damage and damage from weapons with the ghost touch property rune).

Kobold Kobolds are reptilian humanoids who typically have darkvision.

Large This creature is Large in size.

Lawful Lawful effects often manipulate energy from law-aligned Outer Planes and are anathema to chaotic divine servants and divine servants of chaotic deities. A creature with this trait is lawful in alignment.

Lizardfolk Lizardfolk are a race of reptilian humanoids. They typically have swim speeds.

Magical Like an item with this trait, a magical hazard is imbued with magical energies. It radiates a magic aura infused with its dominant school of magic (abjuration, conjuration, divination, enchantment, evocation, illusion, necromancy, or transmutation).

Some items or hazards are closely tied to a particular tradition of magic. In these cases, the item or hazard has the arcane, divine, occult, or primal trait instead of the magical trait. Any of these traits indicates that it is magical.

Mechanical A hazard with this trait—typically a trap—is a constructed physical object.

Medium This creature is Medium in size.

Mindless A mindless creature has either programmed or rudimentary mental attributes. Most, if not all, of their mental ability scores are 1. They are immune to all mental effects.

Minion A creature with this trait can use only 2 actions per turn and can't use reactions. A minion acts on your turn in combat when you spend an action to issue it verbal commands (this action has the concentrate trait). If given no commands, minions use no actions except to defend themselves or to escape obvious harm. If left unattended for at least 1 minute, mindless minions don't act, whereas intelligent ones act as they please.

Mummy A mummy is an undead created from a preserved corpse.

Mutant The monster has mutated or evolved, granting it unusual benefits, drawbacks, or both.

Oni Evil spirits that take humanoid form, oni typically have the ability to change their shape.

Ooze Oozes are creatures with simple anatomies. They tend to be immune to mental effects and precision damage, and tend to have low mental ability scores.

Orc A creature with this trait is an orc. These green-skinned people have a reputation as warmongers and tend to have darkvision.

Plant Vegetable creatures have the plant trait. They are distinct from normal plants. Magical effects with this trait manipulate or conjure plants or plant matter in some way. Those that manipulate plants have no effect in an area with no plants.

Rakshasa Reincarnations of evil souls, rakshasa live on the Material Plane but are fiends.

Sahuagin Ocean-dwelling evil humanoids, sahuagin usually have blindsense and darkvision.

Serpentfolk Serpentfolk are ancient reptilian humanoids who tend to be immune to mental spells.

Shade Most incorporeal undead creatures that feed on the life force of the living belong to the family of shades.

Skeleton This undead is made from a dead creature's animated skeleton.

Small This creature is Small in size.

Swarm A swarm is a mass or cloud of creatures that functions as one monster. Its size trait gives the size of the entire mass, though for most swarms the individual creatures that make up that mass are Tiny. A swarm can occupy the same space as other creatures, and must do so in order to use its damaging action. Swarms are immune to any effects that target a single creature or a specific number of creatures. A swarm typically has weakness to effects that deal damage over an area (like area spells and splash weapons).

Tane The Tane are powerful primeval creatures originally from the First World.

Tiny This creature is Tiny in size.

Titan Ancient creatures formed by the gods, titans are few in number but immensely powerful.

Trap A hazard or item with this trait is purposefully set or constructed to hinder interlopers. Traps usually require Thievery to disable or bypass, though magical means can assist against magical traps.

Troll Trolls are brutish giant creatures and are well known for their ability to regenerate.

Undead Once living, these creatures were infused after death with negative energy and soul-corrupting evil magic. When reduced to 0 Hit Points, an undead creature is destroyed. Undead creatures are damaged by positive energy, are healed by negative energy, and don't benefit from healing effects.

Vampire Undead creatures that thirst for blood, vampires are notoriously versatile and hard to destroy.

Water Effects with the water trait either manipulate or conjure water. Those that manipulate water have no effect in an area without water. Creatures with this trait are primarily constituted of fire or have a magical connection to the element.

Werecreature These shapechanging creatures are either naturally able to shift between animal, humanoid, and hybrid shape or are afflicted with a curse that forces them to shift involuntarily.

Xulgath These subterranean reptilian creatures tend to have darkvision.

Zombie These undead hunger for brains.
